Florists throughout the country will be interested in the change that has taken place in the firm of Schloss Brothers, Inc., dealers in ribbons. They have made an equal division of the stock, Emil Schloss retaining the business at the old stand, 31 East 28th street, while Alfred Schloss has located further up town. The writer's acquaintance with these brothers has for years been agreeable, particularly with Emil Schloss, who as a traveling salesman, a member of the Society of American Florists, and a member of the New York Florists' Club is widely known and justly esteemed.

Accompanied by Manager George Scott, we recently made a tour of the John Scott range, Flatbush, Brooklyn. As the original home of the Scottii fern, and on account of our friendship with the late lamented John Scott, this range has a particular interest. We found a great stock of lilies coming forward for Easter. These will average five flowers to a plant. As a matter of course, there is a good stock of the Scottii ferns. Tulips, hyacinths, azaleas, genistas, dracaenas and other plants are well represented.

Peter Wagner, of Flatbush, makes a specialty of ferns, but he has much other good stock, including lilies, Pandanus Veitchii, genistas and a good assortment of pot roses. Mindful of the injunction to "grow more food," he is bringing forward, in one house, an immense stock of vegetable plants.

In addition to a fine stock of carnations, callas and other flowers for cutting, G. Messeberg has a good stock of plants, including azaleas, cinerarias, genistas and dracaenas.

The sympathy of the trade is with William M. and Mrs. Frieda Hendberg, of Hoboken, N. J., in the loss of their son, Raymond M., who died at the family home, 415 Washington street, Hoboken, February 26, aged 23 years. W. M. Hendberg is a leading retailer of Hoboken and a constant buyer in this market.

M. Rovantos, who has retail stores at Scranton and Wilkesbarre, Pa., came to this city to attend the ball of the Greek-American association.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held on the night of March 11.

VAUGHAN'S ASTER SEED FOR FLORISTS

NEW ASTER—Mammoth Non-lateral Branching

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING WHITE. 2 ft. Trade pkt. Oz.
This is without doubt the largest Aster on the market. Many of the flowers will measure four inches in diameter. The plants grow about two feet high with a low branching habit, and the flowers which are borne on non-lateral stems are full, with petals curled and incurved, making the flowers appear like a cross between an Ostrich Feather and a Giant Branching. 1/2 oz., $1.00 $0.35

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING BLUE. 2 ft.
Very like the preceding except the flowers are a medium shade of blue 1/2 oz., $1.00 .35

10 Per Cent cash discount, on orders of $2.00 or over, when cash accompanies order. Florists' catalog is now being mailed.

AMERICAN BEAUTY

2 1/2 ft. Is similar in type of flower and growth to the well-known Late Branching Asters, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. It is the first of a new strain of late branching habit, and of robust growth. The flowers are fully double to the last and are a most lovely shade of bright carmine-rose. 1/4 oz., 50c .25 2.00

OTHER AMERICAN ASTERS

LAVENDER GEM. The flowers are of a true lavender shade and the petals are gracefully curled and twisted, and the blooms are borne on long stems.25 2.20

PEERLESS PINK. The flowers are enormous, globular in shape, of a most delightful and pleasing rich shell pink. First flowers appear about the middle of August, but the plant is at its zenith about four weeks later.20 1.20

CRIMSON GIANT. This shade has been one which has seemed to lack intensity of color, but in this variety the blood red blossom is particularly bright.20 1.20

SENSATION. The reddest of all red asters, the color being a dark rich garnet or ox-blood red, which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal.25 2.00

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Belgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have again advanced slightly this week.

RAIN is again falling in the garden seed growing districts of California, March 6.

THE LEONARD SEED CO., Chicago, says this year's business opened with a rush, which still continues.

A. T. FERRELL, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., and family are spending the month at Belleair, Fla.

THE growing of contract garden seed is increasing materially in Idaho and Colorado, as well as in Washington.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Greil Bros. are reported doing the largest general seed jobbing business in this part of the state.

NEW YORK.—Vaughan's Seed Store reports business opened up much earlier than last year, with sales larger, and more of them.

FLORIDA local seedsmen report dealers quoted wholesale prices the last week in February on Refugee and Black Valentine beans at 35 cents per pound.

FLORAL PARK, N. Y.—John Lewis Childs, Inc., reports business booming this spring as never before. February sales were 80 per cent above those of last year.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade March 6 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.25 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $21.00 to $29.00 per 100 pounds.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The J. Steckler Seed Co., Ltd., says that in its long experience it has never had such an early spring business, with volume considerably surpassing previous years.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Wm. Henry Maule Co. reports that, despite many shortages in the vegetable line, and prices considerably advanced, business has opened up in good shape and is running ahead of the corresponding period last year.

LOMPOC, CALIF.—It is reported that the government last month commandeered the beans stored in the warehouses here, with the exception of those held for stock seed purposes, paying 11½ cents for the small whites and 8 cents for the pink beans, and that a company of soldiers is on the scene guarding the beans.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—The Henry Field Seed Co. is well pleased with the business received so far, both in number of orders and their increased size, and looks forward to an enormous trade during March, one-third of its business being ordinarily transacted during that month. The total sales, including those of February 28, show 79,252 orders, as compared with 52,423 for the same date last year, with receipts about $586,000, as against $198,000 in 1917.

Parcel Post Weight Ruling.

W. F. Therkildson, chairman postal laws committee of the American Seed Trade Association, calls attention to the ruling of Postmaster General Burleson, effective March 15, as follows:

"Packages when mailed in the first or second zones for delivery in the first, second or third zones, may hereafter be as heavy as 70 pounds." The weight at present is restricted to 50 pounds. Under the new ruling, the weight limit for all other zones has been increased from 20 to 50 pounds, which will help greatly to relieve the express congestion and be of great benefit to seedsmen.

Seed Movement By Express Companies.

That field and garden seed may be forwarded by express in many cases is indicated by inquiries among the large express companies made through the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture. None of the companies has established embargoes against seed shipments and they say that they are prepared to cooperate fully in moving field and garden seed, giving them preferred attention wherever the necessity exists. One company has established a weight limit of 500 pounds for shipments of any commodity, but is willing to accept all seed in packages weighing less than this limit.

Seed Corn Situation in Ohio Discouraging.

As the planting season draws near, the seed corn situation throughout Ohio remains discouraging. Out of 300 germination tests recently made at the state university experimental station, it was found that but 15 per cent of the corn tested will grow. The Livingston Seed Company, Columbus, estimates that the seed shortage in central Ohio will be about 30 per cent. The acreage represented by this slump will be largely devoted to oats. It quotes seed corn at $8 to $15 per bushel, but has practically none for sale at present, except ensilage, which brings $5. First-quality clover seed is also near the famine stage, owing to buck-corn getting widely mixed with it at the last harvest. A number of garden seeds, the company states, will also be short. J.

Mrs. Denaiffe Held as German Hostage.

Mrs. Henry Denaiffe, wife of Henry Denaiffe, senior of Denaiffe & Son, seed growers, Carignan, Northern France, was recently arrested at Carignan and is now confined as a hostage in prison at Holzmiden in the Harz mountains in Germany. Mrs. Denaiffe, a slight-built, slender, frail lady, aged 47, moves in the highest social circles in France. Her husband is president of the Northern France Citizens' Relief Commission, an organization acting in conjunction with the Belgian Relief Commission which was organized by Herbert Hoover. They have two children, a son, Maurice, aged 29, and a daughter, Mrs. John Colle, aged 23, whose husband, an officer in the French army, was wounded and taken prisoner in one of the first battles of the war, and is still confined in Germany. These children are now living at La Menitre, 100 miles from Paris.

The night before the Germans captured Carignan, in 1914, the father, Henry, sent both girl wives, his daughter and Maurice's wife, with their babies to Paris. Mrs. Denaiffe, the mother, had refused to accompany them, having deemed it her duty to stay by her husband's side through thick or thin.

As known, the Denaiffe's have two establishments, the main and most extensive one, with general offices, warehouses, three farms and homes of the proprietors at Carignan, and a smaller establishment at La Menitre, Central France, where Maurice, the son, has since the war been conducting the growing of seeds for the trade.

C. J.

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

Mr. Kirby, of I. N. Simon & Son, remarks that bad weather conditions affect seed crops differently, particularly when there is a good demand. Those grown under contract appear to suffer much more than other blocks of the same varieties raised for the open market.

The Henry F. Michell Co. increased their store force, March 2, by over 60 additional employees. Each day is bringing increased business, entailing night work, which will be necessary until the spring business is over.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., are very busy, the counter trade setting in strong. All the newspaper articles are advising early purchase of seeds, and from present appearances the rush of last season will be duplicated.

Canadian Seeds Offered for Sale.

The Canadian Seed Growers' Association has issued a catalogue of registered and improved seeds produced in 1917 and offered for sale, included in the list being potatoes, corn, beans, peas, wheat, oats and barley. The name and address of the grower, the number of bushels available, variety, price, per cent of germination and quality of sample are included in the information. Jas. W. Robertson is president and L. H. Newman secretary-treasurer of the association with headquarters in the Canadian building, Ottawa, Ont. The association has also issued its thirteenth annual report containing the minutes of the annual meeting.

MIAMI, FLA.—Freezes of this year and last are reported to have wiped out the pineapple industry in this vicinity.

Chicago, March 4.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per carton; lettuce, box, 20 to 22½ cents; radishes, 35 to 50 cents per dozen bunches; celery, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; tomatoes, per 6 baskets, $5.00 to $5.50; cucumbers, per box, $2 to $3.

New York, March 4.—Celery, dozen stalks, 20 to 50 cents; cucumbers, $1 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 80 cents to $1.80 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2 to $4.

Tomatoes Under Glass.

Way & Bro., Kennett Square, Pa., have 35,000 feet of glass in tomatoes, which are forced the year round. The season may be said to commence in early August, when plants brought to a good size in frames outside, are planted on the tables in the houses. Young plants if grown in pots should never be allowed to get potbound as such stock does not get away quickly when planted. They are set 24 inches apart in four rows to a five foot, four inch wide bench. As the vines grow all laterals are pinched off. After the first fruit has set, the vines are turned down and run lengthwise of the rows, about a foot above the bed. The main shoot then makes another upward growth, which is again turned down. These vines attain a length of 10-12 feet. Mr. Way said it was much easier to pollonize the blossoms, which is done with a light brush or rope end or anything handy. The crop averaged about four pounds to a plant by March 1. About eight to ten pounds was a good average for the season. If every plant did its best as much as 14 pounds average was possible; 60° is the best temperature at night. Watering has to be done carefully, as they must not be allowed to get too wet.

Ground beds were not profitable, producing too much growth and not enough fruit. They were also able to utilize the space underneath the tables for mushrooms which made a good side line.

Tomatoes are subject to a disease called blight or wilt, which causes the plants to wilt and wither away. It affects them in all stages of growth; sometimes goes over a whole house. There is at present no remedy. Some of the government experts believe it to be a bacterial disease, and hope soon to be able to combat it. Affected plants are thrown and new stock set out in the same soil immediately after will take hold and grow vigorously without showing a trace of the disease.

There is a good demand for the best fruit in the Philadelphia and New York markets at all seasons, although they try to avoid the southern competition. They had grown carnations, but on account of the continuous all the year round production of the tomatoes had found them more profitable.

Rhubarb.

Rhubarb has been a very important market garden crop in the vicinity of Columbus, O., for years, many growers specializing in this plant. What the condition will be like in the near future it would be hard to foretell. On one hand we have a practical famine of manure, hampering production, and on the other, a scarcity and high cost of sugar, thus limiting consumption. As practiced here this crop calls for an enormous amount of manure. From the start, when the one-eye or two-eye divisions are planted out in 3-foot rows, they demand rich land, and every winter they are heavily top-dressed with cow manure. As soon as old enough for pulling, generally the third year, this manure is heaped over the crowns in March to protect the stalks from frost and to bleach the stem. As the season advances and the purpose is over, this manure remains for a mulch. This annual application of manure will mean a big expense under present conditions, and prices must double to offset cost of production.

To force rhubarb, generally old beds are dug up or plowed up in the fall and the roots closely packed into cold frames and covered with soil. They are allowed to freeze in December, as a good freezing is necessary to early forcing. Towards Christmas these beds are covered with old sash and then with boards and banked heavily with fresh horse manure—sides, ends, top and all—to induce heating. This steady heat will draw out the stalks in a month or six weeks, and when well done this method produces good results. When over with, the roots are discarded and the manure rebuilt for hot beds for plant production.

Another form of forcing is under greenhouse benches or in cellars. Darkness is necessary to produce long, bleached stems and no leaf growth. Any light will expand the foliage at expense of stem. A desirable temperature is anything between 40 and 60 degrees. If too warm, the stems will develop rapidly and too thin. More heat is needed early in the winter to arouse the dormant roots into action than later in the winter or early spring, when anything above freezing will produce the crop. We have never favored the production of roots for forcing only, as the cost is too great, but in a regular garden business each year an old patch can be plowed up and forced, replanting a new one every spring. This is good practice. Our market favors the red rhubarb, which forces with a beautiful pink color. The green variety is not liked. Propagation is by division of selected strains, as seeds are very unreliable, producing many thin and worthless plants.

MARKETMAN.

Cucumber Seed Treatment.

Tests made during the past two years have proved that the angular leaf spot disease of cucumbers, and probably anthracnose as well, are introduced into new fields on the seed, says the United States department of agriculture. Dipping the seed in a 1/1,000 mercuric chloride (corrosive sublimate) solution for five minutes renders the seed disease-free and has no injurious effect on germination.

Metal containers cannot be used for the solution, the highly poisonous nature of which should be kept in mind. Purchase mercuric chloride on the basis of one pound to every 500 pounds of seed to be treated. Make up a concentrated stock solution of a strength of 1/20 by dissolving one pound in two and one-half gallons of water. This stock solution is diluted to 1/1,000 by adding one quart to twelve and one-quarter gallons of water. Stir thoroughly. For the treatment use a barrel, wooden tub, or large crock. Place the seed in burlap or cheesecloth bags, 50 pounds in each bag, which should not be over three-quarters full to allow for swelling and to facilitate stirring. Immerse in twelve and one-half gallons of the 1/1,000 bichloride solution and agitate vigorously with a stick to secure thorough wetting of the seed, removing promptly at the end of five minutes. Immerse at once in a barrel of running water and stir thoroughly. Wash about 15 minutes and dry as rapidly as possible. Forced drying is much to be desired. The bichloride solution should be used only once since its strength is greatly decreased.

Guard against reinfection of the treated seed. Bags to be used for treated seed should be soaked in the 1/1,000 bichloride solution for at least five minutes, rinsed and dried. Solution used once for seed may be used for this purpose.

DREER'S GRAND NEW CANNAS FOR 1918

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 75 cts. each; \$7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft. 75 cts. each.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 15 cts. each; \$1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 25 cts. each; \$2.50 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Mrs. Sarah Charlton, widow of the late John Charlton, veteran nurseryman, died at her home in this city, February 27.

DES MOINES, IA.—Alfred Hammer has purchased the stock of the Watrous Nursery Co., at a district court sale, the consideration being $20,000.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—The Blooming-ton Nurseries Co. has been given authority to sell $200,000 of preferred stock. It is licensed under the recent "blue sky" laws of the state, intended to prevent fraud in the disposition of stock, bonds, etc., offered for sale in Illinois.

DENVER, COLO.—W. J. Morrill, state forester, has secured 5,000 western yellow pine and the same number of jack pine, from 10 to 12 inches high, which are offered to residents of the state at one cent each, in lots of 25 or more, with the provision that they report annually for a number of years the result of the planting.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The twelfth annual meeting of the above association was held at Hartford, February 19, President Baker in the chair, and proved a very interesting session. The report of the treasurer showed the finances of the organization to be in a very satisfactory condition. W. A. Wright and C. B. Franklin were elected members of the association. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: F. S. Baker, Cheshire, president; C. F. Brainerd, Thompsonville, vice-president; F. L. Thomas, Meriden, secretary; W. W. Hunt, Hartford, treasurer. President Baker appointed the following committees for 1918: Legislative—C. F. Brainerd, Thompsonville, chairman; Stephen Hoyt and John R. Barnes. Executive—W. W. McCartney, New Haven, chairman; John R. Barnes and W. W. Hunt. Entertainment—P. M. Hubbard, Bristol, chairman; W. E. Campbell and E. A. Brassill. Publicity—W. E. Campbell, New Haven, chairman; H. W. Gottschalk and G. H. Hollister.

Among the excellent features of the well balanced programme was an illustrated lecture by Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist, on "Bugs and Insects" and papers by John R. Barnes on "Food Crops We Can Grow"; "Labor Saving Devices," by W. W. McCartney; "The Blister Rust," by W. O. Filley, state forester; "Market Gardening by Subscription," by F. B. Kelley.

The question of prohibiting the importation of nursery stock was discussed and the secretary directed to write the Connecticut Representatives in Congress that the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association do not approve of the "Weeks Bill" and wish them to use their influence in Congress to prevent its passage.

A letter of thanks was voted to Secretary Curtis Nye Smith of The American Association of Nurserymen on the good work he had done in connection with the transportation problem.

W. O. Filley invited the association to hold its summer outing at one of the forester's camps. The matter of time and place, however, was left in the hands of the entertainment committee.

BUSINESS NOT AFFECTED BY LENT.

Fine spring weather has brought in a large quantity of flowers of all kinds. Outdoors the jonquils are blooming and violets are coming in profusely. Carnations are received in generous quantities and the quality is fine, all the growers having all they can handle. Bermuda lilies are plentiful and are used in quantities in funeral work, of which there is always a goodly amount. There are none too many roses. American Beauty is not available, and its place is being taken by Russell and Ophelia, with the Killarneys helping out. Sweet peas are very good. In blooming plants there is a great abundance of tulips, Dutch hyacinths, jonquils, cinerarias and primulas. The demand continues good in all lines with prices satisfactory and slightly in advance of former weeks. The Lenten season seems to make very little difference in the sale of flowers, as there has been a slacking up in social events all through the season. Complimentary boxes and hospital orders serve to consume the daily supply. M. C. D.

CANADIAN FLORISTS OPTIMISTIC.

Trade Recovers From Early War Conditions with Business Confidence Unwavering.

Energy and Trust Bound to Win.

Across the border, our Canadian brothers have been experiencing most of the horrors of this great war for the past four years. They have given freely of their wealth, as they have been called on again and again, to the Red Cross and for the destitute Belgians and distressed of other countries whose lands have been made desolate in this great conflict. Their young men have gone over by the hundreds of thousands, many of them never to return. War loan and Victory Bond subscriptions run into billions, and the call is for still greater additions to all these forces. With all this great and almost continuous demand on the resources of the people, one would wonder if there was a dollar left for anything but the actual keeping of body and soul together.

As a comparison to the actual conditions existing after their great trials of the past four years, and to give courage and words of cheer to those who in this the richest and most prosperous country in the world are looking to the future with fear and trepidation, the following letters are here presented from representative firms, which have passed through and been called upon to surmount difficulties far greater than any that can be looked forward to here. The optimistic tone and the fighting spirit, as expressed in all of these communications, particularly the fact that the people of the various communities find flowers are no longer considered a luxury, but a necessity, should encourage the doubting ones here to stand by their guns and fight their way through to the victories of better times.

London Getting Back to Normal.

"It appears that you are now experiencing what we did the first few months of the war. Everybody in the business was more or less panic-stricken. We would say, that the first few months' business did fall off considerably, owing principally to the fact that manufacturers laid off large numbers of their employees. Toward spring, however, munition and other factories were taking on everybody they could get and business soon came back to normal. We will add, however, that during the years of 1915 and 1916 there were a large number of soldiers in training here, and as most of them were from the best families of the surrounding country, they spent their money liberally. By the end of 1916 most of these men had gone overseas, and again we noticed a falling off in our sales. Also, a decided change in the stock that was called for, depending almost altogether on funeral work and such plants and cut flowers as the working classes, who were making good wages, could buy.

"In addition to the effects of the war, we have had adverse weather conditions to contend with. This, with the increased cost of fuel, now between $8 and $9 per ton for soft coal, has this effect on the business, that, while we are selling practically what is coming in, the cost of producing and handling has increased to such an extent, without any increase in sales, that the profits are wiped out for the time being at least.

"There are other conditions which also have had their effect on the florist business. This little city, London, with between 50,000 and 60,000 people, has done its share in patriotic and Red Cross contributions, and also the war loan and Victory Bonds; in all, during the three years, the sum totaling nearly $15,000,000. Six thousand men have also donned the khaki, and most of these are now in England and France. When we take all these things into consideration, we feel that we are not too badly off."

W. W. GAMMAGE.

Ottawa Winning Hard Fight.

"My knowledge of trade conditions is confined mostly to Ottawa during the war. Business has been very fair and our holidays have generally kept up to normal, even until the end of 1917. We are looking forward to a good Easter, but of course we shall be handicapped by the absence of the Holland and Belgian stock, of which we have none. The demand for funeral orders continues up to the usual standard. Subjoined are some notes I have used with regard to the 'heatless campaign,' that is, the matter in our local papers.

"Our sales of bedding plants and for summer planting have hardly suffered any, and owing to the high price of flowers, plants are generally in better demand than before the war. The noticeable falling off is for social functions. There is but little doing in receptions of a festive nature, calling for flowers. What there are, partake of a patriotic nature, in which some flowers are needed, but the poor florist is expected to donate them. The public have taken the higher prices of cut flowers, etc., in very good part, but have bought less, and certainly this winter there have been less to buy.

"Many concerns have closed down, and there are quite a few, due to the shortage of fuel and scarcity of labor, and we are living from day to day, not knowing whether we will be able to get coal. Then the price is so high, in many cases double, and the weather has been the coldest and hardest for firing I have ever known, causing an increase of 40 per cent in material, and anything like skilled labor is impossible to get. All these drawbacks seem to be very disheartening, but not so bad as we first think them, and there are some things most encouraging. We hope, during the coming year, our Uncle Sam will come out of the drawback that he has been up against in having to supply such an enormous demand for coal for the war and home consumption at such short notice, and will be able to furnish the same at lower figures and in larger quantities. Perhaps I am too optimistic, but I think that when the American army, with all its equipment, gets fairly launched in Europe, the end will be getting near. Another pleasing condition is that we shall have learned to depend on ourselves for supply, instead of Europe. There is much more profit in growing plants, instead of buying and paying others for the growing. But the most cheerful point is, that we have justified our calling with the public since the war began. There have been murmurs that ours is only a business in luxuries, but the patronage generally has been good, and even insistent, for flowers, at times. It has given us the feeling that in many branches, our business is a public necessity, and although we may pass through a year or two in which it will require energy and confidence to make ends meet, we shall emerge from the fight stronger than ever and of larger commercial importance. Optimism is bound to win.

"One of the annoying incidents in connection with the heatless days was the position at Scrim's the Florist, who had to put up with some abuse for obeying the law. As it happened, there were quite a few prominent deaths in Ottawa and vicinity and on Saturday morning the telephone started to ring, giving orders for funeral work, and continued during the day. When told that we were not allowed to sell flowers, we had some very heated remarks, telling us that they were for a funeral and they must have them, and we had to ask them if they were willing to pay our fine of 100 dollars, if we complied, which of course closed the argument. We received many orders from out of town, and we found it extremely hard to convince our patrons that funeral flowers were included in the ban. One man sarcastically asked if caskets were included in the order. A lady, who wanted a wreath for a child, when told we could not make it up, almost implied that the funeral would have to be postponed. The soldiers at the camp also begged hard for something to take to the funeral of one of their comrades. However, I think all the florists religiously complied with the law and sold nothing.

"Although it was impossible to save coal and keep the plants alive in the greenhouse, they have the satisfaction of knowing that they sacrificed hundreds of dollars in obeying the 'win the war' mandate, and what is more, they have found out the high standard the florist business takes with the general public, for instead of being only considered a luxury, some of its branches are considered a public necessity.

E. J. MEPSTED.

Toronto Weathers the Storm.

"Since the commencement of war, three and one-half years ago, we too, were very apprehensive at the start, and had all manner of forebodings and fears for the future, if the conflict should last a year, but here we are, after nearly four years, and there has not been one Toronto florist who has not been able to weather the gale, either grower or retailer. Of course, there has been a complete change in the nature of the business. We have no decorations or occasions when a lavish display of flowers is made. True, none are retiring on the immense profits of their business, but I think all are thankful that they can keep their business intact and are not forced to make assignment. This year, with the severity of the weather, shortage of fuel and its high price, has been more harmful and caused more pessimism than the previous years of war, but I hope that it may be many years before we experience another such winter. Of course, this has accentuated the conditions and made it very difficult to operate. Then again, labor is scarce and difficult to obtain, demanding high wages.

The retail trade is confined principally to design work and flowers for hospitals. The latter has developed to large proportions, and this part will not be felt in the United States until soldiers are sent home after the early engagements and are convalescing.

AZALEA AMOENA.

Pot Decorated with White and Pink Paper and Bunch of Short Pussy Willows.

Then there will be quite an impetus to retail trade.

"I do not feel, from our experience, that there is anything to be alarmed at. Florists will have to learn that trade will right itself, and it will take a little time. Those who have had a large and lucrative trade, especially in decorations, will most likely feel the pinch more than the man who has been doing a nice steady trade and has not tasted of the benefits of fancy trade and elaborate decorations where large sums of money are involved.

"I am giving this information from my own experience. It may not fit the particular conditions of some, but it is as we feel it today. As growers, we have the uncertainty of fuel supply, high cost of same when procurable, labor 30 to 40 per cent higher, all commodities that we use 50 to 100 per cent higher, and no more for our product. I am calling a meeting of growers in the near future to exchange ideas and experiences and hope to evolve something for the future welfare of our trade." JOHN H. DUNLOP.

Montreal in Fight to Win.

"I have 'talked blue' for three years, but now I am an optimist and am going to stay that way until I die. We in North America are in the finest, freest country in the world, but we are just commencing to find it out. We would like to say though, that at Christmas and Easter trade dropped off immensely. Last Christmas things were very bad before the holiday—so bad, that a couple of stores to whom we sell some of our cyclamens, got cold feet and canceled half their order. But the Christmas spirit prevailed, and we sold everything fit to sell—in plants. Cut flowers were too high priced. We were highly encouraged, and since that we have been very busy, but all in floral work and sickroom gifts—no balls, no teas, no wedding decorations and very few wedding bouquets.

"Stock will be scarce for Easter; that is, lilies, ramblers, etc. When stock is scarce, we do better. Now there is the other florist, located in a busy district, with a very small store, no designers on the place, no one able to arrange a nice basket. Still they are doing a big business selling to munition workers, who are getting big pay. Florists like this are doing well, and are giving the supply men good orders. We can buy cattleyas very cheap; also daffodils at 2½ cents and tulips at 3 cents. Greens are very scarce, as are also roses.

"When I get disgusted in the store, I go home and look over the lilies—1,000 six-inch pots, just right for Easter. 700 Ramblers and hybrids, Marguerites and odds and ends, but no bulbs. Our bulbs arrived in December and we refused them. On the whole, we have everything to be thankful for—all in good health and plenty of fight in us yet.

"I would say that a florist, who before the war was just making a living, should close up for the present, but those who can afford to lose a little, should stick. But any man who thinks that the florist business can go on and pay fairly well during war times, is mistaken. Reduce expenses—reduce—and get on a fighting basis, and then fight until you win. That's what we are doing and that's what you should do, and that's what you will have to do. I do not know that you will be able to make any sense out of this, but remember that we are just one of the little florists who try to do things nice and put up a square deal. There are others in Montreal doing a very much bigger business, but they tell me themselves, that business is bad." HALL & ROBINSON.

The Birds.

The bill enabling the migratory bird treaty with Great Britain has already passed the United States senate and has been favorably acted upon by the House committee on foreign affairs. There are some matters that are much talked about by florists and gardeners that are of less consequence than the protection of the birds. It has been abundantly proved that wherever bird life has been ruthlessly destroyed, the increase of destructive insects and vermin has been proportionate. If this measure passes the House, and receives executive sanction, as now seems likely, the migratory birds will be protected in their flights through the United States and Canada, shooting seasons will be regulated under federal law, and with the co-operation of state authorities.

Under conflicting state laws, birds, let us say for example, may be protected in New York, but be shot if they fly over into Connecticut. That many, both game and non-game birds are destroyers of insects is well known, but that consideration is of no account to many of the gentlemen who seem to have been born with the unfortunate propensity to kill something, though we must acknowledge that along other lines, some of them are great and useful men. It is fair to state, that the idea for this law originated with the American Game Protective Association and has had the active support of the National Association of Audubon Societies. We can learn valuable lessons from the birds and their coming in spring, is to many, a joyful sight. William Cullen Bryant, in his poem: "To A Waterfowl," has left a beautiful sentiment:

"He who from zone to zone,
Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone,
Will lead my steps aright." A. F. F.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

The Easter Outlook.

The crowning event, the realization of the year's work, the result of many months of labor and anxiety, is found in the great Easter demand. Everywhere in this broad land, flower lovers gather at the Easter festival, to admire, carry away and exchange greetings to friends with plants and flowers. It is the principal harvest of the year, its measure of success to each individual being in keeping with the zeal, progressive energy and enthusiasm that he puts into it.

The grower lays his plans for the campaign a year in advance. Stock that sold well, is increased, while other lines are dropped. Skillful growers, who, by their judgment in the selection of popular plants, as shown by the tendencies of the market, and their ability to work them in with and after earlier crops, so as to make the greatest intensive use of their greenhouse space, find Easter their most profitable season. War conditions have this year completely upset the old order of procedure. Azaleas, which have been such a factor at this season, will only be seen in left over stock. Spiræas, which were also a quantity plant and great favorites, will also be missing, neither of these plants coming from abroad this season. There will be an abundance of bulbous stock, such as hyacinths, tulips and narcissi. With the exception of these Holland products, all the plants will be American grown, and it remains to be seen how they will be able to supply the demand. Although the date is one of the earliest on which this festival can fall, there promises to be a good showing of hydrangeas, which many growers find difficult to get in flower before the middle of April. The new French varieties appear, however, to come along a trifle faster than the old Otaksa. There is great variety in form and color and they take up or can be "blued" quite easily. A number of light and dark shades of pink and beautiful whites are also included.

Rambler roses will always hold a strong position on the Easter list. When well flowered, there is no plant more popular. In the smaller sizes, they are especially useful in plant baskets. The Tausendschon can be easily flowered for the early Easter, while Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, Excelsa and Crimson Rambler require careful handling to get them in full flower by the last week in March. The baby rambler type all force easily and are great favorites.

Easter Greeting pelargonium is a showy plant that generally sells well. The flowers shake easily, which tendency is overcome by a tiny drop or touch of mucilage in the center of each flower, applied with a small stick.

The longiflorum will always hold its place as the greatest of Easter plants; in fact, it retains its name of Easter lily the year round. Either in single or made-up combinations it is the ideal Easter plant.

Lily of the valley clumps or made-up pots of 18 to 24 pips are always in good demand. There is a chaste or refined appearance to their lively little spikes that exists in no other flower. Well flowered gardenias are always in favor, particularly when there is also a good showing of buds.

The bougainvillea is one of the old favorites; it is most striking with its cloud of purplish blossoms. Some growers trim this into close formal shapes that are so covered with flowers as to almost hide the foliage.

There is no more popular plant than the genista. To get the best results, it requires to be well cut back, so as to produce a sturdy growth of well ripened wood, which carries quantities of its yellow plummy flowers. Standards with globular heads are very striking.

Small Baby Rambler in Pot.

Trimmed with White and Pink Paper and Pussy Willows.

The fancy acacias and heather, which, as a rule, are grown by specialists, are high class stock, very beautiful and in good demand by those who cater to an exclusive trade. Well flowered cinerarias are also good stock, in great demand for those who want a plant at a moderate price.

Hyacinths, tulips and daffodils in pots and pans are sure to be found in almost every Easter collection. Their brilliant coloring and spring-like appearance, together with their moderate price, makes them very good stock to carry.

Marguerites, when well flowered, are sure to attract attention. Some growers do them exceptionally well.

The yellow primulas, which came into the market a couple of years ago, are striking. Their various shades of yellow and quantity of bloom make them very desirable in the Easter display. Pansies, forget-me-nots and English daisies in pans are, when well flowered, always in demand.

The demand for made-up or combination pots or tubs and plant baskets of fancy ferns and other foliage plants, in connection with flowering stock, arranged so as to get good color effects, has encouraged the growth of plants of this character in medium sizes to a considerable extent. Highly colored crotons, a number of the brilliant and variegated dracenas, pandanus, and varieties of the fancy ferns, particularly the free growing form of Farleyense, the Glory fern, are the most popular. Many of these fancy creations are made up by the growers, who find in these combinations an outlet for much stock, not quite perfect enough to be sold individually. Store men send inside tins from baskets, which when filled for a week or 10 days before delivery, get set and are then in a much better condition than if arranged hurriedly at the store.

Easter in the Store.

The annual spring floral holiday is rapidly approaching, too fast indeed for the man who is not yet ready. The foresighted merchant, however, who laid his plans months ago in accordance with his last year's experience, is eagerly looking forward, confident and sure as to the result of the business of this harvest season. There is yet time, however, to catch up and smooth the way for an easier running of the machinery when the rush comes.

If the stock has not all been ordered, this important matter should be seen to at once. Make out a list with last year's record as a guide. Carry out the prices and determine just how much of this or that you will buy. When, in going about, the limit has been reached, stop right there. Additional stock may look very good, and you think you might sell it, but the total has been reached and to go farther is dangerous. Do not buy anything but good stock; every plant should be salable. Avoid, also, too many high-priced plants—the medium sizes are the quick sellers.

Select the new baskets and hampers you intend to buy at once; have them on hand by March 20 or before Palm Sunday at the very latest. Send these to your grower and have them filled and kept for a week in the greenhouse. If he cannot do this, get the plants together there and have them filled by the store force the week before, or on Palm Sunday. This preparation greatly relieves the night work and strain in the rush days toward the last.

There is always considerable shipping of out-of-town orders. Crated boxes should be made ready. These will greatly expedite matters when it comes to making certain trains. See that there is a supply of good-sized corrugated boxes for large designs. Frequently these are found to be all out at the last minute. Tags and tag envelopes should also be in stock; also, order sheets, visiting or cards for customers. All this stationery is apt to run out at just the time when it is most needed.

Wreaths and crosses are in good demand for cemetery decoration. A good stock of these should be mossed up now, which saves valuable time and night work later on. Look up the matter of extra help. Have them on hand a day or two before the business starts to get broken in. They are much more useful when they know the ropes.

Paper and mat covers to fit standard sized pots and pans can be made ready. A variety of these necessary ornaments on hand is a great help. Fibre ribbon and tasseled cords are inexpensive, but make a nice finish to a pot covering.

The arrangement of the stock in the store is important. It is well to, as far as possible, keep each variety of plant together in blocks of color; they are much more effective than when the colors are mixed. Choice specimens, always well decorated, should be given prominence.

There should be a good delivery force. As soon as plants are sold and properly tagged they should be removed to the delivery or storage department to be sent at once or later as ordered. There should be men who the pot, it should be tied with a narrow band of fibre or silk ribbon the color of the flower. Tasseled cords are also good for this purpose. Pans of hyacinths or other bulb stock are made to look quite a good deal larger decorated with the white paper with the edges pulled out at the top. A sheet of the same color as the flowers inside the white adds to the color effect.

GO CART OF SWEETHEART ROSES.

do nothing else but keep the floor clear of such orders. A vacant store, conveniently near, makes an annex from which deliveries can be made, relieving much confusion in the store. Three-inch bands of sheet cotton or paper will do to wrap together the buds and flowers of the lily stalks. A rubber band is a quick binding. This protection is well worth while and saves many a dollar.

Watering is very important. No plant should go out dry. Over night in a warm room will finish a hydrangea or rambler rose unless it has been well saturated. Loss or dissatisfaction is avoided by close attention to this detail. Delivery baskets or boxes to hold two or more plants that are to go with messengers or in the car should be provided. They greatly expedite delivery. Boys should be instructed to call the store in case of errors in address, as frequently the matter can be adjusted at the time.

DECORATION OF PLANTS.

There are many plants that are made to look attractive and more salable with but little touches of contrasting ribbons, chiffons, etc., and pot or tub coverings of crepe or varicolored papers and mats. Fresh green sprays of laurel and pussy willows are also useful. A rhododendron may have beautiful clusters of bloom at the top, but an unsightly stem. A few good branches of laurel with some pussy willow sprays stuck in the pot will relieve this bareness, while a ribbon bow will give a touch of color and fill in a defective side or bare space in the plant. A light blue silk ribbon gives an added beauty to a well-flowered Tausendschon; also, a Pink Pearl rhododendron. A Scotch plaid ribbon helps a pot of heather. A fluffy bow of light green chiffon looks well on the genista. When the pot covering is white paper drawn up around

The Stork.

This feathered carrier is untiring, being on the go day and night, week in and week out throughout the year. Little strangers are constantly arriving, in whose advent many are interested.

Here is a field or opening for business that but few of the trade cater to. Congratulations and messages of felicity to the happy parents always follow such events. At such times, there is no more appropriate message than to "Say It With Flowers." This feature can be worked up to be quite a factor if florists will give it the necessary thought and attention and present the idea by frequent displays of suitable floral arrangements in the window and store. All the supply houses are going after this business, each season bringing out something new in this line. Cradles, cribs, go-carts, storks with vases for flowers, and even more elaborate miniature folding screens surrounding a cradle, with vases for flowers, as shown in one of the accompanying illustrations, is the latest idea. Small baskets, filled with miniature roses, tied with narrow baby ribbons are appropriate. Boxes filled with baby's clothing, are tied on the outside with flowers and dainty ribbons.

All accessories suitable to be filled with flowers for these events should be kept together and well displayed in the store so as to accustom visitors to them. Births more than keep pace with those who pass away. The furnishing of flowers for the latter events is vital to the business, as half the stores would close were it not for this demand. There is no doubt but the honoring of the mothers of the race with flowers at this joyous time is a custom that is increasing and should be helped along by the heartiest co-operation of the trade.

The accompanying illustrations do not show much in the way of profit, but they are suggestions to attract attention and help to spread the gospel of "Say It With Flowers." Very likely most of the orders will be for a dozen roses or a box of choice flowers, or a flowering plant. The little cradle of sweetheart roses, when displayed, will however earn far more than its cost in the suggestion it gives and the new business that is brought in by its propaganda.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Roses are now scarce, which gives an opportunity to make sales on spring flowers. Tulips and daffodils are now at their best and should be kept well to the front. Fill up some of the shallow bowls with these and Sweet peas are now at their best and are to be had in quantity lots at low prices. Small blue, or blue and white-toned baskets, are very effective when filled with pink sweet peas. With a pink or blue ribbon on the handle, they are very fetching. They should go off like hot cakes. Small baskets of fruit with flowers, in tubes of water to one side and over the handle, are unique and sure to attract attention and quite frequently buyers.

Now that green is so scarce, three-inch pots of adiantum or Asparagus plumosus can be washed out, the roots trimmed, and used in made-up work. Wrap a little wet sphagnum around the roots and tie with string or wrap in foil. A plant or two treated this way are nice for boxes of cut flowers.

Run a special on cattleyas. They have never been so plentiful as this season. Choice flowers can be sold for 50 cents each at a good profit. Quite a number of the trade have found this flower a good leader.

Do not forget that Easter is only three weeks away, and everything that can be done now to relieve the strain of the last few busy days should by all means be attended to at once.

When you are out buying stock, do not overlook the yellow primrose. It is almost a novelty. You will find it one of the best sellers.

Give two or three dozen 10-inch fern pans to your pansy grower. Have them filled with the most forward plants and set aside for Easter. They are good stock when full of blossoms.

How about that subscription to the national publicity fund? The $50,000 mark is still a long way off, mainly because you and many of your neighbors are not on the job. No money you put out will bring greater returns. Send to Secretary John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York, for a prospectus and sample advertising matter. Send your little $5 or $10 along at the same time.

SMALL WOODEN CRADLE.

Sweetheart Roses and Forget-me-nots Used in the Arrangement.

St. Patrick's Day.

The seventeenth of March is the birthday of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, who drove out the snakes and otherwise exerted his influence for the betterment of the tight little isle. A very attractive window display featuring this occasion is sure to attract attention. While it is not in any sense a floral holiday, yet there are a number of public society and club dinners, and also home entertainments that are worth catering to.

There are a number of conceits, such as small high hats filled with growing shamrocks, clay pipes, small wheelbarrows, mortar and brick hods with the same. Miniature harps, with shamrocks at the base, are attractive. Shamrocks in various sized pots and some fashioned after the clover leaf are good stock to carry. Good sized potatoes with a portion hollowed out to admit a plant of shamrock, and tied with a green ribbon are unique and find a ready sale. The green carnation appears to belong to the day. Good, fresh stock, picked and sent in before being placed in water is best. If placed over night in water, not too heavily greened, they will take on a very good color and last quite a while.

Wm. K. Harris, of Philadelphia, Pa., is the champion shamrock grower of the country, raising every year over 60,000 2½-pots under contract for a department store which gives them away to its customers during the week before St. Patrick's day.

A display with Irish flags, a good sized harp made of separate leucothoe leaves, with green miniature electric lights, is showy and conspicuous for the window.

pussy willows; they will sell if you put something artistic in the finish. One man has to show you the point in his funny story, while another keeps you convulsed. It is just the same with arrangements of flowers; the $1 or $1.50 tumbler basket is sold by the hundred in some shops, while they hardly move in others. It's the arrangement, the quantity, quality and display that do the trick.

Coals to Newcastle.

She was from Savannah and he was from New York. They had met at the Plaza, and they loved each other. But she had not been able to stay; she had to go home to her people for the Easter holidays, and he had not been able to follow her.

He wanted to be remembered by her, to keep fresh the memory of the northern lover she had left behind her in New York. He did not dare write. Written words were so cold, lifeless, impersonal. A letter was a leap in the dark. A letter might arrive at the wrong time, be received in the wrong mood, read in the wrong spirit; and he would not be there, and all might be lost.

Yes, he would send her flowers.

Roses were for the stage door, chrysanthemums for curbstome brokers, orchids for pork packers, violets for matrons in Persian lamb coats, sweet peas for Harlem shopgirls, carnations for yokels and negro funerals—he dismissed them one after another. He wanted something more select, more elegant, more courteous. He knew how attentive they were to such matters in the south. Then he thought of gardenias.

What could be more delicate, more gracious, more beautiful than gardenias: firm, luscious gardenias, with their deep green, lustrous leaves; gardenias, with their creamy blushes upon their soft, milk-white faces; gardenias, with their lingering, seductive fragrance. Yes, he would send her gardenias.

Gardenias, he found by inquiring at a florist's shop in upper Fifth Avenue, the very best gardenias, were from $15 to $18 the dozen. He would send her the best gardenias. With beating heart he looked up the name of the foremost florist in Savannah and telegraphed him to deliver $25 worth of the finest gardenias to her home on Easter morning.

Then he waited. He waited for Easter Sunday. He waited for a telegram. Then he waited for a night letter. When that did not arrive, he waited for a special-delivery letter. Two days later he was sure that something dreadful must have happened to her, and wanted to telegraph, but did not dare. The week went by without a word from her.

Two weeks later he received the bill from the florist: "To five barrels of Cape Jasmine (gardenias) and cartage, $25."—Collier's Weekly.

On Time.

Keeping a close watch on the time of deliveries is most important. If Mrs. Smith has been promised her fernery sent home at 4 p. m. and finds when it is time to place it on the table that it is not there, she is naturally provoked and generally says so over the phone.

As evening approaches, there are frequently long distance deliveries of flowers to wear for the theatre. Sufficient time should always be given to allow for delays enroute, as "lady gone" means loss of both money and frequently a good customer.

The Joykiller.

When you are preparing your garden, one of the most prevalent and unpopular killjoys is the unenergetic disciple of unpreparedness, who leans over your fence and discourses on the fact that inasmuch as everybody except a few "wise ones" is making gardens, vegetables will soon be a drug on the market.—Daily News.

The Language of Patches.

A lady advertised for a man to work in her garden, and two men applied for the job. While she was interviewing them on the lawn, she noticed that her mother, on the piazza, was making signs to her to choose the shorter of the two men, which she finally did. When the ladies were alone, the daughter said: "Why did you signal me to choose the shorter man, mother? The other had a much better face." "Face!" returned the old lady. "When you pick out a man to work in your garden, you want to go by his overalls. If they're patched on the knees, you want him; if they're patched on the seat, you don't."—Boston Transcript.

PLANT NOTES.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen grown from seed sown last fall will now be nice, stocky little plants if properly grown and should be large enough to transplant to 2½ or 3-inch pots. The soil should be live fibrous loam with about one-third leaf mold, and in mixing a liberal sprinkling of sand should be included. In potting, the small bulb should be so placed that the soil just covers it; many leave the bulb out of the soil, but best results are obtained with the young stock to leave the bulb in the soil. Later, after the bulb has grown large and mature, this is not so necessary. The plants should be placed in a cool house and if possible near the glass and where they can have all the ventilation possible. Just as soon as safe they should be removed to frames outside and plunged in the soil even with the rim of the pot. The cyclamen will not tolerate poor drainage and if anything happens to block the drainage the plant quickly sickens. This sometimes happens where the pots are sunk in the soil and is often caused by angle worms. Where these are seen or the appearance of lumps on the top of the soil denotes their presence, they should be removed at once. In the final potting, be sure and place plenty of crocks in the bottom of the pot.

Salvias.

There are few more popular plants for bedding purposes than the salvia and when properly grown they are a great ornament to a garden either as beds by themselves or as an edging for cannas or other tall plants, the dwarf varieties being especially adapted to this purpose. To make a showing in mid-summer the plants should be started early either by cuttings or seeds so that the plants at this time should be large enough for a 3-inch pot and should have been pinched back at least once and beginning to branch. These can be potted into 4-inch pots in April and will be showing bud by the time for planting them outside in June. Such plants of course cannot be sold as cheaply as the late-sown seedlings that are grown closely together, and allowed to run up to a single stem, but it will not take so many of the former plants to fill the same space and the bed will be in flower through the summer and fall while with the latter too often there is no bloom until just before frost, and when the first frosts are early the plants are not in bloom but a few weeks. The early plants are much more satisfactory to the customer and will cost but little more owing to the larger space which they will cover during the season.

Geraniums.

At the approach of spring the geraniums and other bedding stock will make rapid growth and from those which are large enough a top cutting may be taken now. While these cuttings will not make good-sized plants for bedding out, yet they can be grown on for stock plants for another year. It is time now to take account of the stock on hand and look over the amount that has been required in the past, and if it is found that there will be a probable shortage of any varieties procure them at once. They can be obtained at this time, either small plants or rooted cuttings, at low prices. Many growers lose every year by putting off their buying too late when the prices have advanced to such a figure that there is no profit in handling them. It is seldom that one who has much bedding to do, has geraniums enough, especially of S. A. Nutt or Alphonse Ricard, and this is the time to procure the stock, and if a grower has any room to spare it is good business to stock up with these varieties, for there is a guaranteed sale for all well grown plants in May. The plants that are now in 3-inch pots will require going over often and spacing out, that well-grown stocky plants may be had. If crowded now, tall, weak, spindly plants are too often the result, and when grown in this way are not fit to make a good showing in the bed when planted.

Bedding Plants.

The plants for bedding out in the spring will take not only much of the plantsman's time, but will keep demanding more room, for the growth from now on will be rapid and unless constantly watched and cared for the plants will quickly get crowded and much of the stock injured. The final shift of the geraniums in the northern section of the country may be delayed until the first of April, but the plants should not be allowed to get badly potbound, and they should be given plenty of growing room. The propagating bed should be full of cuttings of the more rapid growing plants and the seedlings will have to be potted as soon as of proper size. The cannas and other bulbs that have been started should be potted and given good location for growing on. Now is the time to take account of stock and see of what kinds there is going to be, a shortage and of what there will probably be an oversupply and obtain the first and dispose of the second. This is the time to buy, for the stocks are large and shipments can be guaranteed, and the prices are low compared to what they will be a month hence. The amount of stock that annually goes to waste is large and a little foresight will prevent much of it. Every summer some growers throw away thousands of plants that have cost much in labor and should have made returns. Auction sales in some sections are the means of disposing of much of this stock, but this is generally at low prices. This stock can most all of it be disposed of by a little judicious advertising and letting the other fellows know where it can be obtained. An attendant at any plant sale in early spring will find many growers looking for all kinds of stock. It is often quite difficult to know just how much of each kind of bedding stock is wanted, but as soon as an oversupply is noted let the other growers know where they can obtain it, and place a price on it that will guarantee a sale. It is much better to move it at some price than to throw it away. The wide-awake, up-to-date growers clean up their stock every year.

Sweet Peas.

A sowing of sweet peas made in pots late in March which can be transplanted outside as soon as all danger from late frosts is passed, will give a crop of these flowers two or three weeks earlier than the seed sown in the ground. There is generally a time in late June and early July that the sweet peas in the greenhouses come very poor, owing to the excessive heat under glass and the infection of red spider, and the early sowings outside are not yet in flower. Five or six seeds sown in a 3-inch pot and these placed on the sill or window ledge or on a hanging shelf will make nice stock for planting out after the middle of April and the advantage of those started in the greenhouse over the ones sown in the cold ground will be quickly seen upon trial. They can be grown, so that they will take but little valuable room under glass and the extra expense of this and the labor in transplanting them will be more than recompensed by having fine flowers at a time when most of the stock is in poor condition. The plants that are growing inside will require considerable attention as the sun increases in power; the growth is very rapid and the vines must be kept erect or crooked flower stems will be the result. They should be gone over every day, and where the growing shoots are getting away from the supports they should be fastened to them.

Camellias.

While it is a question if the camellia will ever become as popular as it was years ago, yet there seems to be a growing demand for the blooms of the "Japonica" as it was so familiarly known to the grandparents of the present generation, and the flowers are well adapted to certain classes of work or occasions. A few dwarf plants are now also seen in flower in some of the stores. They are easily grown, the prime requisite being a cool house, one with a night temperature of 45° to 50°.

and the constant care throughout the year that all hard-wooded plants require. The large specimens which are grown for cut blooms may be planted in the ground of the house, first spading in a quantity of leaf-mold and rotted cow manure. The smaller plants are generally grown in pots, firmly planted in the same kind of soil, with plenty of drainage. They do not require repotting often, and when done the shift should be to only one size larger, and this should be done just after the plant is through flowering, for it then starts to make its growth for another season. When the growth starts the plants should be given plenty of water and frequently syringed; in fact, careful watering is the one thing necessary in their culture. They should never become dry, and during the hot days of summer frequent syringings are required, which also greatly assists in keeping down mealy bug and scale, the only two insects to which the plant is subject. The cause of the buds dropping, which will sometimes occur, can invariably be traced to the plant becoming dry some time during its growth. During the summer, heavy shade over the plants will be required, and an abundance of air should be provided at this time.

How Florists Can Help Garden Movement.

Address by Arthur H. Smith, Boone, Ia., at meeting of Iowa florists at Iowa State College, Ames, January 29, 1918.

The other day I had the value of the garden club movement brought to me in a little different light. I was talking to an undertaker. His observation was that his business, together with that of his friends in the trade, was very light last summer, due, he thought, to the fact, as he put it, "People were eating out of their gardens." The exercise and fresh air it takes to make a good and successful garden are, we know, important factors in the maintenance of health, which means greater effort, greater efficiency, greater results and the great result of winning the war.

A few million gardens can produce, as we know, a few million bushels of potatoes, a few million beans, a few million each of many kinds of vegetables, which, in the aggregate, will feed a few million people, and that is the result we are after. A short time ago, the coal miners in this district gave a few hours' work, the operators gave the few tons they dug to the Red Cross, and it amounted to about $1,500. In the garden movement, we are restricted less probably than in any other line, as we are all in a position to do something, especially in Iowa.

To get right at our subject of helping the garden movement as florists; we are all willing to help, of course. It is our duty to help, and we will help. In our particular case, we will materially increase the growing inside of early vegetable plants. By the judicious growing in the greenhouse of sufficient quantities of vegetable plants, and by getting them early, we can advance the season for many vegetables, some one week, some two weeks, and possibly, some a month. By advancing the season on cabbage, tomatoes and other vegetables grown in this way, we cut down the demand on non-perishable food stuffs and on canned perishable food, which will allow these products to go to more needed parts of the earth. If we all do this, and a large number of our people benefit thereby, if we advance the season even a day—in the aggregate we have done a great deal. This, to me, seems the chief way in which we can directly benefit the cause.

All florists conduct a sort of an information bureau for all horticultural and gardening subjects. We try to answer all sorts of questions on why this or that plant died, what to do for the little green bugs, and what makes the little brown spots on the under side of fern leaves, etc. We can extend this bureau a little; we can answer questions relative to gardening; we can advise on planting times and seasons, harvesting and storage. The canning and preserving will need to be handled by some other department, as we do not start in on that until it is time to eat.

Many florists have considerable waste land around their greenhouses. This can be put to better use. We can plant these extra spots to something to eat. We can take care of them during our extra time and grow enough for our own use, and some to sell.

There is one other way in which we may be of some assistance in winning the war by stimulating food production, and that is advertising. I saw not long ago, an article that advertising would win the war; certainly it has done a great many things. In our literature that we send out from time to time to our customers and friends, we can incorporate in the copy, suggestions that will be helpful in the way of practical information on gardening, as well as suggestions that will boost the idea. It is get together and push that counts; it is what we say and what we think that moves us along. If we talk right and think right, we will move along right. If we talk about this movement on every occasion, think about it, print it, and boost it, we will advertise it, and our reward will be the desired results.

In a general way, I would say the florists are willing. They can advance the season, they can give assistance in the way of information, they can use their waste land, they can advertise push and boost. I do not think I say too much when I say they will be glad to do all of these things that we may all rejoice that the war is won.

ORCHID TALKS.

Easter Orchids.

The unusually long, severe winter, and the early date on which Easter falls, may find a slim supply of orchids in bloom this season. The past year has shown a considerable increase in the number of phalænopsis plants grown by several florists for cut flowers, and these should be quite plentiful for Easter. Phalænopsis amabilis and Rimstadiana, for white, and P. Schilleriana, for pink, are the best, but to be certain that these flowers will keep well after being cut, they should be left on the plants several days after the last bud on the spike has opened. The first two varieties, if cut above the third joint from the plant, will produce another spike in about six or eight weeks' time, and if the plants are healthy and strong, no ill effects result from the extra strain.

Phalænopsis Schilleriana, for some reason, is not so generous in producing extra spikes and rarely breaks a second time, so the entire spike must be taken off when cutting, as often the larger stem is useful. Cœlogyne cristata will come in handy this year as a pot plant for decorating. This orchid generally blooms in the later days of February, but with the troubles of this winter that the florists have had keeping up the heat in their orchid houses, it will bloom much later, so the early Easter will be a benefit to this variety. Another orchid useful for this season is Cœlogyne flaccida, the spikes of which are longer than cristata, though the flowers are smaller. As a basket plant it will be found very attractive.

It is over three years since any importations of Dendrobium Wardianum have arrived from India or upper Burma, and as the life of these plants under our present methods of cultivation is short, the supply of these this year for Easter will be short also, but D. nobile and numerous hybrids should be quite plentiful. Some of the so-called evergreen varieties, D. densiflorum, D. thyrsiflorum, D. chrysotoxum, etc. (all yellow), should be in evidence, and can be used with good effect.

There are several epidendrums that prove showy when massed together, especially the tall-growing varieties, such as E. radicans, E. O'Brienianum (bright red), E. Boundie and E. Kewensis (pink and red). These last are most effective under artificial light. E. Stamfordianum (yellow and white) and the pink variety, E. Stamfordianum Wallacei, have shorter spikes, yet will be found useful.

TUMBLER BASKET OF SPRING FLOWERS.
Daffodils and Daisies.

A WELL FLOWERED SPECIMEN OF CATTLEYA MOSSIAE.

Laelia purpurata can hardly be in this year for Easter, but when Easter is late there is no trouble to get this noble variety in on time. L. cinnabarina (orange scarlet) and L. flava (yellow) come in for an early Easter without trouble. Both these late varieties have long spikes for cutting.

As a showy pot plant, there is nothing better than Miltonia vexillarium for this season. Unfortunately, it is useless as a cut flower, but well flowered specimens always meet with ready sale. It is known as the pansy orchid, from the resemblance it has to that spring flower. M. cuneata and M. flayiscens are the best of the species for cut flowers at this season.

Some of the odontoglossums are always on hand for Easter. Perhaps the easiest to grow for the commercial man is O. pulchellum, known as the lily of the valley orchid. The color resembles this flower and it makes long spikes most suitable for cutting.

Of the oncidiums perhaps O. sarcoodes, with its chestnut colored spikes, often six feet long, commands some notice at this time, with O. Marshallianum and O. concolor. The first has long spikes of yellow bloom nearly three inches across, always very attractive, and the second is dwarf with flowers much after the color of the English primrose, which makes it very seasonable. Vanda cærulea, the well-known blue orchid, will be found useful for Easter.

There are always some late-blooming plants in every batch that come right for this season, but the orchids that are coming more to the front each year for Easter are the cymbidiums.

This family, through extensive hybridizing, is growing rapidly. The long, arching spikes of various colors for show purposes can not be beat. For cutting, or if kept on the plant, it has no equal for lasting in the orchid family and is bound to become more popular. Any enthusiast will make no mistake in getting a good stock of this family when obtainable.

Many hybrid cypripediums may be cut at this time, and usually there are many varieties that are at their best, though the florist's kind (insigne and C. Leeannum) will be past long before Easter.

The best cattleya for Easter without doubt is C. Skinnerii, yet few appreciate it, but it must be seen growing on nice-size specimen plants before its beauty is noticeable. Healthy plants, with two or three good spikes, look well either in natural or artificial light. This cattleya has few equals for general decorative work and can be had in quantity, whether Easter is late or early. Unfortunately, this class of cattleya has not been pushed enough, consequently there have been few calls for large importations into this country. True, as a cut flower it falls below any of the labiate sections of cattleyas, but with C. Skinnerii its good-points are not seen till it has been open on the plant for two weeks at least. Then every day, for another two weeks, it will become deeper in color, and never fails to show up to good advantage against the white Easter lilies at this season. C. intermedia comes in flower with this species, but is not nearly so attractive, yet the hybrid between the two, C. Belairensis, is a most desirable variety to have as a cut flower. For table decorations it has few equals, and what is more in its favor, it will bloom twice each year, generally at a time in the summer when other cattleyas are scarce, so it is a variety that florists should grow more than they do. The C. Skinnerii parent puts more color into the flowers than is seen in most of the hybrids derived from C. intermedia. C. Belairensis belongs to a class of hybrids that are becoming more popular.

For a long time C. Schroederæ has been looked upon as the Easter cattleya. Unfortunately, its pale color is against it, and it does not find a ready sale if C. trianae or C. Mossiae are around. This year C. Mossiae seems later in pushing up its flowers, so C. Schroederæ may meet with a good demand. Of course, with the above species there are always a few laelia-cattleya hybrids that a growing demand is being created for all the time, and no commercial florist is up-to-date who is without them.

THE ROSE.

Potting Off the Cuttings.

The young rose stock should not be allowed to stay too long in the cutting bed. They can be taken from the sand when the roots are about half an inch or a trifle longer, as it is far better to have the roots make in good soil than to weaken the constitution of the plant by having them overrooted in the sand. A good stiff clay sod soil (the stiffer the better) with plenty of grass root fibre is the ideal rose soil, and if the soil is a light sandy loam, one need not look for the best results and some clay should be added to it, even if a pure subsoil. The proportions we usually use in preparing the potting soil for cuttings is three parts soil to one of thoroughly rotted cow manure. If the manure is on the outside and unprotected, it can be brought in, placed in flats over the boilers, or in some place where it will become dry enough to rub through a $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch mesh screen. The soil should be run through the same screen, and it will be advisable to have the soil moist enough to pack firmly, but in no wise sticky. Pot firmly and keep the root crowns well up towards the top of the pots; $2\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pots will be about right for any of the cuttings except American Beauties. We prefer the $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch pots for these.

Remember, that in order to have strong, well grown plants for any purpose, they must have a suitable location; place them in a house that will allow them the maximum amount of sunshine, and one that is not draughty. They should be placed on raised benches that can be syringed from both sides. Set them on a layer of ashes, packed firmly. The ashes should be finely screened and about $\frac{3}{4}$ to one inch in depth, when firmly packed. Never plunge the pots in the ashes, as this will cause the roots to turn black and eventually rot from overwatering and lack of air. The side boards to the bench should not be higher than the top of the pots, otherwise, one cannot syringe the plants properly, and for that reason red spider will soon be in evidence.

Of course, the freshly potted plants will require shading for several days, or until new root action has taken place. We have seen some growers place newspapers right down on the foliage for shading, which is a very poor plan. If one uses papers, they should be placed in a light frame work, six or more inches above the tops of the plants, so as to allow for the circulation of air. We have always advocated the use of light frames covered with light weight cotton cloth,—something heavier than cheesecloth will answer—muslin of any kind, and these can be put away after using in some dry place, and if cared for, will last several seasons. They will also come in quite handy for many uses during the season. The plants, often being potted and placed on the bench, should be thoroughly watered, preferably with medium rose, by hand, with a watering pot. First go over them, filling the pots, then again water them an hour or so later, so that they will be sure to get the water evenly throughout the pots. New pots should be soaked before using them, and old pots (if very dirty) should be washed.

Do not fail to keep an eye peeled for green fly and spider. A light fumigating as a preventive, once in about every 10 days, will usually do the trick. And another very important matter is to go over the lot of plants every day before watering generally and spray the dry plants with a can, otherwise it will be impossible to have a uniform lot of plants, and, besides, the bulk of the plants will get overwatered or the dryest will become trash. One must exercise the greatest care and skill when handling the young stock at every stage of the game; then, if they are vigorous when benched, watch them hump themselves. Really, it is a waste of time, money and bench-room to plant anything but good, healthy young rose stock.

A few suggestions to those who are fortunate enough to have a few manetti stocks for grafting purposes. The stocks seem to be as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. The writer having the luck (?) of finding three-quarters of all manetti stock received "dead as a mackerel," we trust the other fellows have been more successful, and according to the price asked for them we think it would be good business to grow our own stocks until better prices prevail. However, for a successful strike one should prepare carefully. A case placed where it will be shaded all day by a partition between two houses will be less troublesome than to have to resort to shading by using cloth. The shade should not obstruct all the light, and if required it should be placed next the roof instead of placing it directly over the sash on the case. The bottom of the case should be housed in by using building paper to hold in the heat, and sufficient radiation used under the case to heat the case to at least 75° when the thermometer is touching zero outside. If the bottom of the case, when preparing it, is covered with a good layer of moss, over which about an inch of finely screened soft coal ashes is placed, firmly packed and given a good soaking, there will be hardly a chance for the grafts to dry out before they are far enough advanced to be gone over and the suckers removed and the ashes rewatered.

We have gone over the matter in detail, describing the method of grafting so many times that the work must necessarily be quite familiar to all, and we will shorten up the suggestions, giving only the most essential for good results. Be sure that the temperature, as stated above, can be reached at all times, also that the case is as nearly air-tight as it is possible to make it.

EASTER PLANT BASKET.

Heather, Azalea, Primula, Ferns and Foliage Plants with Plaid Ribbon.

The next important step is to have the manetti started a little at the roots. Use them as soon as the sap starts to run. Use only good, firm wood from flower stems. Some growers leave several eyes, or scions, when cutting the buds. These make the very best grafts. If flowers are to be sacrificed for grafting wood, they should be snapped off when showing color strongly and the stems left on the plants to ripen for four or five days. This will enable one to use practically all the eyes on the stems, except the ones nearest the buds, which will, in most cases, be found opposite each other and carrying no foliage. When grafting, the slanting cut on the scion should seldom be larger than five-eighths of an inch. Too long a splice is not desirable. A case well prepared should require no attention for 10 days, except to keep the temperature even and around 76°, as the moisture from the wet moss and ashes will furnish condensation enough to supply the plants. Of course, the pots should not be allowed to become dry, but this can usually be entirely overcome by giving the manetti a good soaking before placing them in the case. Never attempt to do anything until the callous at the union is fairly well ripened, and be sure to wrap them as tight (when tying on), as possible, without bruising the scion. If the raffia is split once, and kept damp, the tying will be easier and very little bruising of the scion will be done. Do not be in too great a hurry to take the sash off. Air very gradually; start with the thickness of a label, and at the least sign of wilting, spray them with a fine spray and close down immediately. After four weeks the grafts can usually be placed on a sunny bench out in the house, where they will have to be shaded for several days from intense sunshine and sprayed frequently. This about covers the job, and if one uses ordinary intelligence, there should be no reason why (with the proper equipment and good manetti stocks), there should not be a satisfactory strike.

Bud Development of Roses Desirable.

The Ophelia is one of the most popular forcing roses—its exquisite form and coloring have made it a universal favorite. To bring out its greatest beauty, it should be well colored, which condition is best secured, when, particularly during the winter months, it is allowed to come to a full soft bud just ready to burst or a trifle open before cutting. Buds that are cut tight, and open out in the store, are not nearly so perfect and salable as those that remain one or two days longer on the plant.

The Russell was a failure at first, as the buds, cut as the majority of other varieties, did not open or were so long developing that the color faded out. It was finally discovered that if allowed to come to perfection on the plant, it still retained good lasting qualities, and it at once became one of the most popular varieties.

The American Beauty is another rose which reaches its greatest perfection if not cut until partially open. Retailers, near the source of supply, and who are particular that their patrons shall have the best, arrange to have roses selected in this way by the growers and packed in boxes addressed to them so as to avoid rehandling in commission houses. Roses such as these, when properly "cured," that is, soaked or stood in water over night in a cool place, will last as long as the tighter buds and are always a better color. These latter are frequently cut too soon, or before they contain the necessary life substance to bring them to maturity.

Roses that are to supply markets which require a 24 to 36 hours journey, must, of course, be cut fairly close, but even much of the stock that is used for this purpose, is so undeveloped that one wonders if it ever matures, or is wholly satisfactory.

These remarks apply to the buds of the winter months. After March 15, when the sun's rays become more powerful, buds will not be allowed to go so far, as they come to perfection much quicker, and have a shorter life when cut.

Roses of the full, double type, such as Francis Scott, Key, Mock, Milady, etc., should all be fairly well advanced on the plant before cutting. They require more careful handling, but their finished appearance in form and color and much larger size, renders them more salable and of greater money value.

Renaming Roses With German Titles.

SCHEME OF FRENCH ROSARIANS.

"Must we await the end of hostilities before we rename our roses?" This is the question that the French florists are asking themselves.

The administrative committee of the Society of Rose Growers of France, on the proposition of Monsieur Clement Nabonnand, has decided to proscribe the former names of nearly 250 varieties of roses whose origin, or development has come more or less directly from German sources. Sometimes they have borne frankly Teuton appellations of the royal houses, some Kaiserin Augusta Victoria or Margravine; sometimes a less noble name, but one equally German; sometimes they were due genuinely to German cultivation, though of late those very roses may have become indigenously French.

At all events the war is on in France on all things German. It may be true that art knows no nationality; no more does the cult of the rose, but the undercurrent, which is running through the French mentality, is such that all is to be banished henceforth from Wagnerism music to Austrian Merry Widow waltzes and Frau Karl Druschki roses.

With a certain justification, French caravans of florists have in times past returned from their periodical voyages Outre-Rhin, lauding the virtues of German horticulturists in general and their processes in particular. Often they mocked the taste of the bouquets and corbeilles, which had been pressed upon them at parting, but they invariably came back to la patrie, enthusiastically advertising the German industry of floriculture in a most intensive manner.

Little by little, before war began to stalk through the land, even, there was an occasional outbreak of discontent and unwillingness to admit that their own bel pays de France had not quite as much to its credit as Germany. Indeed, judging by the rose shows at L'Hay, at Bagatelle and in the gardens of the Luxembourg, the complexion was entirely French so far as the conspicuous exhibits were concerned.

There was this much to go on at any rate, even if the commercial growers of the French and Italian Rivières were four parts Germanized out of five. Not even they will suffer though if the Tausendschon becomes Mille Fois Belle; the Vielchenblau, Violet Bleu; or the Frau Karl Druschki (actually of French origin, claims the Société des Rosieristes de France) Reine des Nèges.

The Roseraie de l'Hay—a veritable temple of roses—owns to 8,000 varieties and it is not anticipated that there will be the least difficulty in re-baptizing them all at the crucial moment, since, for the most part, they were brought into this world, or to maturity, by the patient skill of the French themselves.

Besides this attitude to be the categories, Madame X., Mademoiselle Y. and Monsieur Z. (a process of nomenclature which has been sadly abused) one even now recognizes the Perle des Rouges, Souvenir de L. Malmaison, Soleil d'Or, Merveille de Lyon, Rose du Roi, Ma Capucine, l'Innocence, Petite Ecossaise, Mignonette, etc.

A little historiette on the Frau Karl Druschki, and then done with it, a historiette of French origin, be it admitted:

"C'est une rose blanche, a bit too heavy, too stiff, trop charnue, but of admirable qualities of strength and brilliance."

"It was born of two roses purely French, the Merveille de Lyon and Madame Caroline Testout."

"Et comment Merveille de Lyon et Madame Caroline Testout ont-elles fini, après mariage, par s'éternuer une Druschki?"

"Mystère, Commerce, Betise!"

"The grand masters of French floral science have one and all the hope that with the end of the war not a Germanic root or branch or prefix or suffix will clutter up the rose gardens of France. They are as much a plague to be eradicated as any cryptogrammic malady lying buried deep in the heart of God's most beautiful flower."

The sentiment is manifestly French, but it is apropos.

Roses for Mothers' Day.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

A number of local-rose growers who have been running their stock quite cold on account of the lack of fuel would like to know when and how the plants should be started to have them in bloom for Mothers' day.

Illinois.

A. F. C.

In answer to numerous inquiries asking how one should start their plants which have been run quite cold on account of the lack of fuel, we will state that it all depends on just how cold the houses have been allowed to get. And as we cannot arrive at anything definite as regards this, we must handle the matter rather as a guess. However, the plants must be started at once and the rose houses brought up to their normal running conditions regarding the temperature, watering, etc. Three or four days should suffice to bring the temperature up gradually, and if the plants have been run very dry, they should be watered sparingly at first, taking a good soaking about the third or fourth watering. An even temperature should now be maintained for the rest of the season. As soon as the growth starts up (if there is no very great loss of foliage) the plants should have a mulch of cow manure. Either barnyard or shredded sheep manure will answer, and as bright and more moderate weather can be reasonably expected to follow now, there need not be any great expenditure of coal money employed to keep the temperature up to normal. At this season, the timing of the crop shortens up considerably, and from 40 to 45 days should be sufficient time to bring in a crop from a pinched growth, that is, just setting bud. Mrs. A. Ward will take about 40 days and Mrs. Geo. Shawyer will come along in about the same time, Sunburst in about 42 days and the Killarneys around 45 days from time of pinching. This timing is about right for normal weather conditions and is about as close as the writer can figure it out from long experience, so those that are looking for Mothers' day roses can figure that if the time of pinching is a week longer or shorter than the time allowed here, the consequences are that they will miss it. As a last suggestion, it is well to remember that it will be at least 10 days to two weeks before the flowers bloom after they first begin to show color, so do not be in too great a hurry to cool off the houses when they first show color unless the time is longer than stated above.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Very encouraging reports have been received as to the St. Valentine's day business done as the result of the full-page advertisement which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. These reports come in chiefly from those in the trade who, through their individual efforts and the service supplied by our promotion bureau, linked up with the national advertising. Some of these efforts took the form of co-operative advertisements in the newspapers, large spaces being used. We have on file clippings of some of these advertisements, among them the following:

A large space in the Lexington (Ky.) Leader, inserted by Michler Bros. Co., John A. Keller Co., and Keller-Florist. A half-page advertisement in the Post and Bridgeport Morning Telegram of Bridgeport, Conn., subscribed to by the "Retail Florists of Bridgeport," under the leadership of Carl Reck. A page advertisement in the Post-Standard, Syracuse, N.Y., subscribed to by W. E. Day Co., P. R. Quinlan, Morris Zogg Floral Co., Werner Bultmann, and Wheadon & Johnston. A half-page advertisement in the Washington (D. C.) Times, subscribed to by Gude Bros. Co., Geo. C. Shaffer, Geo. H. Cooke, Z. D. Blackstone, and Oehmler Floral Co. A quarter-page advertisement in the Post, Houston, Texas, subscribed to by Kerr the Florist, Boyle & Pendarvis, Kuhlmann Floral Co., Inc., and Carroll, Florist. A half-page space in the Omaha (Neb.) News, including large advertisements of Hess & Swoboda, John H. Bath, Rogers, Lee L. Larmon, Brandeis, and Alfred Donaghe.

The New York Herald carried about three columns of florist advertising, and arranged it under a story supplied by the bureau. The advertisers were: C. A. Dards, J. H. Small & Sons, G. E. M. Stumpp, A. T. Bunyard, Max Schling, Warendorff, Alex. McConnell, M. A. Bowe, Hession, Young & Nugent, Alfred Kottmiller, N. Christatos, and Malandre Bros. The Cleveland florists made their usual generous display, and Henry Penn, of Boston, reproduced in his advertising the national advertisement, full size. Ten live retail florists in Cincinnati used a large advertisement in the Post. Hundreds of other florists throughout the country made direct appeals through their newspaper columns, as evidenced in the pile of clippings preserved in the bureau. No wonder that the St. Valentine's day business was good and eclipsed all records. The money used in the national magazine advertising is well spent when florists can, with a little enterprise on their own part, draw huge chunks of benefit from it to themselves. The benefit is large and will stand an enormous call upon it. Florists who have not realized this will do well to get in touch with our promotion bureau and learn of the "helps" provided to do for them what no other power can—reach out and bring in the results of plans well thought out and equally well executed. There should be no "slackers" in the conduct of this campaign. The results so far secured are quite sufficient to assure the most pessimistic that a continuation of our campaign is justified and that the efforts of those who have been farsighted enough to anticipate such results and furnish the wherewithal to accomplish them should be backed up with contributions for "carrying on" from all who have "just waited" to see.

AZALEA HINODEGIRI.

Trimmed with White and Deep Pink Paper, Tied with Tasseled Cord.

The publicity committee and the publicity finance committee are to meet in joint session at the society's offices in New York, Saturday, March 16, where further plans for publicity will doubtless be devised.

Copies of the booklet in colors, "Say It With Flowers," are now available, and are supplied at the following rates: Lots of 250, $8.50; 500, $15, and 1,000, $28. These prices include the purchasers' imprints. These booklets should prove to be valuable sales helps.

The transfer signs and the glass signs are now on the way to those who have ordered them. Existing conditions, the manufacturers say, have been responsible for the delay, the trouble in getting supplies of material hampering them greatly.

The big demand for newspaper electrotypes linking individual advertising with that of the magazine advertising has been satisfactorily met. Anyone anticipating using the Easter electrotypes should send in his order at once, as parcel post mail is not quite as efficient as in normal times.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

The Cracked Boiler.

When through somebody's carelessness, the water in the boiler has all steamed away, and the water then turned on the hot surface causes the inevitable crack, all is not lost. In such a predicament get a couple of quarts of bran, mix with two or three spoonfuls of sal ammoniac and stir in a bucket of water. Then remove the safety valve at top of boiler and through this or similar opening pour the mixture.

The cold water should be kept running to fill the boiler and chill the iron, which contracts and keeps the crack open. As the water seeps through the narrow opening it draws particles of bran into or against the crack. In a comparatively short space of time, from 30 minutes to an hour, a perceptible decrease in the flow will be noticeable. Then start up the fire, when the iron, absorbing the heat, will gradually expand and together with the particles of bran which have been deposited in the crack, stop the leak. The little sal ammoniac in the bran, together with the action of the water on the surface of the crack, will in a short time rust the edges together, making the boiler almost as good as ever.

Last December, the front section of a cast iron boiler at Alburger's Greenhouses, Ridge and Lehigh avenues, Philadelphia, Pa., cracked from the fire door to the ash pit on both sides of the section. It was a bad break and something had to be done quick. They were advised to try the bran. In a short time the fire was going and the boiler has since, carrying four to five pounds of steam, given excellent service. Needless to say it never wants for water.

A pound of soap cut into small pieces and placed in the boiler will when the water boils form a glutinous fluid, or so thicken the water that in seeping through pin holes, loose joints, connections or other apertures, it will leave a deposit which stops the flow of water, after which the rust makes a perfect seal. Plumbers and steamfitters often use this method to close fittings that are slightly defective.

New York Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the florists' club was held in the club's rooms, Grand Opera House building, March 11. There was a good attendance, much interest in the proceedings, particularly in the two speakers of the evening, Prof. Jacob G. Lippman of the New Jersey state experiment station, New Brunswick, and John Watson, nurseryman, Newark, N. Y.

A. H. Langjahr reported that the committee to entertain soldier and sailor relatives of florists was handicapped by the fact that the boys were not allowed to remain long in this city, but that they hoped to be advised of any florists in service who were expected in town.

Chas. Weathered, for the flower show committee, stated that prospects looked very bright. A number of exhibits from the large estates have been promised, and the Red Cross will be interested as previously. On account of present conditions, the club and the Horticultural Society of New York will underwrite some of the expenses of the Red Cross at the show.

Secretary John Young announced that Wm. Siebrecht had agreed to make a display of cut acacia, properly labeled, and would maintain same during the show. He also stated that the show would be open free to all wearing the United States uniform. John D. Scheepers had prepared an exhibit of bulbs, with a Dutch windmill, etc., which should prove a drawing card. The Red Cross has taken 10,000 tickets, to be disposed of to various chapters.

Frank H. Traendly, delegate to the meeting of the State Federation of Floral Clubs at Ithaca in February, reported and stated that he believed florists of the state could gain by closer co-operation with the college authorities at Cornell. A. Schultheis, who also attended, stated that he had read a paper at the meeting, and was much pleased with the attention given.

Chas. Vick reported that the publicity committee was devoting all its efforts to the flower show for the time being, and that the name of the florists' club was appearing jointly in the local press in connection with that of the horticultural society as managing the show.

The following were elected to membership: P. J. McKenny, 503 Fifth avenue (for life membership); "Jack" Trepel, 480 Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Robert L. Roper, Chatham, N. J.; C. A. Peterson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; James McGovern, 122 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Paul Meconi, 55 West 26th street, New York; Farrell McGovern, 456 16th street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Ed. J. Hession, Madison avenue, at 76th street, New York; M. Clements Galuba, Woodlawn, N. Y.; Thomas Burns, Flushing, N. Y.; Morris Christatos, 715 Madison avenue, New York; Albert Friedman, Woodlawn, N. Y. Nominations for membership were as follows: Samuel C. Gilbert and John Tinney, New York; Chas. S. Perkins, Newark, N. Y.; John Roland Bauman, Rahway, N. J.; Peter Hoebel, Hempstead, L. I.

Mr. Vick then introduced Professor Lippman, who spoke in a most interesting manner on "Commercial Fertilizers," tracing their use from about 1840 to the present time. Feeds for animal stock are getting so high that florists will soon feel even greater need of commercial fertilizer to replace their present supply of cow and other manure. Bonemeal was about the first of the commercial fertilizers to be used, and was treated with acids or else burned to make it readily soluble. Following this came the use of guano, largely from South America. In 1830 the first saltpetre from Chili was brought to London, and in 1865 came the beginning of the use of potash salts, largely from Germany. In 1888 phosphate rock was found in Florida and shortly after in Tennessee, so that it is hoped to find enough potash material in this country eventually to supply our needs. Commercial fertilizers have to contain one of three elements: Nitrogen, phosphorus or potash.

Professor Lippman stated that these fertilizers must possess three characteristics: (1) Concentration; (2) solubility; (3) absence of anything injurious to plants. If florists will acquire a full knowledge of the subject and be guided in what they use by local conditions, they will be sure to reap the advantage without any danger to their stock. A maximum of 20 pounds of commercial fertilizer to the 100 square feet of surface in a greenhouse, put on in small quantities through the season, should not be harmful.

Following Professor Lippman, John Watson spoke on "Co-operation in Publicity," relating some of the experiences of the national nurserymen's association.

Some fine antirrhinum and sweet peas were on display, but more exhibits would be welcomed. After recess the session resumed for routine business.

The annual club banquet is scheduled for Saturday night, March 16.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Bismarck hotel, March 7. President Lautenschlager in the chair. There was a good attendance, but the business was largely routine. The advertising committee presented a very favorable report, showing $400.00 as the share of the profits from the sale of St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day posterettes and posters to be added to the national publicity fund of the Society of American Florists. It is expected this sum will be materially increased by the further sales of Mothers' day posterettes and posters.

C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, Wis., who was in attendance, occupying the vice-president's place in the absence of O. J. Friedman, explained the Milwaukee method of raising funds for trade advertising. Through the wholesale florists, said Mr. Pollworth, the retailers are assessed one per cent on their purchases and the growers half of one per cent on their sales. The speaker added that the plan had worked satisfactorily thus far and thought it could be easily applied in larger cities by a proper adjustment of the assessments.

Vice-President Friedman, whose arrival was delayed by pressure of business, with his usual vigor and enthusiasm, launched a new scheme for aiding the war garden movement, enlisting the florists to act as distributors of information, each in his own ward or district. The suggestion was favorably received, and, if developed along the right lines without delay, should greatly extend the good work of the central authorities.

The exhibits, examined by H. Van Gelder and Herbert Amling, included the new sweet pea, Columbia, which was given a certificate of merit, and Rose Queen. Zvolanek's Lavender, Heather Bell and Yarrowa, from Geo. Ball, Glen Ellyn; new pink snapdragon, St. Louis, from W. A. Rowe Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., certificate of merit; new American dyes for St. Patrick's day use, from the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, highly commended, and novelty vases for St. Patrick's day, from A. L. Randall & Co., Chicago, vote of thanks.

The splendid work of the fuel committee, consisting of Peter Reinberg, August Poehlmann and C. L. Washburn, was warmly commended, likewise that of E. A. Ollinger, the committee's representative on the fuel board, and the committee was continued, to care for the interests of the greenhouse men the coming season.

Among the visitors were noted James E. Jones, of the Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., and R. Williams, of Williams & Co., South Bend, Ind., both of whom briefly addressed the meeting.

Victor F. Bergman and Morris S. Smith were elected members, and W. H. Kirst, 2426 North Sawyer avenue, was proposed for membership.

San Francisco.

ACTIVE DEMAND; MODERATE SUPPLY.

Trade has been unusually active in all lines. The scarcity of roses and other greenhouse stock still continues although most of the prominent growers promise relief before the end of the week. Roses continue to be very scarce and high in price. Russells are scarce, so are American Beauties, the best of the latter commanding $4 to $5 per dozen. Russells of good quality bring $2.50 to $3.50. Hadley is more plentiful and Shawyer is just now enjoying much favor on account of its extra fine quality. Wards are commanding steady prices and Cecile Brunner is holding up firmly. Red Radiance and Richmond are in ample supply with prices very stiff. In carnations, prices remain about the same as quoted last week. The demand is heavy and cleans up the market daily. Violets are beginning to improve in quality every day. The rainy weather has proved very beneficial to them and the shortage, which has existed during the past week, is being rapidly relieved. The shipping demand is as strong as ever and with the improvement in quality, bids fair to be greater still. Sweet peas are holding their own in price while the quality is getting better every day. This is the first season where the buying public has been able to procure all the latest winter flowering Spencers in the colors desired. Prices range about $2.50 per 100 stems. Lilies are coming into the market very freely the past week, but owing to the heavy demand for funeral work, prices are nominal with a strong demand. Lily of the valley has not been seen this week, but orchids, especially cattleyas, are very plentiful. The demand is steady with prices holding up in a very satisfactory manner. Gardenias are in ample supply with no especial call. Bulbous stock is beginning to come in more freely every day. Tulips and hyacinths are now very plentiful and are bringing very good figures. Freesias are to be had in large quantities, but none are to be had after market hours. Perhaps the only glut on the market at the present time is the jonquil. These are being brought to the market every day by the wagon load. They are to be had on the street corners by the thousand. They bring whatever is offered. The call for pot plants is steady with a limited selection to choose from. Good rhododendrons move quickly, also good Boston. There are no azaleas or cyclamens, although good Hinodigeri are promised for next week. The supply of acacia in variety and fruit blossoms is increasing every day and is finding the steady demand. Cut eucalyptus in flower is a scarcity this season which is meeting with much favor.

NOTES.

James T. Lynch, for many years a member of the Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, has been appointed manager of the nursery department of the Hollowell Seed Company of this city. The selection of Mr. Lynch for this position meets with the approval of the trade generally, as his long experience in this particular line fits him for the duties which this office will exact of him. At present his company are exceptionally busy shipping fruit trees and roses to China and South America. Large shipments of seeds have been made to Peru and Chile. The company reports a heavy spring trade.

E. Schreutenhausen, who recently purchased the Sidney Clack nursery, is planting up his new property with all that is best in the way of ornamental trees. He plans to have a very extensive collection, and is devoting a lot of room to English iris and other bulbs which he says will thrive in that locality. He is also planning a new store on the property.

The window decorations by the Art Floral Co. on Washington's birthday were the finest seen here for a long time. Mr. Matraia entered into the spirit of the times by making a very large American flag of immortelles, with a portrait of our first president in the center. It was greatly admired along Powell street and drew admiring throngs for two days.

The Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, report a heavy demand for nursery stock of all kinds. The call for fruit trees and evergreens is cleaning up all available stock. Supt. Ellings is around again after a severe attack of the measles.

Avensino Bros., on Geary street, have been making a very attractive display of orchids this week. They report a fine business with stock in nearly all lines very short. They have a heavy cut of jonquils from their own nursery in Alameda.

A. O. Stein, on Sutter street, had several large decorations during the week that kept his staff working overtime every night. Manager Patrick Orr says business was never in better condition than at the present time.

The Golden State Florists on O'Farrell street are beginning to build up a substantial trade and carry a large stock of the best flowers at all times. Their window decorations are unique and draw forth much admiration.

G. Madvig, formerly of C. Kooyman & Co., is preparing to open up a large wholesale house in this city on his own account. He plans to feature florists' supplies extensively.

A. Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, is calling on the trade in this city and reports fine business all along the line.

John Bianchini has resigned his position with the Art Floral Company to accept one with Josephs on Grant avenue.
G. N.

Pittsburgh.

BUSINESS IS SLOW.

The market has had plenty of all kinds of stock, with very little business. The supply of sweet peas and carnations exceeds the demand. Bulbous stock of all kinds is also very plentiful. The retail counter trade is very light and funeral work is about the only activity. Roses are still holding up in fine condition with a small increase daily. There should be a good crop for Easter if the weather continues good. Some splendid orchids and lily of the valley are on the market, but the demand is light. Spanish iris is arriving in limited quantities, which sells well each day. Calendulas, myosotis, freesias and yellow daisies have very little call. Violets are a glut and are only disposed of to the street man. He is now in his glory, as he can get any flower at any price, and is a great help to the wholesale houses. Lilies are coming in large numbers, the first time this year, and prices have suffered.

EASTER STOCK IN FINE SHAPE.

Despite the hard winter that has harassed everyone, the local growers have nevertheless been optimistically inclined, and have prepared accordingly a large and varied stock of splendid plants for Easter, and all of it will be in nice condition for the big week. Azaleas, spiræas and rhododendrons are missed this year from the usual list, but in their stead we find unusually well-grown specimens of roses and extra fine bulbous stock in all sizes. Hydrangeas are in splendid form, and the market has never before been favored with such a large stock, which will be in its prime in due season. A large stock of lilies, which in some cases will have to hustle to be on time, is found with most growers who annually provide them.

NOTES.

Aug. Von Boeselager, Mt. Clemens, Mich., has perhaps the finest lot of hydrangeas to be seen in this vicinity. His list embraces some of the best French varieties of pink and white, and range in size from five to eight-inch pots, with from six to 12 blooms on each. Of Otaksa, many fine specimens in large sizes are sufficiently advanced to be even at present attractive. A nice stock of about a thousand extra size lilies and well-grown bulbous stock complete his offerings in plants for Easter. In cut flowers he will have a fine crop of carnations and roses, the latter including Mock, Opheelia, Killarney, Ward and Russell. Mr. Von Boeselager, whose place has advanced in value recently, owing to its proximity to the Joy boulevard leading to the army aviation field, had no fuel trouble this year, as most of his supply was received early last summer, and this was maintained by regular shipments through the severe winter, the cars coming into his boiler room of great capacity.

Chas. H. Plumb for years has been a grower of immense quantities of bulbous plants, and this year has somewhat increased his quota. He has about 10,000 plants of Easter lilies, all in prime shape and giving him no apprehension as to maturity on time for the demand. Here is seen a splendid stock of Baby Rambler in various sizes, and already so far advanced as to allow time for maturing in cooler houses. His stock of hydrangeas is large and includes some excellent examples of skillful handling. An extra fine and large stock of Boston ferns is one of the principal features of the place. Mr. Plumb has recently acquired another large Federal truck, which will increase his facilities for delivery of plants this Easter.

Miesel Bros., who in former years were factors in the wholesale plant trade, have practically abandoned this feature of the business, as their increasing retail demand requires all they can produce in their limited glass area. This firm had a narrow escape from a hard freezeup during the coldest spell of the winter. The fireman, it appears, fell asleep, and on awakening, in his excitement started a fire in an auxiliary boiler without opening the valves connecting it with the heating system. The result nearly caused an explosion to add to the damage. Before Fred Miesel was called, all the houses had reached the freezing point, but the liberal use of tobacco stem fires through the place averted an entire freezeup.

Joseph Streit, whose reputation as an expert plant grower is easily borne out by the present condition of his stock, has an immense array of pot roses, including nicely trained Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins and rambblers. Magna Charta and Baby Ramblers are included in the splendid display. Boston ferns as here seen are most attractive, as also is his nice stock of table ferns. Hydrangeas and lilies are largely grown here. His bulbous stock is being held for after Easter, and some of it may last until Mothers' day.

John Breitmeyer's Sons' Mack avenue greenhouses have the largest stock of azaleas in the city, and a house of well-grown French hydrangeas here are just in time for Easter, and are most creditable to the grower. Pot roses, too, are a strong feature of the place. A large stock of Easter lilies, as well as immense quantities of Dutch bulb stock in various-sized pans, make complete their preparation for the big Easter trade they expect at their three stores.

Beard Bros. have about 15,000 plants and they range in height from 12 inches to probably three feet. The former are mostly from cold storage bulbs. They have a large house of roses, including the Baby Rambler, Dorothy Perkins, Jessie Tausendschon and Magna Charta. Bulbous stock is here a large feature, and large numbers await distribution.

J. B. Dinser is the fortunate possessor of a good stock of azaleas, which he carried over with great care last year, and all of which will be in good condition for Easter. He also has a fine stock of genistas and roses. Mr. Dinser is a grower of great quantities of bulbous stock, most all of which is grown in pans.

Frank Holznagle has in addition to a fair supply of lilies a large stock of bulbous plants and hybrid roses in excellent shape.

HEAVY SUPPLY ON HAND.

The market the past week was crowded with stock of all kinds. Carnations and sweet peas were a glut, but in spite of the surplus the wholesalers managed to clean the market almost daily. Roses, while not so plentiful, were equal to the demand. In novelties the market is well supplied. Violets are erratic, one day being scarce and the next day plentiful. If the growers of violets would arrange their shipments more evenly, this condition would not exist. Southern smilax has been very poor. Other greens have been equal to requirements.

NOTES.

W. A. Rowe has been consigning some very fine snapdragons to this market. They are of exceptional quality and have a good call. It is a new variety, a good, dark pink of excellent growth. He is putting the stock on the market for sale, and expects to dispose of quite a few cuttings. Anyone interested in snapdragons should watch for his ad. in this paper in the near future.

The wholesalers and members of the retail association held a joint meeting last week to discuss matters of mutual interest which should result in a great deal of good to both.

J. J. Windler had a fall during the wind storm that visited us March 9 and suffered a broken arm. He expects to be quite proficient with his left arm by Easter.

The warm weather has benefited the plant growers' stocks, particularly the Easter lilies. Other bulbous stock is really coming a little too fast.

LILIES ARE BACKWARD.

Market conditions remain unchanged and stock is good and moving better than ever. Plants for Easter are developing in long strides and the local greenhouse men report more out-of-town orders than ever. Easter lilies are quite a bit backward for this time of year and will need a great amount of forcing to get them in. Tausendschon rose bushes and genistas are now in prime condition. Carnations are holding their own at $3 a hundred. Roses are a little off crop and very few long stems and specimen flowers among the shipments.

NOTES.

Samuel Truckman, salesman for H. M. Robinson & Co., has enlisted in the naval service and reports for duty at Hingham. The boys of the trade tendered him a farewell banquet at the Elks' home. About 60 were present. After a few musical numbers Mr. Truckman was presented with a purse of gold, the compliments of the flower trade.

The W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, is bringing to market Candidum lilies in pots, Darwin tulips, genistas and a large assortment of Dutch hyacinths. They have for Easter trade 30,000 pots of lilies, besides lilac, rose bushes, azaleas, geraniums and begonias.

Edward Bingham, one of our violet specialists, is having very good success this year. He picks on an average of 20,000 a day. Although his English primrose plants froze hard during the cold spell, he expects to start picking this week.

William Sim is cutting and sending to his salesman, Maurice Hannbro, single violets, primroses and several kinds of carnations. Among his best are Alice, Benora and White Wonder.

A. M. Davenport has a large stock for the holiday trade, Easter lilies, azaleas, hybrid roses, Dutch hyacinths, crocus, grape hyacinths, birdsnest fern, and flowering apple and prunus.

Everything is moving along nicely for the flower show for the Red Cross. Large posters, hand-painted and very elaborately done, are displayed in the windows of the large stores.

Thomas Roland has the best and largest stock of rose plants, acacias, French hydrangea, heather, genistas and bougainvillea. Over two-thirds of the stock is sold.

Penn has an attractive window this week arranged with a Dutch garden effect. His business is improving and he is looking forward for a good Easter trade.

John Fee, one of our most successful bulb growers, still remains home with a severe cold. His flowers are being looked after by M. Liebman.

Edward Welch continues to hold his old customers with his business-like methods and pleasing smile. He reports business very good.

Thomas J. Galvin's two stores report good business and had several wedding and dinner parties during the last two weeks.

From the Fletcher greenhouses daily shipments are arriving of Rainbow freesias, snapdragons and English primroses.

B. A. Snyder & Co. had a busy week and continue to book orders for Easter, and anticipate a very busy holiday trade.

Louis Small is sending to market some very good French iris, and blue, pink and white bachelor buttons.

Fred Pettit, salesman at Carbone's, is home with a severe case of tonsillitis.

FUNERAL WORK MOVES BIG SUPPLY.

During the last two weeks, according to reports received from leading flower shops, business has been very encouraging, due in great measure to large and numerous orders for funeral work, with here and there a decoration thrown in. The variable weather of late has also caused much sickness, with a resultant increase in demand for plants and bouquets for the sick. The milder weather has increased the production of all kinds of seasonable stock, and for the first time in over a year the local market is oversupplied in some respects. All bulbous stock is rapidly increasing and local greenhouses are beginning to foreshadow the rapidly approaching Easter season. Plants such as Flamingo tulips, azaleas, etc., are in splendid condition and are finding a brisk sale. Carnations are more plentiful than the market can absorb, while roses hold firm. Narcissi are also present in large supply and are bringing fair prices, considering the light call. There is enough green to supply the demand. Florists here are optimistic regarding a large Easter business and are making plans accordingly.

NOTES.

For the first time in her long and active career, Mrs. J. B. Freeman, Superior street florist, has been missed for several weeks by her many patrons. She has been confined to her bed with a serious illness. She is now reported recovering. During her absence the store has been in the efficient hands of John Lambert, her new decorator, who came here recently to take the place of Bob Blake. Mr. Lambert is an expert decorator and an interesting man to talk to, because he is well versed in the many phases of the florists' business. He likes this city splendidly, and expressed his opinion that it had a great future as a flower city.

Schramm Brothers are going to try to make April a big month by a strenuous "War Garden Planting Campaign." They have stocked up with a large supply of seeds of all kinds and are going to advertise this feature very heavily. They are of the opinion that with all the agitation for winning the war in the back yard or in the vacant lot, a live florist can get a goodly share of this business if he goes after it. In fact, most people naturally look to a florist for anything in the planting line, and think that he is the proper person to go to for advice. Hence, everything points to a large business.

Miss Helen F. Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, has returned from a week's visit at Fort Wayne, where she visited friends and relatives. She was a guest at the Flick home. Miss Patten has one of the most up-to-date and flourishing flower shops in this city, is an active member of the Business Woman's Club, and has made an impressive success in the flower business.

Krueger Brothers are working hard to recover from the disastrous losses sustained by them this winter by fire and blizzard. Notwithstanding the fact that their store burned down, and that two large houses were lost by a storm, they are preparing under handicaps for the largest Easter business of their long and successful career.

John Barrow was one of the few growers who had good luck with his azaleas, so much so that he has been wholesaling them to other retailers. Most of them are beauties and are taking well with the public.

Max Spanner is very proud of his sister, Bessie, who is now in active service in France as a Red Cross nurse. She has written him several interesting letters, describing conditions over there.

Feniger, Adams street florist, has his two big display windows filled with a blooming array of pot tulips, azaleas and cyclamens. He says that sales of plants are very satisfactory and funeral work heavy.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

The March meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, held at John Bertermann's country home on the national road, was opened with a recital of "The Star-Spangled Banner." President Irwin Bertermann, being in best of form, kept the assembly interested in the proceedings, and there was something doing all the time. Besides routine work, "Wind and Hail Insurance" was the main topic of the evening. Anders Rasmussen, chairman of the wind and hail insurance committee, reported that the goal was not yet reached, and that more time and more funds were needed. The members were as enthusiastic as ever, and the prevailing sentiment is that an insurance as proposed is more necessary than ever, and that the state florists are going to get this insurance company on its feet, regardless of cost and efforts. A suggestion of providing further means by subscription had the result that $1,000 was raised by those present in a few minutes. O. E. Steinkamp was added to the former committee, and will henceforth act as secretary of the same.

There were about 40 members present, and lunch and refreshments of all kinds were served after the meeting. Mr. Bertermann's billiard room proved very attractive to the devotees of the game. Anders Rasmussen and E. A. Nelson were unanimously voted to be the "niftiest" with the cue. All seemed to enjoy themselves immensely and the best of spirits prevailed. The members departed with three roof-raising cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Bertermann.

INDICATIONS OF BIG EASTER BUSINESS.

With Easter a little more than two weeks hence, the local trade are making active preparations, the feeling being general that there will be no retrenchment in any quarter in the matter of flower buying for this, the greatest of all floral holidays. In view of the fact that many of the young men of the country are serving with the colors, there will be numerous special services in the churches and flowers will doubtless be more in evidence than ever before—which is as it should be. In this vicinity, however, the supply of Easter lilies will probably be none too plentiful, and many local florists are casting about for additional stock from outside sources.

NOTES.

With more moderate weather florists are now beginning to compare this season's coal bill with that of last year—and are shaking their heads sadly. One startling story going the rounds is that Frey & Frey, of Lincoln, used $2,400 worth of fuel in the first 24 days in January—exactly $100 worth per day. The heavy coal consumption and attendant cost of high prices have dampened the spirits of many growers who contemplated additional glass this spring, with the result that there will be no immediate enlargements worthy of mention in this section at present.

J. F. Wilson & Sons, Inc., of Council Bluffs, are reported as offering to buy the entire supply of lilies of florists in this vicinity and throughout the state.

EASTER PROSPECTS PROMISING.

There is nothing new to report in regard to market conditions at this time—much the same as that of a week ago, with the exception that funeral orders were more numerous. Prospects in the line of cut flowers for the Easter trade are very promising with most of the growers with the exception of possibly the lily supply. We are much in the same boat as a good many of the other growers in different parts of the country, in that no abundance of Easter lilies, both as pot plants or cut, are anticipated.

CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting, which was held March 7, was very well attended and several topics of importance came up and brought out a lively discussion. At this time it was decided to have our annual display of cut flowers and pot plants at the April 4 meeting at our regular meeting place. All local growers are asked to make a display of some kind, and out-of-town brethren who have something new or extra fine should not miss this chance to gain a little extra publicity. Chairman A. Hare, of the entertainment committee, reported having arranged a theatre party for the benefit of the club at the Merrill theatre, April 16-18. Tickets can now be had from club members or at either of the three wholesale houses. This being a movie show, a good chance for publicity by our Florists' Advertising Association presents itself. President Kennedy also brought up the S. A. F. advertising campaign and urged more hearty co-operation. As the time for the sale of spring stock is rapidly approaching, the matter of selling price came up for discussion. The fact that the cost of production this season is a good deal greater than ever before, it was voiced that it is out of the question to quote last year's figures. The point of competition by the local gardeners, who in the past have been in the habit of asking less than the florists, then came up with the result that the chair appointed a committee of three, viz., C. Dallwig, H. Arndt, Jr., and the club secretary, to confer with either a committee or the gardeners' association direct in order that they, too, will fall in line.

NOTES.

On March 9-10 we were treated to a severe windstorm, accompanied by rain, sleet and snow, which put a good many telephones out of commission and delayed traffic to a great extent. Up to now no losses at greenhouses have been reported.

The opening of a branch by the American Exchange Bank in the Plankinton arcade March 6 was the occasion for a good day for quite a few florists. As one remarked, "It was a regular flower show."

While growers can now get all the coal they need for the present, the matter of next winter's supply is a point of speculation.

The Wauwatosa Floral Co. is now cutting sweet peas with exceptionally long stems. Stock like that always moves well.

New York Federation of Societies.

A business meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs will be held in the office of Secretary Young, 1170 Broadway, New York, March 18, at 4 p. m. It is hoped that it may be possible for each organization to have delegates present at that meeting for matters of importance in connection with the federation of agriculture of New York state are to be discussed.

EASTER LILIES are late, and the hard forcing to which many of them are being subjected is not improving their quality.

THE BOYS in France, the Liberty bond sales and Uncle Sam will be aided very materially at this time by the prompt settlement of outstanding accounts the country over.

ALL income tax schedules must be filed before April 1.

FLORISTS everywhere will promote the best interests of the trade by helping the war garden workers in every way possible.

WITH some growers the slogan for 1918 appears to be: "Cut down the production, improve the quality and advance the price."

SHOW the trade what you have to offer through our advertising columns. On account of the fuel shortage, many growers are in need of spring stock for local sales.

GLASS.—Many of the more modern greenhouse plants throughout the country have a greatly increased valuation, from the inventory viewpoint, in the present high price of glass, said to be $6 to $7 per box.

President Favors Home Gardening.

Washington, March 13.—President Wilson today authorized Secretary Lane to conduct through the federal bureau of education a nation-wide campaign for school-directed home gardening. The bureau will urge school boards, superintendents of education and teachers to co-operate in making the project a success.

American Sweet Pea Society.

The annual meeting and exhibition of this society had been planned to be held in connection with that of the New York Horticultural Society, but it was later determined to go to Philadelphia, where in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society the display will be given in the large and elegantly appointed Greek hall in the Wanamaker store. The date fixed is Tuesday and Wednesday, June 25-26. A special donation of $100 to add to the list of prizes by W. Atlee Burpee Co. is a welcome addition.

President G. W. Kerr feels sure that the exhibition will be a great success. A hall has also been tendered for the meetings, all of which space is given without cost by Mr. John Wanamaker.

No Non-Essentials.

In an address to more than 1,000 members of the manufacturers' council of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce at Newark, January 21, Warren C. King, director of the council, said in part:

"This talk of non-essential industries should cease. Every industry that pays workers wages with which they must buy food is an essential industry and should be maintained. This country is not going to the devil, and if Dr. Garfield and Mr. McAdoo are unable to cope with the situation there is somebody in this country who can handle it in such a manner that the shackles that are now around the limbs of industry will be stricken off and once more the wheels will turn, not five days a week but the full six days."

Dollar for Dollar.

A savings bank in a New York village of 5,000 people figured up business for 1917. "In spite of the Liberty Loan we have gained $250,000 in deposits over 1916," exclaimed a trustee to the secretary. "I call it marvelous."

"In spite of!" echoed the secretary. "You are dead wrong. It is because of the Liberty Loan that we got most of that $250,000. It represents mainly new accounts." "For the last eight months people who never saw the inside of a savings bank have been walking in here and planking down a dollar a week to buy $50 bonds." "And a dollar a week for their account, eh?" inquired the trustee. "You have guessed it," the secretary told him.—New York Sun.

"Now, here is the same problem reversed to fit our case," said Henry Penn, chairman of the S. A. F. publicity campaign. "For every dollar expended in this campaign, it will return 10, providing we tie our own local publicity to the magazine advertisements, and thereby bring before the people's minds the effect of the national advertisement. So, send in your subscriptions to John Young, Secretary, 1170 Broadway, New York, who will acknowledge same through our trade press."

Winter of Record Severity Passing.

The winter of 1917-18 will go down in the annals as the most severe ever experienced in this country. This, together with the high price and difficulties in obtaining coal, added to the poor transportation facilities, which latter was probably the most serious handicap, presented almost insurmountable difficulties to the growers and shippers of plants and cut flowers.

The recent mild spell indicates that the worst of the severe weather is over and the trade everywhere is breathing easier. Many lessons have been learned. New ideas of greenhouse temperature and methods in conservation of fuel consumption that were not thought possible have been gained by the experiences of the past season.

With government control of the railways, there is no question but that the direct routings, without the expensive long hauls of competing lines, will greatly facilitate the delivery of coal. The quick moving of first-class freight, as handled by the express companies, should also show marked improvement. With these difficulties out of the way, the business should resume its normal condition, as the demand, except in the higher class trade, has been quite the equal of that of a year ago.

Personal.

John Cook, of Baltimore, Md., left Miami, Fla., for home March 11 to prepare for the Easter business at the ripe old age of 84 years. He has spent the past 10 weeks in Miami, and this is his ninth winter at the resort. Mr. Cook has two promising roses coming on, one a glorified La France and an Ophelia seedling, white, slightly tinted.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., who has returned from an extended southern trip, reports the south, especially Texas, very prosperous. His new rose, Columbia, is selling well, and his health is improving slowly.

David Fairchild, of the Department of Agriculture, has purchased a winter home and cocoanut grove in Florida.

CALL KEEPS MARKET FAIRLY CLEAN.

The market is fairly well supplied, especially with carnations, which are becoming almost too plentiful, and prices are accordingly lower. Roses are very good and quotations hold firm. The most popular flower, however, is the Dutch hyacinth. Tulips in all varieties, fine jonquils and daffodils and also freesias can be had, both as cut stock and in pots, and many are used in arrangements for hospital orders, which have been numerous. Funeral work is also reported heavy during the week, and many odds and ends have been used up in this way. The wholesale houses report heavy receipts, but the local retailers keep the iceboxes fairly well cleaned up day by day. Easter orders are being booked in good numbers and supplies are moving well. The pot plant supply at the ranges of the local growers seems limited and some will have but a small part of their usual lily crop. The demand will be heavy, as rhododendrons, azaleas and spiraeas will be sadly missed, especially in church decorations. E. J. B.

Providence, R. I.

GOOD EASTER SUPPLY EXCEPT LILIES.

Trade during the past week has been good, with stock plentiful and commanding good prices. From the present outlook the only flower that will be in limited supply for Easter will be the lily. There is little or no stock at present, and some of the growers will not have them in on time. Other pot stock will be plentiful, and judging from the calls already being received the demand will be heavy. The cut flower requirements will be well taken care of with excellent violets in abundance. Sweet peas will also be on hand in good numbers. Floral work holds up well and helps to keep the heavy supply well cleaned up.

Tribute of Wm. Kleinheinz to Davey Tree Surgery

The Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, Ohio

Gentlemen: It is a pleasure at this time to write you in regard to the satisfactory character of the work your men did for Mr. Widener in 1914. In going over the place recently I noticed that some of the smaller wounds were entirely healed over and in every case the bark line has grown over the fillings. These trees are now strong structurally and healthy physically. I am glad to recommend your methods to any tree owner.

WM. KLEINHEINZ.

The saving of priceless trees is a matter of first importance to every estate.

Davey Tree Surgery is a fulfillment of the maximum expectations of those who love and value trees. A careful examination of your trees will be made by appointment.

Mr. Wm. Kleinheinz, Superintendent of the P. A. B. Widener Estate, Ogontz, Pa.

This tree had a dangerously decayed crotch, so weakened that a severe storm would soon have torn it asunder. Today, thanks to the art of Davey Tree Surgery, the tree is perfectly sound and healthy. Note how the crotch has been treated.

Tree Surgery is never "half good." It is scientifically accurate and mechanically perfect—or else it violates correct scientific and mechanical laws. Here is an example of perfect tree surgery—Davey Tree Surgery. Note the beautiful healing of the bark over the cement work.

In this tree decay had eaten down through the tree from the crotch almost to the base. Scientific Davey methods stopped the process of decay and saved the tree from an early and certain destruction.

Worcester County Horticultural Society.

The spring show of the Worcester County Horticultural Society was held in Horticultural hall, Worcester, March 7-8. In spite of unfavorable conditions, the show equaled, and in many respects surpassed, the spring shows of other years. The hall centerpiece was a garden arranged by E. W. Breed. To the left and right of the garden, flowers and blooming plants from Irithorp, the home of Mrs. Homer Gage, made a striking appearance. Scattered throughout the hall were tables of pink sweet peas and pottery and choice flowers from H. F. A. Lange; a display of the new rose, Boston, from the Hadley Rose Co. of South Hadley; carnations from the Sunnyside Greenhouses and A. H. Knight; orchids from Mrs. J. C. Whitin, and violet tinted sweet peas and pink carnations, displayed by Mrs. Percy G. Forbes. Randall's Flower Shop furnished a stage exhibition of pot plants, roses, sweet peas and box-wood and other shrubs. The awards were:

Cut flowers—Irithorp, 1st; Mrs. H. J. Eager, 2d.

Carnations—A. S. Knight, 1st; Sunnyside Greenhouses, 2d.

Orchids—Mrs. J. C. Whitin, 1st.

Azaleas—Irithorp, 1st.

Cineraria—Charles Potter, 1st; Mrs. P. G. Forbes, 2d; Allyn Hixon, 4th.

Cyclamens—E. W. Breed, 1st.

Primula collection—E. W. Breed, 1st; Charles Potter, 2d; Irithorp, 3d.

"Say it with Flowers"

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?

The national advertising campaign cannot be the greatest success it ought to be and will be unless every Flower and Plant Grower, Wholesaler and Retailer does his share. Every single member of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists should do these three things—do them right away.

First—Subscribe to the publicity fund. Send every dollar that your business will allow. Subscribe a second time if you really can afford it. Money—the sinews of war—will push this advertising campaign clean "over the top."

Second—Every member should get at least one fellow florist in his town to join the Society. Why not do that today while the matter is fresh in your mind.

Third—Use the glass signs, transfer window signs, newspaper advertisements prepared for you by the Society of American Florists at great expense and offered at a nominal price.

Don't put these matters off—act TODAY.

If there is anything further you want to know about this great plan to increase the sale of Flowers and Plants, write,

EASTER LILY SUPPLY AMPLE.

The market was very active the past week, with a fine variety of stock and unlimited quantities with the exception of roses, many of the growers being off-crop. There is almost a flood of Spencer sweet peas, which are of unsurpassed quality, and which are finding a ready market. Carnations are a great standby, as they are of satisfactory quality and always obtainable. Bulbous stocks are very plentiful and the quality is good. Violets, both single and double, seem to fairly rain down, they are so plentiful and of such good proportions. Easter and calla lilies are seen in such large numbers that it is hard to believe a shortage of these flowers possible for Easter, as some growers are predicting. Both retailers and wholesalers are looking forward to a record Easter demand and the local greenhouses are looking well with their Easter stock, the lilies making a fine showing.

NOTES.

The New Haven Floral Co. will have some fine stock for its Easter trade, judging from the showing at their greenhouses, both at New Haven and in this city. Some excellent ramblers rose plants and hydrangeas were noted; also Easter lilies and a big crop of Milady, Russell, Ophelia and Killarney roses are due.

The violent windstorm which occurred here Saturday night did considerable damage to the greenhouses of this city, blowing out the glass in untold areas. Luckily the temperature was above freezing and no damage was caused from exposure.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. had a very artistic window last week, in which handsome new spring baskets were filled with lemon yellow snapdragons, calendulas, daffodils and jonquills. They have had an unusually heavy call for funeral work.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are promising some extra fine roses for their Easter trade, with Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia and Sawyer as headliners. Their carnation plants also look very promising.

High-grade sweet peas, lilies and Ophelia roses are leaders at the Doswell Floral Co.'s store. Weddings and heavy funeral work have kept the force hustling all week.

The Flick Floral Co. sent out a very handsome casket blanket of Cattleya Schroederæ orchids, single violets and Spencer sweet peas for a recent funeral.

John Knecht's greenhouses on East Wayne street have already taken on their holiday aspect. His plants are exceptionally good.

NEW CANNA-BURPEE'S "FIERY CROSS"

Of the hundreds of new varieties of Sweet Peas that it has been our pleasure to introduce, none have become so popular as Burpee's "Fiery Cross." This Sweet Pea bore the distinction of being the highest priced Sweet Pea that the world has ever known. We paid the introducer $1.40 a seed for every seed that was in existence at that time. "Fiery Cross" has been the ultimate in the Sweet Pea world, and this has led us to name Burpee's New Canna "Fiery Cross."

"Fiery Cross" in the Canna world stands for just as much as "Fiery Cross" in the Sweet Pea world. "Fiery Cross" Canna is in a class by itself. The Famous "Firebird" Canna, which was an extremely high-priced novelty, is one of the parent flowers, and in the fields of the originator "Fiery Cross" was known as Firebird Seedling No. 10.

Never before has there been a Canna of equal merit offered to the flower-lovers of this country. We feel sure that "Fiery Cross" will fill a place in the Canna beds that has never yet been attained by any red Canna. It grows to a height of four to four and one-half feet; flower stems grow from a foot to eighteen inches taller, making the total height approximately five to six feet. The flower-heads are fifteen to eighteen inches in length, and carry from fifteen to twenty open flowers of a vivid scarlet shading to crimson. So firm are the glistening petals they do not wilt in the brightest sun. The foliage is a beautiful lustrous blue-green. It is entirely free from blight and disease. Flowers continuously from the latter part of June until frost.

We deem it a rare privilege to introduce such a wonderful New Canna. As an individual plant or in beds this peerless flower will take first rank. Stock is necessarily limited. Order early. Divisions $2.00 each; $20.00 a dozen.

Chicago.

STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

Stock is plentiful at this writing and there is no scarcity in any line with the possible exception of roses, which at times are a little on the short side. American Beauty roses continue to clean up well each day at good prices, and the same holds true for Mrs. Chas. Russell, which in some instances are reaching the market in exceptionally fine condition. Some very fancy Milady, Killarney Brilliant and Ophelia are also included in the daily shipments, which sell quickly, owing to their splendid quality. Carnations are in large supply and are to be had in big lots at reasonable prices, but the demand for this item is gradually improving and prices are stiffening somewhat. Sweet peas never were better or in larger supply this season than they are right now, and very fancy stock is obtainable at very reasonable prices. The new variety, Chicago Jewel, is making more friends every day, as is Columbia, which looks very promising. Orchids, gardenias and lily of the valley are in large enough supply to satisfy the demand. Violets, snapdragons, iris, fresias, calendulas,

Lieutenant F. W. Haeger.
Formerly With A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

tulips, jonquils, daffodils, narcissi, wallflowers, stevia, daisies, pansies, mignonette, forget-me-nots, candy-tufts, lilies, callas, bouvardias, anemones and amaryllis are included in the offerings along with a few other miscellaneous items. Business is a trifle more brisk this week than it has been, but could still be much better. The outlook for Easter is very bright, and while there promises to be a large supply of stock of all kinds, the retail florists will find it to their advantage to place their orders as early as possible, for the demand on this occasion is always heavy, and it would not be at all surprising if the market cleaned up completely in all lines long before the rush is over. Read the Easter advertisements carefully in this issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST and send in your order as early as possible so as to avoid any chance of disappointment. Do it now.

NOTES.

Albert Erickson, of Vaughan's Greenhouses, and family have the sympathy of their many friends in the loss of a fine boy, who died March 8, seven years of age.

Mention the American Florist when writing

Lieutenant F. W. Haeger, formerly manager of the plant department of the A. L. Randall Co., is now stationed at Camp Grant, Rockford, being attached to the 161st Depot Brigade as an instructor, first mention of which was made in previous issues of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. He was with the 2d I. N. G. during the trouble with Mexico and was stationed at the border for some time. He entered the first officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan and was awarded a commission of second lieutenant and shortly afterwards was sent to Texas with a company of national guardsmen. He was transferred to Rockford recently and is making such a good record that it would not be at all surprising to his many friends to hear of his being promoted in the near future. His brother, Francis, is also with the colors and holds a commission of first lieutenant in a machine gun company stationed at Louisville, Ky. The Haeger lieutenants have a sister, Gertrude, employed in the office of this publication.

Kyle & Foerster are handling a splendid supply of fancy sweet peas including the popular new red variety, Chicago Jewel, grown by Kott-rasch Bros., proprietors of the Deerfield Nurseries. Mrs. Chas. Russell and Milady roses of unusual quality are seen here.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association will meet at the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, March 14, at 6 o'clock. The committee, consisting of August Poehlmann, N. J. Wietor and Frank Johnson, will report on the next Liberty bond sale campaign.

Walter H. Wilson, vice-president of the Central Fruit Company, organized the first trade division to handle the next Liberty loan, Friday, March 8. The division is known as the miscellaneous one in the general organization which is being worked out. A canvass of the business represented at the meeting was $10,000,000 and Mr. Wilson gave a luncheon preliminary to organization of the next loan. A number of talks were made and a special organization effected, with John T. Richards chairman of the division. Those representing the several lines of business were: President, John T. Richards, of the Chicago Casket Co.; Stanley Brock, Troy Laundry Machinery Co.; A. F. Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Brothers Co., wholesale florists; A. E. Nelson, of Swain, Nelson & Co., nurserymen; H. W. Ackhoff, with George W. Sheldon & Co., forwarding agents; David Peck, of the Bowman Dairy Co.; Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store; Nicholas Hunt, representing the detective agencies; Warren J. Smith, of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Co.; Victor Adland and George Mattmiller, representing the laundries' association; William Hoefer, representing the American Laundry Machinery Co.; Walter Crowley and Arthur Berg, representing cleaners and dyers; Samuel Wolfert, with Thomas Donnelly, representing the pawnbrokers; Ira J. Mix, president of the milk dealers' association; Charles W. Dempster, of Graceland cemetery; D. B. Quinlan, of the undertakers' association. Some list, believe me. The fellow who has any intention of not subscribing for a bond had better read it over a couple of times. After you have, read it over some more, and then if you have not yet made up your mind to do your bit, get ready to answer to the detective agency, florist, undertaker, casket maker, and last but not least read number 15 carefully, very carefully.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have added a new sweet pea grower to their list of consignors, which will give them an extra supply to take care of their Easter trade. William Johnson, manager of this firm's shipping department, calls attention to the raise in price of the large shipping box, 60x18x10, from 57 cents to 94 cents each.

Wietor Bros. will have a heavy supply of carnations for Easter for the crops in their greenhouses are in excellent condition and large cuts are in sight for this occasion. They grow all the new and standard varieties in quantity, including the favorites Matchless, Nebraska, Alice and Rosette.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, is enthusiastic over the outlook for Easter which he figures will be fully as good if not better than last year judging from the early orders they have already booked. Lilies will be in good supply as usual with them as well as Darwin tulips and sweet peas.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. will be strong in cut lilies and Darwin tulips for Easter, which Pyfer & Olsem are growing in quantity at their Wilmette greenhouses and are shipping to them.

Peter Duris reports that business has been exceptionally good at the Central Floral Co.'s store the past few weeks with the total sales showing a great increase over the same period of 1917.

Charles Brown, formerly with Vaughan's Greenhouses at Western Springs, who is with the colors, writes from London, Eng., that he expects to be in France in the near future.

Miss Dora Brown, of the Colonial Flower Shop, Goshen, Ind., was the guest of Allie Zech and wife the last week while here buying her Easter supplies.

George Wienhoeber filled an order for all the Maywood growers which was delivered to the Luedke funeral and called for a large eight-foot heart of the new rose Columbia, colored freesias and pink carnations, in the center of which were draped two silk American flags, the symbol of international liberty, for which the young American was willing to sacrifice his life. The design was artistically arranged and had a touch of patriotism about it which was not fully appreciated until the time that his khaki-clad companions fired the parting volley and the wind lifted the flags sufficiently to permit them to join sadly but proudly in the final touching but fitting tribute.

The body of Corporal Arthur Luedke, of Company D, One Hundred and Thirty-second infantry, stationed at Camp Logan, arrived at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Luedke, in Maywood, March 11. He died of meningitis while at camp and was given a military funeral the following Tuesday with interment at Concordia cemetery. He was 20 years of age and was well known to the local trade, being a member of the florists' club and attending many of the monthly meetings. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, and the heartfelt sympathy of the trade is extended to the bereaved family in this their hour of sorrow.

For Your Supply of CUT FLOWERS

Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

Ed. Gullett, with Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, who has been visiting with his brother, Fred, at Deer Lodge, Mont., passed through here March 9 on his way home. His brother, who has been in the banking business at Deer Lodge for the past 29 years, accompanied him home, but took time between trains to call on several of his old friends, including A. L. Randall, Chas. Fisk, Carl Cropp and others. He was formerly with J. C. Vaughan and was disappointed to find that he is wintering at Miami, Fla., as he looked forward to a pleasant visit with him. Another old friend he greatly missed was Billy Lynch, now located at Hatfield, Mass.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is featuring extra fancy Killarney Brilliant roses and White Perfection carnations, which are attracting much favorable attention. The supply department reports a better than ever demand for green dye for St. Patrick's day. There have been a large number of visitors out to Poehlmann's greenhouses the past week buying plants for Easter, and the demand is so heavy that a complete cleanup is in sight. Lilies, cyclamens and rambler roses are the principal things in blooming stock.

Horace R. Hughes, well-known retail florist, has a new shamrock box that looks very promising. It holds 12 Keller one-and-three-quarter-inch pots and carries the wording "Shamrocks from Dear Old Ireland's Sod," below which appears "Tipperary Brand." John Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, pronounces it a winner.

The Fleischman Floral Co. had an exhibit of the new pink snapdragon, St. Louis, at its store this week which attracted much favorable attention. The stock came from the W. A. Rowe Floral Co., Kirkwood, Mo., who is placing this variety on the market this season.

J. A. Budlong is cutting a good supply of roses, particularly the pretty miniature variety, Mrs. Nesbit, which looks better every time the writer sees it. Stock in general is in large supply at this establishment and promises to continue so until after Easter.

R. E. Jones, of the Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., was here this week on business. He signified his intention of attending the New York spring flower show to be held in the Grand Central Palace, March 14-21.

The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Company received an order this week from the Guardian Angel Florist for two new houses to replace the four that were destroyed during the recent heavy snow storm.

The John C. Moninger Co. has received an order from the Menger Greenhouse Co., Wichita, Kan., for six new houses, 35x300 feet, including a complete vacuum heating system, etc.

At the E. C. Amling Co.'s store Rainbow freesias and sweet peas are seen in quantity and will be in good supply for Easter. Fancy iris is in good demand here. E. C. Amling and son Harold are back from the oil regions near Wichita, Kan. H. C. Wendland, who made the trip with them, is still in the west, where he will enjoy a few days' hunting.

Eric Johnson, manager of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, will have a large crop of stevia to distribute at Easter. Lilies and fancy sweet peas promise to be in large supply with this house, although the present indications are that the former will not be quite as plentiful as in 1917.

Erne & Co. are handling a large steady supply of fancy smilax, which is their leader in greens. Cut flowers of all kinds are included in the daily offerings and the outlook for a large supply for Easter is very encouraging.

C. L. Washburn reports that Bassett & Washburn have had a number of calls from out-of-town wholesalers the past week for roses, which caused a sudden tightening up in this line the latter part of last week.

R. Williams, of Williams & Co., South Bend, Ind., was here on a Easter buying trip this week. He reports

H. BAYERSDORFER & CO., 1129-31 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

H. Van Gelder, manager of Percy Jones, Inc., has no complaint to make in regard to business, which has been very good considering conditions, and is looking forward to the best Easter ever. Carnations will be the leader at this house on this occasion, not to mention all the other seasonable offerings in cut flowers and greens.

Peter Reinberg is booking a large number of orders for carnation cuttings and young rose stock, for which the demand is exceeding all previous records. Miss Marguerite McNulty, who has charge at the Reinberg office, reports the safe arrival of her brother Archie in France. He is with the colors.

Irving Stein had five large floral pieces for the opening of the new Woods theatre this week, which kept the wire-workers of Joseph Ziska & Sons on the jump for a couple of days. A large five-foot W and S, two five-foot horseshoes and an eight-foot ladder comprised the order.

D. F. Simonds, of the Ogden Floral Co., reports that trade has been very good in his neighborhood the past week, and if the Easter demand is up to expectations he sees no reason why he will not be able to take his customary fishing trip next summer.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is receiving a very fancy grade of Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Ophelia roses from the new George Weiland greenhouses at Niles Centre. Carnations are to be had in quantities at this establishment.

George Wienhoeber had a large basket of roses for the opening of the new Woods theatre this week and the window decorations for the Marshall Field & Co. opening, calling for $1,000 worth of blooming plants.

Hugh Barker, who was formerly with THE AMERICAN FLORIST, now with U. S. Supply Co., 35th Inf., stationed at Nogales, Ariz., was slightly injured in a recent train wreck.

H. A. Cecil, with the George Wittbold Co., has returned from a successful business trip through Michigan, Kentucky and other states.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling a fine supply of bulbous stock, particularly tulips, which will be one of their leaders for Easter.

H. B. Kennicott, of Kennicott Bros. Co., and Nic. Thinnis left March 11 for a short visit at Clearwater, Fla.

Harry Gardiner, with A. T. Pyfer & Co., was called for examination by his draft board this week.

Cincinnati.

BUSINESS SOMEWHAT SLOW.

The market is well supplied with stock of all kinds. Business is somewhat quiet and as a result stock has accumulated greatly in the wholesale houses. Openings this week are expected to take up a considerable part of the receipts. Prices are rather low. Roses have become plentiful since the last writing. Carnations and sweet peas are in a good supply and manage to sell fairly well. Easter lilies are plentiful, while rubrums and callas are each in a good supply. Bulbous stock of all kinds is fairly plentiful. The offerings in this line include double and single tulips, daffodils, jonquills, Dutch hyacinths, narcissi and freesia. Lily of the valley, orchids and violets may be had. Other offerings are baby primroses, calendulas, mignonette and forget-me-nots. Blooming plants for the Easter season have made their appearance in the retail stores.

NOTES.

L. H. Kyrk advises that a note from Frank & Sons, at Portland, Ind., states that although they lost about 200 panes of glass in the storm last Saturday, their stock was not harmed in any way.

Arlington George, who is in the navy, was home on a furlough last week, while T. Ben George, Jr., joined the colors and left for San Antonio for training this week.

Wm. Rodgers, of Dayton, O., was in this city on business last week, and while here renewed many old friendships.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in lots of tulips that were exceptionally fine.

Geo. Klotter is cutting some excellent mignonette and single violets.

Visitors: I. Bayersdorfer, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; John Evans, Richmond, Ind.; Jos. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Miss Harbison, Danville, Ky.; Mrs. J. J. Lampert, Xenia, O., and G. A. Beckman, Middleton, O.

WEEK'S BUSINESS ABOVE COMPLAINT.

A fairly good week is the consensus of opinion among the wholesale cut flower trade of the period just closed. Saturday, March 9, saw a good demand with a cleanup in nearly all lines. The feature of the market is the great crop of sweet peas; all growers are making large shipments. Some of the stock is superb, with extra long stems, while nearly all is of improved quality. While it all appears to sell, yet prices are low, $2 buying the best grades. Carnations are also very plentiful, the street men cleaning out thousands of them on Saturday. Easter lilies are none too plentiful. The Easter crop is not at all certain, not so many being grown as last season and quite a few crops being somewhat backward. Callas are seen in quantity; still they all seem to find a market. There is an abundance of bulbous stock, particularly daffodils. Emperor is now seen in all the stores. Calendulas are plentiful. Many are, however, of inferior grades. Why not grow one-half the quantity and do them well? Roses are a bit shy and will be for another couple of weeks. Still there appears enough to go around. Cattleyas are slowing up, still plenty for all demands. Gardenias are street provender. There is good lilac which finds ready buyers. Lily of the valley is very erratic; plenty for all demands today, none tomorrow. On account of the scarcity of this flower, the demand is dying out. Not one-fourth of the quantity is handled that was easily disposed of four years ago. Asparagus is much more plentiful. Southern-grown stock is now arriving of good quality. Violets are plentiful and meet

TRANSPORTATION SITUATION.

Transportation is still a great factor, or perhaps it is the lack of this service or its uncertainties that are most considered. Many florists' autos from cities and towns 25 to 50 miles away are seen here in quest of Easter stock, which is selected and taken along. Plans are now being laid to deliver Easter plants by truck as far as Baltimore and Washington. Let us hope that by the time another year rolls around Uncle Sam will have his schedules so arranged as to insure deliveries on time at the holiday season.

QUALITY FIRST.

Clarence Liggett, of the S. S. Pen-nock Co., thinks growers stand in their own light by placing quantity before quality. As a rule, there is more stock of nearly all kinds in the market than can readily be disposed of. What is wanted is well finished stock of good grade, not the highest, but a good quality, in which each flower is salable. Pinch out half the buds and inis one of the generals of the florists' armies of the country. Robert Halliday, of Baltimore, was also a visitor. Joseph Heacock spent the past two weeks in the Presbyterian hospital, undergoing a minor operation. His friends will be glad to know that he has now practically recovered and is able to be about again as usual.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are moving a lot of stock for Easter. Special arrangements with the express companies in making trains is a great help. Their Easter Kid flower holders are a pleasing novelty.

Eugene Bernheimer is receiving enlarged shipments, but cleans up every day at quick moving prices. Easter lilies, sweet peas and September Morn roses are features.

Martin Reukauf is well satisfied with his initial business. Stocks are arriving every day, which will soon fill his four-story building, 433 Callowhill street.

The Jos. G. Neidinger Co. is having quite a run on its hand-painted novelty stork screen. It is a beauty when filled with flowers.

The Robert Craig Co. has a splendid stock of Easter lilies; they are timed just right.

NOTE.

This city is to enjoy one national convention and exhibition, that of the American Sweet Pea Society, which is to be held at Wanamaker's, June 25-26. The spring exhibition of herbaceous stock and sweet peas will also be held in conjunction, which will make altogether quite an important show.

FAIR DEMAND AND AMPLE SUPPLY.

Considering the Lenten season and the fact that milder weather is increasing the supply of stock, the business of the past week was fair. In carnations, sweet peas, violets and narcissi there is a surplus and prices are necessarily low. The supply of American Beauty roses is not heavy and the best specials wholesale at the rate of $40 to $50 per 100. As noted in our last letter, prices on tea roses have fallen off. The approach of Easter has a tendency to stiffen prices on cut lilies and good stock brings eight and 10 cents per flower. The Darwin tulips are now a feature of the market, wholesaling at 50 and 75 cents per dozen. Cut stock acacias is quite plentiful, but it moves slowly. This we attribute to less table decorating than in former years. We have never noticed a strong demand for any length of time for any yellow stock except for decorations. Even the yellow chrysanthemums grow stale when they have a long season. In what we usually term the minor stocks, such as snapdragons, wallflowers, marigolds, French anemones, pansies and some others, there is an abundant supply and they are cheap. The best snapdragons brought good prices for a time, but are now cheaper. A quantity of this stock comes in with crooked spikes, poorly flowered.

March 11.—There is a fair amount of business this morning, but no rush. A sudden cold wave, with an 82-mile-an-hour gale, yesterday, checked what business the retail stores might have had on a pleasant day. The supply of stock is not particularly heavy for this date, but there is enough.

NOTES.

A story comes from Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J., that has the flavor of Damon and Pythias. John Sherrerd, a florist of Henderson county, N. J., was called in the selective draft and a week ago was ordered to camp. He did not ask for exemption, but did ask for a stay of six weeks, to carry him through the Easter business in the greenhouses. He had a friend, Lester Hope, who was also in the draft, but so far down that there was little prospect of his being called for some time to come. When he heard of the summons to Sherrerd he volunteered and took his place. His magnanimous act has been duly appreciated by his comrades at the camp.

Traendly & Schenck, 436 Sixth avenue, are receiving a particularly fine stock of roses and orchids. From Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J., they have such roses as Mock, Ophelia, Stanley, Ward and a light pink sport of Mock. From the Madison, N. J., Cut Flower Co. fine American Beauties and Hadleys; from the Rowayton, Conn., greenhouses, Ophelia, Stanley, Shawyer, White Killarney and Hoosier Beauty. Herman Kommitsch, Secaucus, N. J., sends them a great stock of cattleyas and fancy orchids.

Mayor Hylan returned from Palm Beach, Fla., March 6, where he had spent two weeks. In honor of his return, Park Commissioner William Grell had the municipal building handsomely decorated with tall palms and "other bowers of tropical luxuriance," as one reporter put it. The plants were from the greenhouses of the park department. This shows that Commissioner Grell understands politics and human nature.

The most complete stock of pot roses that we have ever seen in one range is that of Anton Schultheis, of College Point. He grows many varieties of stock and grows them well, but roses are his specialties. He has a great stock of the beautiful pink, Tausendschoen, Dorothy Perkins and other sylvania Terminal, was drafted and has been accepted by the National Army surgeons and is likely to go to camp in a short time. He has been a clever and efficient young man in the business and we believe he will make a creditable record as a soldier.

During the past few weeks there have been several heavy wind storms, and in one of them one of the plate glass windows was blown out of the store of George D. Nicholas, Seventh avenue and 123rd street. At this store we have recently noticed a fine arrangement of baskets of plants and cut flowers.

Joseph A. Millang, in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Company, is now receiving a fine stock of American Beauty roses from the F. R. and P. M. Pierson ranges. Another of his attractive features is the Cottage Gardens carnations, which are new at their best. He will have a great stock of roses and carnations for Easter.

again buying in the wholesale district. They spent their honeymoon in Florida.

William P. Ford, 107 West 28th street, is receiving a fine general stock, carnations and callas being noteworthy. On March 8 he received the first shipment of atropa or belladonna on the market.

Washington now seems to be the "Hub"—if not of the universe—of the United States. J. H. Small & Sons buy an immense quantity of stock in this market and ship it to their Washington store.

At the range of Spivak & Perlow, of Elmhurst, who sell their stock in this market, we have recently noticed a fine stock of pot lilies that will be in for Easter; also fine roses and hydrangeas.

Richard Watson, who has been a salesman for M. C. Ford for a number of years, and is a fine young man, was called in the selective draft and is now at Camp Upton, L. I.

We are pleased to report that Frank H. Traendly and M. C. Ford, both popular men in the wholesale district, who had grippe, are now much better and back to business.

Calling recently on Peter Jacobson, a grower of Asparagus plumosus, at Elmhurst, we found his stock in fine condition, and he has to cut closely to supply his customers.

Hentz & Nash, Inc., in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Company, are handling an exceptionally fine stock of Russell, Double White Killarney and other roses.

The new firm of N. G. Pappas & Co., wholesalers, of 112 West 28th street, besides a good stock of cut flowers, will have pot roses for Easter.

In addition to a great stock of all the staple cut flowers, the Henshaw Floral Co. is handling fine cut stock of Adiantum Farleyense.

Alexander Donaldson, of Englewood, N. J., is bringing to the Cut Flower Exchange fine carnations and a variety of other cut stock.

William Kessler, 113 West 28th street, is receiving exceptionally fine lilies and sweet peas and a good variety of other stock.

J. J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, is receiving exceptionally fine Ward carnations. He is also handling hyacinths in pots and pans.

John J. Coan had his usual fine stock of shamrocks for St. Patrick's day. He is also receiving cut camellias.

Michael J. Vielbeg, formerly a retail florist at Rockaway Beach, died in Elizabeth, N. J., February 27, aged 38 years.

A new retail store has been opened at 757 Sixth avenue, near 43rd street, under the name of the Alpine Florist.

Goldstein & Futterman, 102 West 28th street, are receiving a good stock of Darwin tulips, lilies and iris.

Clarence Slinn, 112 West 28th street, is receiving fine violets and much other good stock.

FAIR BUSINESS BUT LOW PRICES.

Business was fairly good the first part of last week, but weakened at the close, with only a fair Saturday trade. Bulbous stock is very plentiful and prices are down. Carnations are also abundant and are moved at slow figures. Roses of all kinds are excellent, especially Ophelia and Francis Scott Key. The spring openings of the department stores are now in full swing and are adding their quota to the season's business. Spring blooming plants are much in demand.

NOTES.

H. E. Wilson has been busy with spring opening decorations, some quite elaborate. The regular meeting of the florists' association was held March 11. Charles Vick was the speaker of the evening, his topic being "Problems of 1918."

Colin T. Ogston, gardener for W. S. Kimball, reports the number of orchid blooms at this place greater than in other years at this time. Part of the greenhouse space has been closed until warm weather.

Felix Alberts has returned from Buffalo and has taken the management of the Geo. P. Neun store. He had the spring opening for the Sibley, Lindsay & Kerr store.

Walter Stroth, of Batavia, although he has closed part of his range as a fuel conservation measure, is still growing some excellent carnations.

J. B. Keller Sons have been making a fine display of Cineraria stellata, staged with orange and yellow tulips and baskets of daffodils.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

RUMOR says that in Denmark cabbage has sold at $50 per pound.

FLAXSEED brought record prices at Chicago March 11, $4.26 to $4.31 per bushel.

EARLY OHIO seed potatoes from the Red River valley are $1.50 per bushel, stock from other sections lower.

STOCKTON, CALIF.—S. D. Woodruff & Sons, New York, plan to establish considerable acreage in this vicinity.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district this week were quoted at $3.50 for colors and $4.50 to $5.00 for whites in car lots.

NEW YORK.—J. M. Thorburn & Co. say that buying, both trade and counter, is heavy. The demand started early and continues strong.

CALIFORNIA pole bean growers, who have been slow to quote prices for the coming season's crop, are reported making contracts now at $8.

VISITED CHICAGO: Chas. H. Breck, of Joseph Breck & Sons, Boston, Mass., returning from California; Theo. Cobb, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.

MOST good men are sometimes mistaken—even E. F. Winterson, the well known Chicagoan, who evidently thinks strawberry shortcake will win the war, judging from his latest catalogue.

CHARLES M. JACKMAN, representative of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, who was recently released from a German prison camp, is now at Toulon, France, inspecting flower seeds and bulbs.

CARLOADS of delayed Japan lily bulbs, rejected by original consignees at New York and Chicago, have been sold "unsight-unseen" at bargain prices by railroad companies since February 1. Who will get a prize?

FERTILIZER CONTROL. — Government control of the fertilizer industry is ordered by President Wilson in a proclamation requiring manufacturers and distributors to obtain licenses from the Secretary of Agriculture before March 20.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The W. Atlee Burpee Co. reports business far ahead of last year's sales, which were almost 100 per cent greater than the 1916 trade. A tremendously increased demand for seeds for small gardens is anticipated and indications point to cleanup in all lines.

OLLILOUES, FRANCE.—Bulb jobbers report seaboard and rail transportation worse than last year and all ocean steamers requisitioned by the government, hence sailings and stowage space uncertain. The white Roman hyacinth crop is diminishing, but Paper White narcissus shows about the same quantity as last year. The size of the bulbs will depend on April rains.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The spring trade in garden seeds, according to F. H. Ebeling, is opening up strong, many orders being placed well in advance, to avoid the usual rush. Delay in securing stocks from growers, long past due, the result of poor transportation, is the great hindrance.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Chris Reuter reports the demand for all seeds, especially corn, beans and peas, far in excess of any other season. With warm weather prevailing for the past month, business opened early, and even with a force of 87 people, working day and night, orders are about 10 days behind and are still pouring in.

BRISTOL, PA.—A good part of the seed farms, including the warehouses, of the David Landreth Seed Co. here, has been sold to the Merchant Shipbuilding Corporation, whose large plant adjoins the seed company's premises. The shipbuilding company, which has large war contracts, will occupy 125 acres, including the ground on which all the buildings are situated. There still remains 175 acres, to which the Landreth buildings will be removed and where the business will be continued.

THE Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., writes as follows March 9: "While we believe we are going to procure our usual planting acreage for the season of 1918, we are having the time of our lives to secure it, and at prices heretofore unheard of. We believe it is up to America to produce practically all of the seeds which will be available for planting in 1919, and we consider it the duty of every seed grower to produce the utmost amount possible during this season, for no matter how favorable the growing conditions may be, or how bountiful the harvest, we do not think more seeds can be produced than will be required for another spring."

Bean Prices.

Sales of New York white stock held last week's advance at $12 per 100 pounds in bulk, trackside, at Rochester. Michigan navies sold 50 cents higher at $13.50 f.o.b. Grand Rapids, and were quoted unofficially at $12.50 to growers at Holley. Colorado Pintos quoted on basis of contracts to growers, 8 cents per pound, and sold $8.60@8.70 f.o.b. Denver. California limas held a firm range at $13.50@13.75, and Pinks at $8.40@8.50 f.o.b. San Francisco. California growers are receiving $11.50 for white stock on requisition for the army. A canvass by the bean trade reported almost 100,000 bushels of most beans held by growers in western New York. Sales to jobbers followed generally steady prices at $13.75@14.25 per 100 pounds sacked for New York, Michigan and California white stock, and $14.00@15.00 for California limas. Colorado Pintos were quoted firm at $9.00@10.00 in southwestern markets.—Market News, March 7.

New York Seed Trade.

Business is active in the seed stores, though there is yet complaint among the seedsmen about the non-arrival of shipments. Another inconvenience to some is that the express companies will no longer call for packages; seedsmen must haul in their own trucks or hire it done.

John P. Cleary, well known in the seed and plant trade of this city, and as an auctioneer, has taken the position of manager for the MacNiff Horticultural Co. (Fred Cowperthwaite, late of Philadelphia, but formerly a resident of this city, has taken the position of assistant manager.

The Anglin & Walsh Co., Williamsbridge, has discontinued business. It is understood J. R. Walsh is in California.

Pea and Bean Acreage.

The Alfred J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., reports having secured nearly all of the acreage necessary to cover its contracts for pea and bean crops of 1918, the seed being placed in good localities with responsible farmers, and with anything like a favorable season satisfactory deliveries after the harvest are anticipated. It is too early, however, to make predictions as to what the yield will be, as planting of peas has not even begun, and it will be some time before beans will be started.

Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.

Roy K. Wheeler, formerly of Chicago, a brother of L. W. Wheeler, president and manager of the above named company, is now interested in the concern and will assist his brother in the management of the business. This company, organized in 1910, planted about 300 acres that year in garden seed, with sales of about $60,000. The sales for 1917 were about $300,000, and the 1918 planting will approximate 3,000 acres, devoted entirely to the production of garden seeds.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade March 13 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.25 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $21.00 to $29.00 per 100 pounds.

Profiteering in Seeds.

The following, signed by Secretary of Agriculture Houston and Food Administrator Hoover, is taken from the Government Seed Reporter of March 1:

"Information is constantly coming to the United States department of agriculture and the food administration that abnormally high prices for seeds are being charged in some sections. The need for increased crop production is obvious, and without adequate distribution of seed and reasonable prices there is danger that the acreage will be lessened and that seed of poor quality frequently will be used.

"The supply of many kinds of seeds is not as large as is desirable, and, in view of this fact, as well as because of the increased cost of conducting business, an increase in the price of certain seeds may be warranted. This, however, does not justify anyone in taking selfish advantage of the opportunity to the detriment of the country. By far the larger number of dealers no doubt will consider that their patriotic duty in this emergency is to aid the nation in securing adequate stocks at a reasonable price, consistent with the extra service rendered this year in securing tested and satisfactory supplies. Anything beyond this becomes plainly an unfair practice and therefore subject to any action which such practices invoke. Speculation in seed stocks is especially to be deprecated in this hour of need and, if participated in by dealers under federal license for the conduct of their business, will be dealt with accordingly.

"Several state seed growers' associations have voluntarily agreed to handle their seed with due regard to the public welfare by charging only a reasonable price for them, although doubtless the demand for seeds would permit of much higher prices. Such patriotic action is to be commended.

"The war service committee of the American Seed Trade Association also has passed a resolution in which this committee agrees to co-operate in denouncing unreasonable and excessive profits or in taking other necessary steps.

"All wholesaler seed dealers and those retail dealers in seeds doing an annual business of $100,000 or over, who handle peas, beans, cotton seed, and corn, are now operating under license from the food administration. Instances have been cited to the department where others have been taking advantage of the present situation by charging exorbitant prices for seeds.

"Upon receipt of specific information of extortionate prices being charged for seeds such cases will be investigated and recommendations made for such action as the conditions require."

WADING RIVER, L. I., N. Y.—E. S. Miller now represents J. M. Thorburn & Co. in their seed growing matters on this end of the island. Mr. Miller has had a life-long experience in this line.

New York, March 11.—Celery, per crate, 50 cents to $1.75; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 60 cents to $1.80 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00.

Canners to Hold Canned Goods.

All canners have been directed by the food administrator to hold for war purposes all canned corn, peas, tomatoes and string beans they have on hand until they are notified that they may release them. Reports from the canners as to their holdings must be made at once to the division of coordination of purchases of the food administration. Canners who have none of these products on hand will be required to report to that effect. Quantities not wanted for war purposes, the administration announced, will be released promptly within a few days after the receipt of the canners' report.

Celery Prices Lower.

Florida Golden celery was light in demand at shipping points and carlots went mostly on consignment. Quality and condition were reported poor. Quotations ranged nominally same as the previous week's close at $1.10@1.15 in 10-inch crates f.o.b. cash track at Sanford, with few sales, while 12-inch crates sold at 75 cents f.o.b. cash at Palmetto. Florida shipments dropped to 209 cars against 298 and California 46 against 62 last week. In distributing markets 10-inch crates sold slowly at $1.00@2.00 and 12-inch crates at $1.25@2.25. Wasty stock fell to $.75 @1.25 in New York. California Golden Heart ranged $3.00@4.25 per crate in the rough.—Market News, March 7.

Lettuce Markets.

Sales and shipping movement were steady in Florida producing sections, most stock still showing frost damage. Carloads f.o.b. cash sold higher at Palmetto, varying from $0.90@1.25 in one and one-half bushel hampers. The carlot movement from Florida was 142 cars, same as the previous week, but total volume increased 49 cars, California gaining to 181 cars. Sales to jobbers followed lower ranges in northern markets at $1.00@1.75 in one and one-half bushel hampers, with slow to moderate demand. California Iceberg met with fair demand at slightly higher prices, $2.25@2.75 per 100 pounds. Hothouse head lettuce ranged 35@65c and leaf lettuce 9@12c per pound.—Market News, March 7.

Spring Planting.

Early in the spring is the proper time to give attention to such subjects as asparagus, rhubarb, chives, parsley and chicory. With the exception of asparagus, the rest are all good forcing crops. However, a start must be made in the spring and not in the fall when wanted. These crops remind us of a lady who persistently every spring wanted "a tulip-bed in bloom," but who every fall, either neglected or refused to plant bulbs. Such bulky crops as the above are not readily purchased; it is best to produce them on the ground, they are then at hand when wanted.

Asparagus plants should be grown in nursery-rows for one year. These rows should be 15 to 18 inches apart, straight and evenly spaced for wheel hoeing. The seed is slow to grow, hence on weedy land it pays to mix radish seed with the asparagus to get a mark for the rows to facilitate wheel-hoeing. When up, the young plants should be thinned to 4 inches apart and kept clean from A to Z. One year old roots are best for permanent plantings.

Rhubarb does not come true from seed, and with long experience we have no use for seedlings. It is better to divide selected crowns to one or two eye pieces, and plant on land 3 feet apart by 2 or 2½ feet. If for permanent patch space may be increased to 3 feet by 4 feet. An old grower advised us: "Plant on the roughest, poorest land you have and at once commence to topdress with manure." This is good advice—keep them well mulched with manure at all times and big results are easy. For forcing they can be used the second year.

Chives are used in some markets. They resemble miniature onions in clumps. Get some strong clumps, divide in little tufts and set in good ground in nursery rows and give clean cultivation; 15 inches to 18 inches will do for rows, and 6 to 8 inches between plants is ample. They can be lifted in the fall and stored in frames or dug as needed in the winter for forcing.

Parsley should be sown early in the spring in 18-inch rows and thinned to 3 inches. Lifted in September and planted in house, it makes a good winter crop in many markets.

Chicory is produced much like pars-nips or oyster plant. Sow the seed in 16 or 18-inch rows, thin to 4 inches, and keep clean and cultivated. Lift in the fall and store in frames for forcing.

MARKETMAN.

Mushroom Growing.

The mushroom houses or sheds of J. Bancroft, Wayne, Pa., are an interesting place to visit, being one of the largest establishments of its kind in the United States. There are three sections containing in all 87,000 feet of bench space and a department which is devoted to the manufacture of virgin spawn. The sheds contain two rows or tiers of benches five and a half feet in width, which run the length of the house. There is a ground bed and four tiers of benches above, eighteen inches apart. Crops vary, but appear to do as well on one tier of benches as another, or on the ground. English spawn has been entirely superseded by their own virgin or bottle spawn, which is grown or prepared in quart milk bottles, which have to be broken to get it out. The action of this spawn is much quicker than the English; it does not last as long, but crops better. They commence to pick a hundred pounds, next day two, then three and as much as 500 pounds the last day of a week's run in one house. They would go off and come on in other progressive crops later for about three months. Then the benches were cleared off and started over again. They regulate the crops in a measure, to get the most during the middle days of the week, as Saturdays and Mondays were likely to find the markets overstocked. This control was possible by judicious handling of heat and water.

One large section is kept going during the summer, there being a system by means of which the temperature of the houses was maintained at 65°. Winter temperature is 56° to 58°.

DREER'S GRAND NEW CANNAS FOR 1918

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carminé Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 75 cts. each; \$7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft., 75 cts. each.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 15 cts. each; \$1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 25 cts. each; \$2.50 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

The beds in bearing at the time of our visit were exceptionally well covered with mushrooms, from which it would appear quite possible to produce a pound to the square foot of space for the crop, which is the standard aimed at here. The old manure is a strong by-product, as it is in great demand by golf clubs as a top dressing for their links, bringing almost as much as the new material.

Market Development.

"Market Development" is the word.
Please keep your eye on it. There are many byroads of discussion, but let us travel steadily on the main road toward our real objective, "Market Development." It is a fine thing to know where you are going before you start.
I recall once driving from southern Pennsylvania to the city of Washington. It was before the days of the automobile. Of course, the man who engaged me to go provided the funds and equipment. They were essential, as they always are. The road was entirely strange to me; I was a mere lad, but it was easy, because I knew where I was going.

Some 50 nursery firms already have promised to provide a share of the funds for this man-size journey or job of "market development" for us nurserymen. A glance over the list will show the substantial character of those who favor this move. The list is itself an index to firms who see where we are going and what we expect to get; but there are 1,000 nurserymen in the country, and more than 1,000, evidently, who are not yet aware of what is proposed. They may or may not have read the able statements already made; they may be considering the subject and intend to speak soon, and it is possible even that some "from Missouri" or not still want to be shown "where we are going."

Increase in net profits in the nursery business is a need that all nurserymen will recognize. The increase must, of course, result from expenses cut or income increased. In the face of present increased cost of labor and material, with no sign of decreased selling expenses, there are small hopes of cutting expenses without curtailing output. On the other hand, there is always the possibility—even in wartime —of raising the price or increasing the volume of sales. This is just what is proposed by forward-looking nurserymen. They are not trying to evade the fact that our country is at war.
It is more than a temporary condition in the nursery business that we are facing. They believe that our country needs our business; but it needs a healthy industry. An industry in which 50 per cent of its firms are not showing a decent profit is not in healthy condition. "Increased net profits" for every nurseryman is the objective back of the market development campaign. Much besides advertising may need to be done for our own good—such as standardizing our methods, for example, but can any subscriber suggest a better way to increase net profits than by market development of the volume and quality of our sales?
We believe that this can be done, if we co-operate, at a cost small in proportion to the increase. It seems unnecessary here to repeat that the work of this campaign is counting for its support upon no less than every national, sectional and state nurs-erymen's association and every individual nurseryman in the United States of America. It is proposed that the subscribers shall themselves organize to direct the campaign—the undersigned committee are to raise funds only.

After that will begin the real work.
Let us realize that for every actual user of nursery stock in America today there are, we believe, at least five times as many possible consumers.
That these four latent consumers today do not use our products is largely because they have not yet learned to know them and to appreciate the profit and pleasure in store for them. To educate and inspire them to want our goods; to instruct and demonstrate their use nationally is a big job and must be done in a big way. Co-operation alone will do it.

Nurserymen should lead the way.
No other group will benefit more; but we believe they will find willing co-

The above society held its monthly meeting March 1 at Lake Forest, Ill., with President Thomas Head in the chair. The exhibits made quite a fine display and were awarded the following points by the judges, D. MacNaughton, F. Kuehne and J. Fischer: Cyclamen, exhibited by G. Schaffer, 90 points; Boston fern, exhibited by Geo. Wilson, 90 points; Lillium speciosum rubrum, exhibited by John Kiley, 85 points; schizanthus, exhibited by J. H. Francis, 85 points; iris, exhibited by Thos. Head, 75 points; sweet peas, exhibited by O. Peterson, 70 points; Carnation Enchantress, exhibited by A. Neilsen, 60 points; stocks, exhibited by J. B. Clarke, 45 points.

James Fischer gave an interesting talk upon the preparation of ground for the seeding of lawns and putting greens, for which he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. The essay, sent by the National Association of Gardeners, by Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn., "The Gardener's Interest, Duty and Value in Public Park Service," was read by the corresponding secretary and the author was given a vote of thanks for this very interesting paper.

HEATING and COOLING are two branches of engineering on which we specialize for the greenhouse trade.

Over thirty years have been devoted by us to the construction and designing of boilers and refrigerating apparatus.

During this period we have furnished and installed heating and cooling systems for the most successful greenhouse men in this country.

COAL QUESTION OF 1918-1919.

Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, calls attention to the following communication regarding the coal situation possibilities for next winter in order that the trade may make preparations accordingly:

March 11, 1918.

Wm. Gude,

Washington, D. C.

It is now so late in the season that the question of fuel for florists will not be taken up for this season. Some time during the summer the fuel administration will call on you for further discussion of the matter involving the amount of fuel to be supplied to you and your associates during the winter of 1918-1919.

I am writing to keep you posted as to the probabilities as they stand today. It is entirely likely that the florists next season will be restricted to 50 per cent of their normal consumption, but, of course, this is not settled. We shall be soon issuing a circular to all industries as to stocking up during the summer months of coal reserves for the winter, and in it non-war industries will be notified of the percentage of fuel they will be permitted to take in for the winter supply. On this list florists will appear in the 50 per cent class.

Your people should understand that this does not necessarily imply that they will be restricted to 50 per cent, but it is intended to represent the maximum amount the government is willing that they should arrange for in advance. If conditions change later, this proposition will be changed accordingly.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.

Joint Exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York, New York Florists' Club and the American Rose Society, March 14-21.

Gotham Scores Another Success.

New York's spring flower show, held in the Grand Central Palace, March 14-21, was, all things considered, a grand success. Some outstanding features of exhibitions of previous years were missing, but others stood out even more prominently. The splendidly arranged rose gardens of F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., were again easily the big attractions of the show. Each year's efforts of these firms seem better than the last. After the roses, orchids were next in importance, the displays being large, varied and well arranged. The entry of the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., was the finest exhibit ever made by this famous establishment. The country estates, which through the enthusiasm of their gardeners have made such elaborate displays in past years, were not as numerous as usual. What there were, however, stood out prominently and made a great addition to the show. The New York and Brooklyn park conservatories each made large exhibits of foliage and flowering plants. As usual, large bay and box trees lent their decorative effect about the entrance, stairways and corridors of the hall.

The arrangement of the exhibition spaces was changed so as to break off the long straight aisles at about two-thirds of their length, providing as well a wide cross aisle, in which space was arranged, the special feature displays beginning with the exhibit of the American Rose Society, staged on the second day. The entire space next to the walls around the main exhibition hall and also in the gallery was occupied by trade exhibitors, all of whom appeared satisfied with the extent of their business. The Red Cross had handsomely decorated spaces across the entire front of the gallery. An auditorium to seat 300 people, enclosed with cedar trees and canopied with red and white bunting, was a feature.

The rose gardens were, as usual, the central feature. F. R. Pierson somehow manages to improve on his ideal work of the year before, and this year seems to have reached the limit. The same general plan, with the exception of a different arrangement of the center beds, was carried out. Dorothy Perkins covered the light brown fence, the arches over the four entrances and the large carved pergola columns in the rear. There was a square center space with a middle bed of Mrs. Sherman Crawford, surrounded with four beds of Ophelia. Across the garden in the rear and in front of the pergola, were two long beds of Magna Charta. Two long narrow beds of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses flanked the center square, while the border beds next to the fence were filled with Lady Harriot. At intervals in the beds of the Ward roses, stood four-foot standards of Frau Karl Druschki, with 12 to 15 flowers and buds on each. A six-inch border of growing grass fringed each bed, while white pebbles covered the paths. A complete and beautiful garden.

The creation of A. N. Pierson, Inc., was lovely in its simple, garden-like effect, enclosed with a low rustic fence covered with splendidly flowered plants of Rosea, the dark sport of Tausendschon. At each post was a four-foot standard of well-flowered Baby Tausendschon. A large, rustic summer house in the rear, the posts covered with Tausendschon, was pleasing. A center path was flanked with beds cut in the real grass lawn. These were filled with the baby ramblers, Echo, Ernest Teschendorf and Ellen Paulsen. The whole effect was restful and pleasing and as natural as if seen on the lawn of a beautiful estate.

Between these two exhibits was staged the elaborate orchid display of the Julius Roehrs Co., which covered a space 900 square feet in extent. A center table, canopied with a choice Cycas Rumphii, contained a collection of well flowered oncidiums and odontoglossums. Four crescent, or quarter circle tables, surrounding the center display, contained a wealth of this choicest stock of this celebrated collection. Cymbidium Gottianum, together with others of the same species, all well flowered, filled one crescent. Magnificent cattleyas, all choice varieties, of which the self-colored Empress Frederick was a feature, filled another. One contained cypripediums, the center being entirely of the beautiful pale green variety, mandæ magnifica. A mixed table of miltonias, odontoglossums, and other spray varieties, was graceful in the extreme. All the tables were bordered with ferns, paniculata and other grasses and vines. The large kentias formed a background for this display, while the four corners of the space were filled with rockwork covered with low-growing foliage and flowering plants. This was a complete and splendidly arranged exhibit.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., staged a splendid collection of orchids, which were well arranged. A mirror, to represent a pool of water, was overhung with branches containing orchid plants, showing them, as it were, in their natural habitat. Small figures of an orchid gatherer's family were near their miniature cottage. A humming bird on its nest was a feature. Many splendid cattleyas, miltonias and cypripediums were included in this display. Arthur M. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., arranged a bank of orchids of choice and rare varieties. Of these, Cattleya Olympus, an immense flower, C. Haroldiana, C. Bronze King, and Brasso-Cattleya Cliftonii, were superb. A hybrid cattleya, pure white, called Snow Queen, was awarded a silver medal. Col. H. H. Rogers, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., entered a choice assortment of dendrobiums, cattleyas, miltonias and odontoglossums, which covered 25 square feet. Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J., exhibited a fine collection of cut orchids. These were arranged in slender glass tube vases and made a very artistic showing. There were over 38 varieties.

The Dutch garden of John Scheepers & Co., New York, with a large windmill 20 feet high as a central feature, was a great attraction. Four large boxwood bordered beds were well filled, two with Flamingo and two with Yellow Prince tulips, while the latticed seats were covered with ivy. A bird bath fountain stood in the central bed of white and purple hyacinths. A clump of tall cedar trees were placed near the mill and sheltered a small garden planted with tili of the valley, white lilac and irises. The entire space was enclosed by a white pole fence. A Dutch maiden, who whiled away the time knitting, was an attractive feature.

The Secaucus Exotic nurseries of Marius Mutillod, Secaucus, N. J., exhibited a large number of specimen palms, boxwood and bay trees, many of extra size. A handsomely arranged group of foliage plants was also staged by the same exhibitor.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., were much in evidence. A collection of highly colored, medium-sized foliage plants, arranged in garden effect, covered 300 square feet. There were over 80 varieties and a more perfect collection of commercial sized plants would be hard to find. Wonderful Farleyense, in large sizes, Cibotium Schiedei and a new sport of Adiantum Mondrecht, called Lekesii, as beautiful as Farleyense, but much more vigorous, was showing in a handsome group.

Fritz E. Dressel, Weehawken, N. J., staged beautiful French hydrangeas, splendidly flowered for the season, covering a space of 150 square feet. He also exhibited his new fern, President Wilson. W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y. (R. M. Johnson, Gr.), exhibited foliage and flowering plants. These were artistically arranged on a floor of green sheet moss, so that every plant was shown to advantage. A welcome change from the overcrowded spaces.

The elaborate arrangement of P. W. Popp, gardener for Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., was very well carried out. A high rock-work, over which ran a good-sized stream, falling into a center pool, was covered and surrounded with genistas, laburnums, azaleas, antirrhinums, irises, flowering shrubbery, ferns and other foliage and flowering plants. This produced a beautifully worked out garden effect. The Dutch bulb garden by the same exhibitor, was very showy, containing quantities of all the popular hyacinths, tulips and narcissi, together with lilac, Easter lilies and irises.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., exhibited a planted border of herbaceous plants, spring bulbs, laurels, Ghent azaleas, and flowering shrubbery, all nicely in flower and very effective. Their rock garden was also very pleasing, being well arranged and attractively planted. The same firm exhibited specimen irises trained to represent pyramid boxwood and standard bay trees. The effect at a short distance was very similar.

F. R. Pierson staged his usual collection of fine ferns in variety. He won first on each of his plant entries.

Max Schling had a large space decorated as a store, with plate glass window front, which latter was kept filled with choice baskets and vases of cut flowers, all very artistically arranged. Two telegraph poles, supporting wires, to which were tied two boxes of cut flowers, illustrating the delivery of flowers by telegraph, was a feature. An additional space was arranged for a wedding bower. Acacias, Southern smilax and pink rambler roses were the flowers used. F. R. Pierson was the only other retail florist represented. His large space was enclosed in a railing with high corner columns supporting electric globes. There was a fine line of flower bowls and vases, many of which were artistically filled with his new rose, Rosalind. There were over 600 blooms used, which were very much admired.

George J. Gould filled 600 square feet with a war garden. This was nicely laid out and filled with all the popular vegetables, corn, beans, peas, beets, lettuce, radishes, potatoes, herbs, tomatoes, etc. These had all been grown in narrow boxes, which were, when arranged, covered with peat as if growing in the ground. They were from six inches to a foot in height. All the varieties were conspicuously labeled, and made a timely and interesting display. A low, green fence added to the effect.

Wm. Seibrecht, Chappaqua, N. Y., decorated a large arched garden seat with Acacia pubescens, while grape vines were trained over the woodwork on which the sprays were tied. It was renewed each day and was quite a feature.

F. A. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn., exhibited a group of foliage and flowering plants of high quality. This was very well arranged. An Erica melanthera, wonderfully well flowered, a fan-shaped chorizema and splendidly colored crotons by the same exhibitor, all received first prizes.

In the competition in baskets of flowers, Mrs. M. F. Plant, Groton, Conn. (Ernest Robinson, Gr.), won first; Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y. (P. W. Popp, Gr.), second.

The balcony contained quite a number of exhibits. F. A. Lewis' collection of 25 cyclamens was superb and easily won the blue ribbon awarded. Mrs. Morton E. Plant staged 12 fine floats of Double Pink stocks, well flowered, also a basket of callas. The Julius Roehrs Co. here exhibited seedling amaryllis, many of them light colors. Madsen & Christensen, Wood Ridge, N. J., staged some fine specimen marguerites. Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, L. I., showed a collection of Primula obconica and malacoides, splendidly flowered. Also 100 square feet of space, filled with well-flowered spring bulbs. Valentine Burgevin, Kingston, N. Y., staged a large specimen Pelargonium Easter Greeting, for which he was awarded a silver medal.

The Rose Display.

The quality of the cut roses exhibited on Friday was equal to anything seen heretofore, and it can safely be said that marks had been moved a notch higher, particularly in the Mrs. Russell of Duckham & Pierson, Madison, N. J., whose vase of 100 blooms was remarkable in its perfection of form and color. There were 19 vases of 100 flowers each, 12 of 50, eight of 25 and several vases by private gardeners of 12 and 18. The hundreds were staged in the large cross aisle on the main floor with the others in the gallery. The principal exhibitors were F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., with eight entries of 100 each, three of 50 and two of 25. Duckham & Pierson staged three vases of 100 each and one of 50. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., had four vases of 100 each, three of 50 and two of 25 each. Other exhibitors had one each.

The new varieties exhibited were, Mrs. Henry Winnett, by A. N. Pierson, which is an ideal shade of crimson; Mme. Collette Martinett, a fine orange yellow; Mrs. Belmont Tiffany, a sport of Sunburst, and a seedling, No. 6, a promising dark pink. F. R. Pierson staged Rosalind, an orange pink Ophelia, a beautiful shade; also Sylvia, a yellow sport of Ophelia, a distinct and beautiful color. Dailedouze Brothers, Brooklyn, N. Y., exhibited a vase of 50 Ophelia Supreme, with a very pleasing orange pink shade. The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., won a silver medal for a vase of 25 of their new rose, Columbia—very beautiful flowers. The Jos. Heacock Co., Philadelphia, Pa., had a vase of 100 Hadley of splendid quality, as was the vase of American Beauty of L. M. Noe, Madison, N. J. A vase of 100 Francis Scott Key from F. R. Pierson was also much admired. John Cook, Baltimore, Md., exhibited 50 blooms of his pink seedling, Russell x Frau Karl Druschki, as yet unnamed. This being delayed in transportation did not arrive until Saturday. This is certainly a grand rose. We question if there is any other to compare with it in exquisite coloring or form. It is a light pink, similar to La France in shape or form of flower and is borne on long, straight stems. Certainly, if productive, is a great acquisition to the forcing roses. It scored 80 points and was awarded a silver medal.

The display of cut roses covering a space of 300 square feet and containing not less than 500 or more than 1,000 blooms was the leading feature on Monday, March 18. There were but two entries, the F. R. Pierson Company, Tarrytown, N. Y., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. On account of close competition between these firms at previous shows, there was much interest this year. The F. R. Pierson Company took first prize; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second. Both firms used cibotium and adiantum in pots as decoration in the spaces between the vases. In the F. R. Pierson Company's display the following varieties were exhibited: Scott Key, Mrs. Charles Russell, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Rosalind, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney and Sylvia. In the display of A. N. Pierson, Inc., were Shawyer, Mme. Colette Martinette, Mrs. Charles Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Rose Pink Ophelia, Mrs. Paul Euler, (Prima Donna) Ophelia, Mock, Stanley, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Milady, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Winnett and September Morn.

A. T. Bunyard, 413 Madison avenue, New York, took first prize for table decoration of roses. He also changed his hotel table decoration, mentioned elsewhere, to a bridal decoration. The centerpiece, in a tall vase, was sprays of white peach blossoms and white camellias, and on the cloth there was a fine arrangement of white camellias on sprays of Adiantum Farleyense. Small vases of lily of the valley and white anemone and white orchids at the plates completed the decoration which was the center of a crowd of admirers throughout the afternoon.

The Carnations.

While the carnation exhibits, which were staged on Saturday, were not numerous, they were, however, of excellent quality. Arranged in the gallery, they made a very nice display. Several large vases, staged for effect, contained flowers of splendid quality, the arrangement of which would have done credit to any of the Fifth avenue artists. Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., was the largest exhibitor, having vases of 100 each of Cottage Maid, Belle Washburn, Yellow Prince, a variegated sport of Benora, Matchless, Enchantress Supreme and Good Cheer, which captured the first prize, Scott Bros. being second.

There were several new varieties of merit, notably a scarlet called Olive Whitman, which is a fine color and quite up to the mark in other respects. This was staged by Marius Matherson, Hempstead, N. Y. Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., exhibited a sensational pink, seedling Ward x Enchantress, an ideal bright flesh pink in color, with a flower of tremendous size, a number of them being a trifle over four inches in diameter. They have had blooms to measure over four and one-half inches. It took first prize over a vase of very good flowers of Laddie exhibited by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass. Scott Brothers, Elmsford, N. Y., staged a vase of 100 scarlet also 100 Benora. Herman Schwarz, Central Park, N. Y., took a special prize for a white seedling and second for a flesh pink seedling.

In the classes for private gardeners, prizes were won by Percy Chubb (Robt. Jones, Gr.), Mrs. Payne Whitney (George Ferguson, Gr.), Mrs. M. F. Plant (Ernest Robinson, Gr.), Mrs. C. Bradley (D. Francis, Gr.), Bertram Borden (Wm. Turner, Gr.), Mrs. E. S. Beyer (Alex. Thompson, Gr.), J. D. Cummins Est. (A. P. Weyel, Gr.), Mrs. F. A. Constable (James Stuart, Gr.), and Peter Hauck. In the table decorations by private gardeners, with orchids, Thomas Atchison, Mamaroneck, N. Y., took first and Hans Schwartz, Riverdale, New York City, second.

A pleasing feature, staged March 16, was a display of cut camellias neatly arranged in rows, on a background. The exhibitor was R. G. Coe, Oyster Bay, N. Y. The collection comprised over 100 blooms and the selection of stock was said to have been made on the Isle of Guernsey by A. R. Sargent, a landscape architect. The exhibit was awarded a gold medal.

There was but one entry in the class for hotel table decorations which was so popular at some of the previous exhibitions. This was entered by the Hotel Chatham, the decorator being A. T. Bunyard. It was arranged on a round table nine feet in diameter. The flowers used were Acacia pubescens, ranunculus and lily of the valley. We have seen many decorated tables, but none more elegant. The solid silver vases used were valued at $500. A tall, slender, center vase 30 inches high contained long sprays of acacias and splendid flowers of vari-colored anemones. Four large crescent-shaped forms, in three tapering sections, were filled with the same flowers. These were well arranged on the cloth and filled the space between the center and the plate line. In the center spaces of each crescent stood a slender silver vase of lily of the valley and a few sprays of acacia. These sprays were wired and stuck into a small ball of moss, which fitted the top of each vase. When finished they stood about 12 inches in height. The flowers were placed to resemble the arrangement of the center vase. Corsages of ranunculus and acacia, tied with yellow ribbon, were placed on the plates. The table was fully furnished with elegant china, glass and silver ware. It was a great credit to Mr. Bunyard, who personally superintended the work.

Sunday Attendance Good.

Sunday, March 17, was a fine day and there was a good attendance at the show. The orchestra, composed of young women, is a great attraction for the visitors. In the Red Cross theatre, intensely interesting films were seen, showing the work of the Red Cross in the war stricken sections of Europe. The multitude of aged, sick and homeless that are being tenderly cared for should have an appealing effect on all who saw the films.

F. N. Sanborn, representing the A. T. Stearns Lumber Co., Boston, Mass., was a visitor on Sunday.

The beautiful spring weather on Tuesday brought a large attendance, among them many from the army and navy, and bands from both branches of the service furnished the music in the Red Cross garden. This feature was much enjoyed. The only entries were for table decorations for private gardeners only, first honors being awarded to Thomas Aitchison, Mamaroneck, N. Y., with Richard Casey, of Madison, N. J., second.

The sweet pea display of the commercial growers was staged on Wednesday. One of the features of this section was the fine exhibit of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa. This covered 100 square feet. There were also other meritorious entries.

The Judges' Dinner.

At a dinner to the judges, tendered by the managers of the show, Thursday evening, President Chas. H. Totty, in responding to the toast, "The Society of American Florists," after complimenting the judges on their work, spoke of the success of the present exhibition and other shows of the past five years, which he said was due to the S. A. F., who in their national show held in New York had demonstrated that it was possible to stage a flower show that would pay. F. R. Pierson, in referring to the work in connection with the exhibition, said that success did not come as a matter of course. The officers and managers of the various bodies concerned held a meeting every month, in which every detail of the work was taken up, new ideas were threshed out and everything possible was done to make the next year's display better than the last. As the time approached, the meetings were held weekly so that by the time of the opening everything was in a state of readiness. That great interest was taken in the work by all the officials is proven by the fact that fully 90 per cent were in attendance at all the meetings.

The Shamrock Emblem

In these days of realities it is refreshing to pause and consider the tradition of St. Patrick and the Shamrock.

Show Notes.

The trade booth of A. N. Pierson, Inc., was well served by R. Karlstrom, Alex. Cumming, Jr., and Harry Anderson. Both A. N. and W. R. Pierson attended the show. R. T. Bears, a former employe of this firm, who will be remembered by many as an attendant at former shows, is now a first lieutenant in the United States Army, and is stationed at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.

George Herrmann and Irving Aronson were in charge of Schloss Brothers' (Emil Schloss) ribbon booth. George Herrmann, who has recently become associated with this firm, is a son of A. Herrmann, the well known dealer in florists' supplies of 412 East 34th street, this city, and has had 17 years' experience in the business.

Sunday being St. Patrick's day, it was appropriate that the Junior League girls, of the Red Cross, should sell shamrocks.

Rich G. Hollaman, president of the Grand Central Palace Exposition Co., and a member of the flower show committee, said on Monday that if the present interest continues, he believed the daily attendance for the entire week of the show will average over 8,000 persons. The weather, on the first day, was extremely disagreeable and the attendance was light, but interest and attendance have since been on the increase. A war tax of 5 cents must be paid on each ticket and March 16 over 10,000 war tax stamps were sold at the entrance. On both March 17 and 18 there were good crowds. Mr. Hollaman, who wants to help win the war, is equally pleased with the sale of show and war tax tickets, and thinks the latter will foot up nearly $3,000.

At the booth of Roman J. Irwin, on March 18, there was placed on exhibition an exceptionally fine appearing white seedling snapdragon that originated in the range of J. Ebb Weir & Son, Jamesport, L. I., N. Y. There were also on exhibition a fine yellow and a pink. All these varieties will be disseminated in 1919.

Seedsmen at the Show.

The displays of the seedsmen were creditable and added to its beauty. In addition to a staple stock of lawn seed and bulbs, Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, had handsome decorations of flowering tulips, narcissi and other spring flowers.

Weeber & Don had the largest space of any seedsmen and their booth was profusely decorated with bulbous flowers. They carried quite a stock of seeds, bulbs and garden tools.

The A. T. Boddington Co. had good space, with a neat decoration of pansies.

Roman J. Irwin, who has had good training as a seedsman, but now devotes his energies to plants, had a good display of small palms, ferns and other plants.

Aside from the commercial features, the Dutch bulb garden of John Scheepers & Co. was a real acquisition to the beauty of the show.

The Visitors.

The following were noted among the trade visitors during the opening days:

New York Florists' Club Banquet.

The annual banquet and dance of the New York Florists' Club was held at the Hotel McAlpin, Saturday night, March 16, and was a most enjoyable affair. About 170 representative men and women of the trade were present. President Schenck of the club, acted as toastmaster, and after the menu had received ample justice, he cleverly introduced the following speakers who were guests at his table: President Totty, of the Society of American Florists; W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; George Asmus, Chicago Herman Knoble, Cleveland, and Major O'Keefe, director of the publicity campaign of the S. A. F. "Publicity" was the theme of the speakers, and the audience seemed to appreciate the fervid flights of oratory. In this connection, we will suggest that such a good flower show—staged under great difficulties—as was then in progress at the Grand Central Palace is a concrete and not a nebulous form of publicity. The last act in the speech-making drama was particularly pleasing. Past President Stumpp of the club was called to the platform and as he did not know that he was on the programme for a speech, he advanced looking a little scared—probably thought his late administration was to be investigated or something; but at this juncture, Joseph A. Manda took the platform and in a neat speech soon drove away the ex-president's fears by presenting him and Mrs. Stumpp with a handsome silver tea service. When all this was over, the tables were cleared away and there were several hours of enjoyable dancing. A. F. F.

New York Federation of Societies.

A meeting of the federation was held in John Young's office, 1170 Broadway, New York, March 18, with President F. R. Pierson in the chair. A report of progress regarding the horticultural building at the state fair grounds in Syracuse was heard. The race track and grand stand have been moved and a splendid site for the building is now available. The state fair commissioners have expressed themselves as of the opinion that the building will be the next erected and plans for its construction are now being formulated in the state architect's office. The fuel situation was discussed, and it was the opinion that any active campaign for the florists' winter supply should be postponed until the fall meeting in Syracuse. A fuel committee consisting of F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown; W. J. Palmer of Buffalo, and Robert Simpson, of Clifton, N. J., was appointed to keep in touch with the fuel commissioner and if necessary to lend its aid in getting a supply of fuel for any florist in difficulty. A committee on affiliation of the federation with the New York Federation of Agriculture was appointed. This committee consists of Dr. Earl Bates, of Syracuse; F. A. Danker, of Albany, and C. H. Vick, of Rochester. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the splendid success of the New York flower show has demonstrated conclusively that the American people in these times of stress seek relaxation and comfort in the cheering message expressed by the bright blooms, and

Whereas, the floricultural interests of our people are important economic factors in the life of our people, therefore, be it

Resolved, that we, the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, while we shall give our energy as patriotic Americans to increasing the conserving of food supplies, nevertheless we believe there should be an even larger cultivation of flowers and we pledge our united efforts towards this end.

American Rose Society.

The annual meeting of the American Rose Society, whose exhibition was held in conjunction with the New York spring flower show, was held March 15 in a room on the third floor of the Grand Central Palace. There were about 25 members present. The National emblem was suspended at the rear, above the president's table. Two vases of the new rose, Rosalind, graced this desk, in one of which was a silk flag. President Hammond feels that no session of the society is complete without a display of the national colors. The meeting was opened by the president, who then read his annual address. This was full of suggestions for the betterment of the society, recommending especially, that all commercial growers of rose plants should become life members of the society. Scarcely any of them appreciate what the society is doing in encouragement alone for garden roses, and which makes a market for their products. The secretary's and treasurer's reports showed the membership to be about 1,200, while the money in the treasury, including all funds, was $5,000.

The rose annual of the society, which was soon to be issued, J. Horace McFarland said, would be much more valuable to rose growers if the work of the various test gardens could be co-ordinated; all reports made out under the same system or plan, so that, printed in parallel tabulated columns, it would be a simple matter to follow out and compare the results. Much of the matter for the annual had come to him in such form that it entailed more time to get it in shape to be used than he could spare for the work.

Reports received from the various test gardens were encouraging, all plants, and would welcome donations though all were in need of additional of the same. A central committee composed of the chairmen of the various test garden committees was recommended. The matter of special schedules for community rose shows was reported by Prof. A. C. Beale. This had been gone over very carefully and the plan presented seemed ideal for the purpose. There were three classes, amateurs, private gardeners and professional growers. Classes which called for single specimens had been given most importance as they would interest those with small collections.

The election of officers, all of which were unanimously chosen, resulted as follows: Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., president; W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill., vice-president; Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y., secretary; Harry O. May, Summit, N. J., treasurer. Two vacancies in the executive committee occasioned by the resignation of Geo. C. Thomas, Jr., and the election of W. J. Keimel to the vice-presidency were filled by the election of S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., and Geo. H. Peterson, Fairmount, N. J.

The time and place of next meeting is to be decided by the executive committee.

J. Horace McFarland had written to a number of representative citizens in various parts of the country to get expressions and opinions on growing roses in gardens in war times. In every case the answer had been favorable, most of the letters being very encouraging. A sum of money was appropriated to have clippings of these sent for publication to some 250 leading newspapers. The president, on E. G. Hill's motion, was directed to appoint a committee of nurserymen to solicit their associates to become life members of the society, after which the meeting adjourned.

Boston Spring Show.

The spring flower show staged at Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., March 13-17, by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, for the benefit of the Metropolitan chapter of the American Red Cross, taxed every available foot of space to its capacity and brought out one of the finest exhibitions of plants and flowers ever seen in that city, all the more noteworthy from the fact that no cash prizes were awarded, the total receipts being given to war relief. The Red Cross acacia tea garden was a perfect floral bower, the splendid specimens in many varieties donated for the purpose by Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., showing to splendid advantage in the arrangement and making the garden an attractive feature, at all times crowded to its capacity.

The "Patriotic Garden" designed by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., of Boston, was most cleverly arranged with its Statue of Liberty in the center, relieved on either side with banks of Azalea Kaempferi, Lilium auratum and forsythias in large tubs. Faulkner Farms, Brookline, had a fine showing of flowering shrubs, among them Strepitosolen Jamesonii and cyrtisus. E. S. Webster, of Chestnut Hill, also staged a fine display, included in which were Buddleia asiatica, Erica melanthera and schizanthus in wonderful colors. Mrs. Jack Gardner had a wonderful exhibit of cyclamens. From the Sargent and Weld estates came clivia plants and large tubs of splendid Spencer sweet peas, respectively.

Orchids were as popular as ever, and the brilliant collection of E. B. Dane was at all times the object of much admiration. This display was awarded a gold medal. Among the varieties were Phalaenopsis Schilleriana, coelogyne and odontoglossum. A. C. Burrage, Beverly Farms, also made a handsome showing in this class.

The carnations made a fine display. S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., had fine vases of Laddie, Nancy and Matchless in their usual good form, and for which he was awarded a medal. Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., with his new variety, Red Cross, and Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., and M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., also received official recognition.

From the greenhouses of Mrs. Bayard Thayer there was a fine exhibit, among the features being Mahernia odorata, schizanthus and azaleas.

A number of the local flower shops made artistic displays of table decorations, baskets and other arrangements. An Easter basket arrangement by the Boston Cut Flower Co. was given a medal. Other artistic showings were made by Penn the Florist, H. R. Comley, A. S. Caplan, Julius Zinn, J. J. O'Brien, and the Houghton-Gorney Co. S. K. G.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Easter Week in the Flower Shop.

When the severe strain of climbing the hill with a heavy load is encountered, there must be the necessary reserve power to take it over the top. The situation is much the same in the store when the great rush of business is at its height, during the last three days of the week. Then it is that a well-planned system and division of the work, with trusted and experienced employes in charge of the various departments, brings order out of chaos and greatly facilitates the transaction of the business. The old maxim, "Well begun is half done," applies here in the state of preparedness in which the store stands on the eve of Palm Sunday.

With the exception of cut flowers, all the stock to be handled should have been purchased, and the accessories, such as baskets and trellis boxes for plants, extra pans and tubs, mats, crepe papers, ribbons, etc., on hand in the store. The stock of mossed frames for fresh flower cemetery work, and the made-up magnolia and oak leaf wreaths, should be ready in quantity in all sizes for their final decoration. This preparedness will relieve much of the night work that is so trying at this time.

The first two days of the week are given mainly to placing the plant stock as it arrives. For quick selling, it is much better handled, if placed in groups all of a kind together, as all lilies, all azaleas, all roses, all hydrangeas, and as far as possible, in blocks of color. The effect is much better than if all colors and varieties are mixed. Customers are waited on, orders picked out quicker, and a better idea as to how this or that is selling when all of a kind are together.

Specimen and high class decorated plants should be given prominence in the various groups or placed individually, as while they may be too expensive for the average buyer, yet they are greatly admired and call attention to their particular section.

Extra help is of course necessary. This will now be quite a problem, particularly as so many skilled workers have joined the colors. Young men from the colleges are generally glad to add to their experiences and pocket money during this period, which is a holiday with many. Young women are also glad of this opportunity to work in a flower shop, where with a day or two of training, they can be very useful.

SYSTEM IN ORDER HANDLING.

Having all orders pass through the bookkeeper's or cashier's hands, so that at the time all prices shall be correctly carried out, is important. Addresses can be verified, cards placed in envelopes, tags written and all for each delivery attached together. Orders for various dates of delivery are also properly placed, C. O. D. packages are looked after, and express orders for various trains are carefully marked. This relieves the selling force of much detail and gives them more time to wait on trade. The incomplete orders are filed separately; the ones for which the cards are to come, and which, when mixed with the others, create confusion during the rush.

The business that comes in over the phone, which has become of so much importance, should be handled with the greatest care. The bookkeeper or cashier, or some one familiar with the customers, should receive all calls, take orders, answer inquiries, or bring the person wanted to the phone.

The chauffeurs or drivers should be kept in the store and additional men take their places on cars or wagons. The wrapping, packing and the routing, when done by such experienced men, insures much better delivery. As soon as plants are sold and properly tagged they should be removed from the floor of the store and placed in the delivery department. A close by, annex store is a great help for packing, and as plants for various sections of the city are then easily routed on its roomy floor.

It should be one man's business to keep the stock in order and watered; plants are being continually set out to be looked at, and when not sold, should be returned to the group. Keeping everything presentable to the last adds to or at least keeps up the selling values.

Lean Years After War.

In an address before the Traffic Club of Philadelphia, Pa., which appears elsewhere in this issue, Charles E. Carpenter, of that city, in calling attention to the necessity of so-called non-essentials, says: "Now is the time to advertise, if there ever was a time. The advertising of the present brings the business of the future. There will be some lean years after the war for the fellow who has not sown any business seeds now."

SYSTEMATIC BUYING.

Careful buying of such perishable stock as cut flowers is good policy. The bookkeeper, in going over the slips, should make a note of what is called for, which at the close of each day can then be ordered for delivery as required. In this way, there will not be much left over to go to waste. System in putting up cut flower orders through the night for next day's delivery is a great help. One competent person, with the stock boxes of flowers within easy reach, can select the quantities for the various orders and keep half a dozen persons placing them in the boxes, on which they pin the address tags. With one lining the boxes with paper, another one or two wrapping and tying them, the work is greatly facilitated. It is much better at such a busy time to keep all cut flower stock in the original boxes; selecting it from jars is not nearly so quickly done and the flowers are more easily bruised and broken. Too much sprinkling is injurious; many an otherwise choice box is spoiled when the wrapping cord cuts through the bottom, made soft by the surplus water lying there.

Watering tags attached to all or most of the plants, on which such directions as, "Water this plant twice a day or frequently," cost a trifle, but help for efficiency. With the firm's name conspicuously displayed, they also have good advertising value, as they are most likely to be left on the plant.

SUPPLY ADEQUATE OF GOOD QUALITY.

Business is good. At the beginning of last week the demand improved and by Saturday had effected a substantial clearance of everything in the market. The supply is good, and adequate for present needs, while the prospects for a good cut for Easter are bright. Roses are in fair supply. Carnations continue plentiful and a good supply of excellent sweet peas is coming into the market. Easter lilies are fairly plentiful. Callas and rubrum lilies may be had. Small bulbous stock is fairly plentiful and includes tulips, Dutch hyacinths, daffodils, jonquils, narcissi and freesias. Some excellent lily of the valley may be had. Other offerings are orchids, violets, calendulas, forget-me-nots and mignonette.

NOTES.

J. A. Peterson, of J. A. Peterson & Sons, went to Pittsburgh on a business trip this week. Besides the finest hydrangea they have ever had, they have some excellent lily of the valley and pots lilies for Easter.

C. E. Critchell has been selling many baskets for the Easter trade. Besides this, the new Columbia roses he is getting in from the Jos. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., have been selling on sight.

P. J. Olinger is arranging to move his salesroom from its present location to a place directly across the street from where he is now.

Visitors: Miss Coles, Kokomo, Ind.; Miss Fannie White, Lexington, Ky.; H. J. Vanderhorst and daughter, St. Marys, O.; G. A. Beckman and wife, Middletown, O., and Mr. Blackshaw, Hammond, Ind. H.

Boston.

GOOD BUSINESS BEING BOOKED.

With Easter near at hand and stock in prime condition, all growers are reporting large sales. Lilies are improving and the best are selling for 15 cents and poorer quality as low as 8 cents. Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins, Hiawatha and Lady Gay rose bushes are in fine condition. Genistas, French hydrangeas, primroses and all kinds of bulbous stock are of excellent quality. Pots of lily of the valley are scarce. Cut flowers are in great demand, and for the Easter trade there will be plenty to be had at moderate prices. Carnations were never more plentiful and the best sell for $3 a hundred. Roses are scarce; the best are Ophelia, Killarney Queen, Maryland, White Killarney and Hadley ranging in price from 8 to 16 cents each. English primroses, calendulas, pansies, English daisies and sweet peas find a ready market. French and Spanish irises are arriving and bring $2 and $3 a dozen.

NOTES.

Christopher Donovan, salesman for Dolansky & McDonald, dropped dead of heart trouble at work Friday, March 15. Mr. Donovan has long been in the trade, formerly working for Welch Bros.

William Patterson, of Quincy, is sending all his cut stock and plants to Harry Ward, who will sell for him in the future, and Mr. Patterson will devote his time to greenhouse work.

Wm. Walke, of Salem, is shipping to market some of the best rose bushes, among his choicest being Tausendschon and Hiawatha. His French hydrangeas are also good.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, Mass., are having a very successful year with bulbs. They are large shippers of poeticus, tulips, jonquils and cut Dutch hyacinths.

J. Zinn reports good business and his force is kept busy with funeral work, of which he has an unlimited amount.

McAlpine Bros., Exeter, N. H., are shipping to market a choice selection of roses; among the most popular are Killarney, Stanley, Tipperary and Ophelia.

Welch Bros. Co. is going ahead of all expectations and the stock is first class. The specialties are lily of the valley, American Beauties and sweet peas.

B. A. Snyder & Co. are having their best year of their career and at the present time are booking large orders for Easter trade.

Burgess & Conney, of Malden, Mass., are sending a fine quality of English primroses and Golden Spurs and a variety of cut tulips.

Houghton & Gorney still continue to have an attractive window display. Their trade has increased over last year.

Chas. Evans, of Watertown, Mass., is bringing to market swainsonas, callilies, calendulas and Asparagus Sprengerii.

S. K. G.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The annual flower show of the M. A. C. department of floriculture held last week was said to be one of the best ever staged here. "The quality of the workmanship of the students was not of the amateur but the professional," said one Boston florist. The greater portion of the work was done by the students. Numerous corsages of excellent workmanship, some flower baskets, and wedding bouquets were exhibited. While dinner table decorations were not featured as much as in former years, there were several good arrangements. The wedding room was the center of the greatest interest. A canopy was constructed of smilax and carnations. Wax figures were used to represent a military wedding. The background was banked with genistas and the walls hung with southern smilax. The bride carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley. At one end of the room was a table with wedding stationery, at the other end a table with bridesmaids' bouquets and flower girls' baskets. At the front of the room was a bride's dinner table and a bride's luncheon table. Spring bulbs formed the basis of the show. These were used in borders around the halls and rooms. At each end of the building was a garden pergola decorated with southern smilax and banked in front with red tulips and pteris. Garden benches in the hall added to the garden effect.

Reuter & Sons Ask Receiver.

The range of S. J. Reuter & Sons, Inc., Westerly, R. I., consisting of 29 large houses, closed March 4, and a petition was filed in the Superior court, March 7, asking for the appointment of a receiver. Financial difficulties of several months standing and the extremely high cost of fuel during the past winter are given as the cause for suspension of business at this time. The establishment covers about 30 acres of ground and is one of the largest in the state.

H. A. T.

Gardeners and Florists' Ass'n of Ontario.

The above named association held a most successful spring show March 12, and while the number of exhibits was not equal to those of former years the quality and keenness of competition were above the average. The following were among the principal prize winners: Sir Henry Pellatt, Sir John C. Eaton, Sir E. B. Osler, H. G. Dille-muth, E. J. Trimbel, John Sanderson, Thomas Manton, and Allan Gardens.

OBITUARY.

Joseph Heacock.

Joseph Heacock was suddenly stricken with an attack of heart failure and died at the Presbyterian hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., March 18. The deceased had gone to the hospital of his own volition to have an old case of rupture corrected so that he could do away with the truss. The operation was said to be very successful, progress in recovery was satisfactory, and he was expected home on the day when almost without warning he answered the final call. His sudden death was a great shock to the community. No man was held in higher esteem than this great leader of the craft. He was always in the front rank in all movements looking to the advancement of the business, giving freely of his time and money to aid in any worthy progressive cause. His contribution of $500 was the first amount subscribed to the S. A. F. publicity fund. Right was might with him; his word was as good as his bond, and a promise a faithful trust.

Joseph Heacock was born in the old family homestead at Wyncote, in 1847. He was of English stock, his ancestors coming to this country from Staffordshire, England, in 1711. He was educated at the Abington Friends' school and at Friends' Central. He started his business career as a farmer and pork butcher, then grew vegetables and later carnations, and in 1888, with 5,000 feet of glass, he took up roses and from that time on rapidly became a factor in the business, being very successful with roses, first with Mermet and the Bride, later with Mrs. Laing and Ulrich Brunner. American Beauty then became a specialty which he grew with great success. This gave way to the Killarneys, which he found very profitable. Palms then received his attention and divided his interest. This stock gradually increased until his was the largest collection of home-grown kentias in America.

In 1909, he purchased a farm at Roelofs, Pa., and the business was then incorporated with a capital of $100,000. A large rose house 52x600 feet was erected, followed two years later with one 72x600 feet. Since then other houses have followed until this is one of the most complete and successful rose growing establishments in the country. A large dairy to provide manure for the roses is a feature of the farm, the milk of the dairy being a profitable by-product.

Mr. Heacock took a lively interest in all community affairs and held many positions of trust. He was a staunch democrat and was elected state senator, serving from 1910 to 1914. He was president of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, and treasurer of the Florists' Hail Association of America since 1910. His wife, son and two daughters survive him. His son, James, has been active in the business for a number of years and will no doubt prove a worthy successor in carrying out the interests of the company. The funeral, which was largely attended by members of the trade, was held Wednesday, March 20, the interment in Abington Friends' grounds.

The following words of appreciation are from some of his many friends of the trade:

Robert Craig: "I cannot express how much I was shocked to learn this afternoon of the sudden death of Joseph Heacock. I saw him about two weeks ago as he passed Charles Meehan's store with a brisk and vigorous walk. Mr. Meehan remarked, 'How well Uncle Joe looks.' And now he is gone without warning, never to mingle with us again. He was a man of rare courage and judgment and commanded the respect of all who knew him, by his thorough honesty. I heard an intimate friend of his once say, 'His word is as good as any man's bond,' and I personally knew this to be true."

S. S. Pennock: "I can hardly realize that Mr. Heacock is dead. When I saw him but a couple of weeks ago, he seemed so strong and vigorous. He was honored by all who knew him and realized his great worth and ability. He was honest to the core. Right was his standard. It was an honor to be his friend, and respected by him. I know of no one whose word I respected more. A bright example to follow."

Adolph Farenwald, rose grower for Mr. Heacock, from 1888 to 1898: "There were few men with such untiring energy and aggressiveness. He had just taken up roses when I engaged with him and had only 5,000 feet of glass, and when I left, the place had grown to over 100,000 feet. He always wanted the best and was very thorough in all that he did. He was the fairest and squarest man I ever worked for. His death is a great loss to the craft."

At a recent meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia he made a remarkable speech full of optimism as to the future of the florist business in this country. These remarks were made when most of us were full of misgivings, owing to adverse conditions, which, chiefly on account of the world-wide war, had almost overwhelmed us. But even the most fearful of those present were cheered by his vigorous and hopeful words. He was one of the foremost growers of the country. His place will be, indeed, hard to fill.

CHAS. M. JACKMAN writes, "I never shall forgive the Germans for keeping me in solitary confinement 16 days at Bruges for the crime of nationality."

THE fuel situation promises to cause a considerable revolution in the growing methods of greenhousemen with a view to reducing the crops that need high temperatures in very cold weather.

THE late Joseph Heacock, whose sudden and untimely death is recorded in our obituary column this week, was a man of fine character and one of the most successful growers of plants and flowers in this country.

Personal.

Director Henry H. Elbers, of the Botanic Garden, Buffalo, N. Y., is visiting the west in search of new treasures for his already extensive plant collections, stopping off at Chicago, March 15.

PRESIDENT WILSON has signed the daylight saving bill, which means that the clocks of the United States will be advanced one hour at 2:00 a. m., March 31 and turned back at the end of October.

Hospitals and Schools.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery has issued for the use of members a highly commendable list of hospitals and schools, under towns and cities arranged alphabetically. Any member who has not received the list should address Secretary Albert Pochelon, 153 Bates street, Detroit, Mich.

Thrill Stamp Day.

Charles A. Dards, prominent New York florist, member of the national war savings committee of the trade in that city, is making an urgent appeal for the co-operation and active assistance of all florists in this patriotic enterprise. In the city of New York, the national committee has allotted $200,000 as the share of the florists in this work. It is safe to say there will be no slackers as "Help Win the War" is the slogan that has always met with a ready response from the trade in general.

Flower Boycott Not Patriotic.

Students of economics are realizing that "patriotic boycotting" of certain luxuries that are separate industries and not inter-related with actual war activities is a dangerous programme and, after all, unpatriotic. The cutting down or eliminating, by those who have surplus means, of certain types of luxuries, is hurting things rather than helping. If people have the money, and suspend support to those whose livelihood depends on luxury-producing they do ill. The woman who can afford silk stockings should continue to buy them and not reduce the supply of cotton stockings to those who must buy cotton.

The flower growing-and-selling industry, for instance, is doing its full share in furnishing men and money for the war, but as a trade it must continue to earn money and the fathers, mothers and sisters of the boys who go to the front, take up the burden of livelihood and merit continued support. The florists, during the present coal and transportation situation, have bent every energy to give the public the benefits of their efforts and are selling their products at prices no higher than before the war. In many instances it would have been better from the standpoint of dollars and cents, to shut down greenhouses and cease distribution. But instead, they are striving to do better than ever—look at the florists' windows about town and your thoughts will be an inspiration.

Even if you cannot afford it, do not stint on advertising flowers. It is important to conserve the best ideals and higher thoughts. Do not bring on a famine of the sweetest things of life, thoughtlessly, by overlooking one of the most important methods of getting it before the buying public, that of putting over our new slogan, "Say it with flowers." Tie up to our campaign, both with your money and home town papers.

HENRY PENN.

Chairman Publicity Committee.

Sow Business Seeds Now.

Chas. E. Carpenter, a resident of Philadelphia, Pa., in an address before the Traffic Club of that city recently, lambasted those who are advocating the hoarding of money and spending it only on the absolute necessities of life as the wisest war policy.

"The only way our government can obtain the wealth with which to prosecute the war," Mr. Carpenter said, "is by taxation. Thus far the government has taxed the profits of our wealth. Will some disciple of the non-spending school of wartime finance explain how there can be profits if spending ceases? There will be no profits if there is no spending. It is when every one stops buying that our factories shut down, the soup houses open and the bread lines lengthen.

"All this talk about stopping the spending of money for non-essentials is the veriest rot and is a part of the propaganda of the German spy system which uses these fools to its nefarious ends.

"What are non-essentials, anyhow? No one has ever defined them, and no one ever will. The civilized world has long decreed that comfort and happiness are life's greatest essentials, and everything that contributes to comfort and happiness is therefore an essential. Toys for the children and fineries and healthful amusement for all are essentials.

"There can be only one thing worse than hoarding of wealth by individuals in these times, and that is giving it to the enemy. It is as sensible to argue that we should close our schools and churches as to advocate the stoppage of spending now.

"Spend your money on improvements, buy freely, though wisely. Advertise, Mr. Merchant. Now is the time to advertise if there ever was a time. The advertising of the present brings the business of tomorrow, and there will be some lean years after the war for the fellow who has not sown any business seed now."

Nico-Fume Causes Death.

The trade in Chicago and vicinity were greatly shocked to hear of the sudden death of Tony Evert, Sunday afternoon, March 17, from drinking nico-fume which he mistook for a bottle of medicine. He discovered his mistake immediately after drinking it in the greenhouses but managed to reach home and call for a bottle of milk but before anyone could render any assistance he had dropped dead. He was 30 years of age and was the son of Anna Evert (nee Kinn) and the late Matthew Evert, brother of Frank, John, Nick, Mrs. Margaret Hermiss, Mrs. Anna Miller, Mrs. Justine Boesen, Mrs. Ida Kemper and Mary Evert. The funeral was held the following Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. from the late residence, 2059 Devon avenue, to St. Henry's church, thence to St. Henry's cemetery. The Everts are well known here for the entire family has been engaged in the florist business for a large number of years and have the sympathy of the entire trade in the loss of a loving son and brother. The funeral was largely attended and the floral offerings were many and beautiful.

WAR CONDITIONS Of Supply and Demand

While there is no doubt the demand for spring bedding and other decorative plants and bulbs will be materially curtailed by the war garden movement, we believe this condition will be fully counterbalanced by the prosperity in the south and the effects of the coal shortage on the greenhousemen of the west, north and east, placing in the market for stock a large number of new buyers not familiar with the sources of supply.

Most of these buyers can be reached at small cost by advertising in The American Florist, and we feel that it will be greatly to your advantage to start this campaign with an advertisement in our columns.

SPLENDID EASTER SUPPLY PROMISED.

Preparations for the Easter trade by the local florists have been made on a wonderful scale, and the promise is for a vast supply on the day of days. All the seasonable pot plants will be on hand in the greatest perfection. Dutch hyacinths, tulips, cinerarias, and cyclamens are plentiful and the sales on them good. There will be an abundance of Easter lilies, every florist having on hand a large supply, which are being used plentifully in all the funeral work, whole blankets or palls and other designs being made almost entirely of them. The rose supply, too, is improving every day, and what is lacking in quantity is more than made up in quality. The Ophelia, especially, is coming in now in rarest perfection and will continue to be the leader for some time to come. The Killarneys, too, are fine; also Russell. Violets are blooming everywhere, out of doors as well as under glass. The jonquils and narcissi are all in flower on the outside, and little boys—street fakirs—with baskets full, dodge each other on the streets. They sell at five cents a bunch of a dozen or more. The store windows are full of them, and pedestrians are decked with them as corsages or carry huge bunches in their hands. Sweet peas are very plentiful, too, just now, and combinations of the purple and white are made effective in funeral designs. The combination, too, of the white and purple Dutch hyacinths is a favorite at funerals.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Company has a superabundance of flowers of all kinds, and will have a splendid supply for Easter. They will have all the pot plants that could have been grown—the ramblers, plenty of lilies, hydrangeas, tulips and hyacinths. In cut flowers, they will have all kinds of roses, the Ophelia, Russell, both white and pink Killarney, and Hoosier Beauty. They have thrown out all their American Beauty, as in their experience it could not be grown at a profit, but they have superb Russell and Ophelia that are simply grown to perfection. They will also have plenty of carnations, sweet peas, lily of the valley and orchids, and such side stock as mignonette, calendulas and other small flowers. They have great success with their Chattanooga store.

The 1st of May Thrift Stamp Day In The U. S. A.

The Active Co-operation of Every Reader of
The American Florist

Is Urgently Requested To Make It a Success

May 1st, 1918, will be observed throughout the United States as Thrift Stamp Day! On that day retail stores everywhere in every line of business will ask customers to take part of their change in Thrift Stamps! It will be patriotic for every man, woman and child to accept at least one Thrift Stamp as change on every purchase made that day—and to make as many purchases as possible on May 1st.

Here is a big, practical way of getting millions of Thrift Stamps into the hands of the people of the United States, and of insuring the success of the Government's War Savings Stamps campaign. Thrift Stamp Day will help everyone. It will prove a tremendous boost to business. On May 1st, 1918, the nation should do the biggest total retail business of any single day in our history! The beneficial habit of Thrift will be sown broadcast among the citizens of the U. S. A.! Most important of all, Uncle Sam will be furnished with the sinews of War and Victory!

American business must go "over the top" at once in a quick drive to make Thrift Stamp Day an overwhelming success. You wholesalers, you jobbers, you salesmen, must talk Thrift Stamp Day among your trade, arouse the enthusiasm of the retailers, the storekeepers, the clerks behind the counters. Uncle Sam needs your help. A practical plan has been prepared showing how each one of you can "do your bit" to make Thrift Stamp Day a red letter day in American business annals. Write for this plan today without fail. Remember, in helping Uncle Sam you are helping business and helping yourselves. Address Mr. W. Ward Smith, National War Savings Committee, 51 Chambers St., New York City.

NATIONAL WAR SAVINGS COMMITTEE

which has been a revelation to the citizens of that city. This will be their first Easter in Chattanooga, and they are looking for an enormous trade. The location of an army cantonment at Fort Oglethorpe, near there, keeps up a continuous call, and trade is very good.

A new problem is confronting the florists, as well as many other industries in this city, in the location by the United States government of a $60,000,000 powder plant at Hadley's Bend, 12 miles from this city, on Cumberland river. They are calling for laborers daily and are paying two and a half times as much for common and inexperienced labor as the florists are able to pay, and some of the greenhouse men are putting negro women at work in their places.

Geny Bros. have a splendid supply of flowers for the Easter trade; plenty of lilies and roses of all kinds, as well as carnations, sweet peas, hyacinths and narcissi. In pot plants, they will have handsome ramblers, the baby type, as well as Tausendschon, spiraeas, hydrangeas and all the other pot plants for the season. They have a handsome line of baskets and birch boxes ready for the occasion.

The Mount Olivet Conservatories are advertising flowers for Easter, and they have on hand a most beautiful supply of hyacinths and tulips. For the most part, these will be sold direct from the greenhouses for the decoration of the graves, the patrons being saved the trouble of taking out their flowers. The prices are reasonable.

The McIntyre Floral Company will be altogether prepared for the Easter trade with a good supply of lilies, roses, carnations, sweet peas, orchids, and an infinite variety of pot plants. One of the younger McIntyres, some 12 or 14 years of age, makes a good salesman at the market two or three times a week.

Trade has been good, though the absence of big receptions and weddings has made some difference, and the Lenten season caused some little falling off, but on the whole sales have been fairly satisfactory.

Thos. H. Joy and wife have returned from a six-weeks stay in Florida, where they went for the health of the former, who returns much invigorated and entirely restored to health.

The fine weather has brought to the market house several florists who make good sales there every Saturday. Charles Tritchler, McIntyre Bros. and Haury & Son have displays.

L. N. Haury & Sons have beautiful hydrangeas and cyclamens, and have a good supply of all kinds of plants coming in for Easter. Their trade has been good.

CLUB MEETING.

The club held a meeting, March 14. It was attended by over 20 members and much accumulated routine work was disposed of. An attempt was made to do some co-operative advertising for Easter, but it was thought by the majority of those present that it would be unnecessary as this annual event has always given the florists all the work they could properly care for without advertising. A. Pochelon made a strong plea for immediate steps being taken for Mothers' day publicity, which met with unanimous approval and the subscription of nearly a thousand dollars for the purpose. George Doemling and Robert Jean were appointed to further solicit subscriptions to this fund, which, it is hoped, will be sufficient to insure co-operative publicity for periodical campaigns throughout the year. It was held by the retailers that the national publicity by the S. A. F. was largely responsible for the satisfactory business enjoyed by the local trade on St. Valentine's day. Application for club membership was received from Chas. L. Vodicka.

NOTES.

Frank Holznagle's daughter, Mildred, was married March 14, to Mr. John Stephens. A family dinner was given by the bride's parents at the Hotel Ponchartrain the day previous; only the members of the bride and groom's family were present. The groom is a graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan and will take up law practice in East Chicago, the future home of the happy couple.

TRADE DULL AND MARKET LOADED.

Preparations are being made for a big Easter demand with indications that stock will be plentiful with the exception of lilies and high grade plants. Azaleas are very scarce, but there are some excellent rose bushes, hydrangeas, cinerarias, cyclamens, tulips, hyacinths and genistas to be seen in the shop windows. Some very pretty effects are arranged in baskets and boxes which attract the buyer's eye. Trade during the past week has been very dull and the market has also been suffering from an oversupply, especially in sweet peas, carnations, bulbous stock and violets. Many sweet peas are offered to the street gentry at $2 per 1,000 and bulbous flowers move only at very low figures. Carnations are also away down in price. Good roses, however, are none too plentiful and are holding up well.

RETAIL FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

Local florists have organized the Retail Florists Association of Pittsburgh with Ira Harper as president, T. P. Langhans, vice-president Orville Crissman, secretary, and E. J. McCallum, treasurer. The object of the organization is for mutual benefit and protection, especially during war time. The members of the association are going to put forth every effort to grow as many varieties of flowers and plants as they can this season. An association of this kind has been advocated here for some years, but heretofore no effort has been made to organize. It is hoped that all retail dealers will join and put forth their best efforts for its success as every member will be greatly benefited by the time the first year rolls by. Every retail florist in the county is entitled to membership.

CLUB MEETING.

There was a fairly representative gathering of horticulturists at a congress of clubs held previous to the regular meeting to decide the fate of the proposed chrysanthemum show next fall. The congressional meeting was not a success, as no decision was reached, but the regular meeting was an exceedingly happy one. The Sewickley "boys" made the exhibition table all aglow with huge schizanthus in eight-inch pots. John Jones, of the Mrs. Wm. Thaw estate, and Jas. Murphy, of the H. L. Mason place, were the growers. Other interesting exhibits were a group of a splendid strain of Polyanthus primroses by Jas. Murphy, a vase of Darwin tulip, "Rev. Eubank," and yellow snapdragon by John Carman. Wm. Thompson showed sweet peas, gorgeous carnations and good cyclamens. By the way, good cyclamens seem to be very common in Pittsburgh this year. Thos. Tyler received an award of merit for an exhibition of cyclamens at the last special meeting. Our president, Carl Becherer, staged a collection of Dutch bulbs, hyacinths and tulips of the standard varieties. Our most favored Dutch bulb man, Mr. Colynn, gave a very interesting talk about the bulb situation in Europe today, and an entertaining description of the sailing of the S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam from Rotterdam, her voyage across, and the very stiff quizzing before landing in New York, which was very amusing. Mr. Colynn is as quick witted as an Irishman. Our meetings are very interesting in our new location and all who wish to keep up to the present standard, can hardly afford to miss attending even one of them.

CARNATION SHORTAGE FEARED.

Carnations will be one of the scarce items at Easter, from present indications, the local trade already complaining of a shortage, and prices have advanced 25 cents per dozen. They are now listed at $2 per dozen in the retail shops. The crop of Easter lilies seems to be good.

NOTES.

With the memory of huge fuel bills during the past winter, the coal situation still presents a puzzle. It is pointed out that few growers have enough room in the boiler house for a season's supply, and if this were even possible, attention is called to the danger of spontaneous combustion, as in the case of Frey & Frey, Lincoln, whose supply caught fire from this cause, was extinguished with great difficulty and only after considerable loss. If stored outside, the cost of carting it into the boiler house will assess $1.50 per ton to the cost, and labor is also uncertain.

J. J. Hess, of Hess & Swoboda, in speaking of the parcel post service, says that while it is somewhat quicker than express, for their business it has never been satisfactory, due to the fact that flower shipments are often roughly handled and being mixed in with cast iron repairs, etc., unless the boxes are especially strong, they are liable to be crushed.

Harvey Sisson, decorator at T. L. Combs' jewelry store, never thinks of arranging a window without the use of flowers. This week, vases of lilies are the feature. He attracted considerable attention recently with a display of La France roses with a diamond set in the heart of each.

A. E. L.

Providence, R. I.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Stock during the past week has been plentiful and of good quality, with carnations arriving faster than they can be moved, although cut flower sales have been good. Sweet peas are of excellent quality and sell well. The only shortage apparent is in roses, and prices are high. Good Paper Whites are still coming, and there has been an excellent demand for violets, which continue of good grade. The trade for St. Patrick's day was very satisfactory, with greened carnations and shamrocks in excellent demand. Many of the shops arranged special window displays, which helped the business. Easter stock looks well and the present outlook points to splendid sales.

M. Ianotti, of Thornton, has returned from New York, where he spent the past week buying supplies.

ROSES ARE SELLING QUICKLY.

Business has been quite good the past week, and, while there was more than enough stock to go around, the market was pretty well cleaned up in some lines, March 18. Roses are none too plentiful and they clean up very satisfactorily each day at good prices. Among the daily shipments are included a fair supply of fine American Beauty, Milady, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Killarney Brilliant. Carnations are to be had in quantity, but are moving at better prices than they did last week. The St. Patrick's day demand did not cut much of a figure this year in this market, and good white carnations, which sold for $5 and $6 per 100 in other years, were plentiful at $2 and $3. Sweet peas and violets sold well the past week, owing to the favorable weather, and a better demand was also noticed for lily of the valley, gardenias and orchids. Lilies and callas are having a good call, and so are tulips, especially in the fancier varieties. Particularly fine snapdragons are to be had at very reasonable prices, and among the offerings are noted irises, freesias, calendulas, jonquils, daffodils, narcissi, wallflowers, stevias, daisies, pansies, mignonette, forget-me-nots, candytuft, bouvardias, anemones and amaryllis. The early demand for Easter is very encouraging and, with fair weather, the sales should compare favorably with those of 1917. Some of the larger growers report that there will be a big scarcity of roses and lilies, and, judging from all the predictions heard the past week, stock in general promises to be in exceedingly short supply. It is advisable for everyone to place their orders as early as possible, for the prices quoted this Easter are very reasonable, considering the conditions, and are not likely to drop any, but may advance in some items before the rush is over. No one need be alarmed over the reported extreme shortage of stock in general, for there will be more offered than the majority of dealers believe, with the possible exception of one or two items.

Chicago

NOTES.

The Chicago Flowers Growers' Association will be strong on all seasonable stock for Easter, including roses, which promise to be in good supply with their growers. Manager Klingsporn is calling the attention of the buyers to the fancy long-stemmed snapdragons that his house is featuring this month.

Peter Hoefelder, with Kennicott Bros. Co., who was rejected in the first draft last fall, was called for examination again this week, when he was accepted for limited military service.

O. Johnson, manager of the Batavia Greenhouse Co.'s city salesroom, reports that his firm will be in large crop with American Beauty roses for Easter.

Art Weiss is the latest addition to the sales force at the Alpha Floral Co.'s store.

Zech & Mann will have a large supply of lilies to offer for Easter as well as all other seasonable stock, including Darwin tulips. Their regular sweet pea growers promise them heavy cuts of fancy stock if the weather is at all favorable between now and then.

Erne & Company are pleasing their trade with a choice grade of ferns and smilax, which are leaders with them. Cut flowers of all kinds are in good supply at this house and the outlook for a brisk Easter demand was never more encouraging.

Peter Reinberg is cutting fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which are grown in quantity at the greenhouses, in place of American Beauty, which promises to be a scarce proposition in this market this Easter.

Jim McNeill, better known as "Micky," with W. H. Kidwell, has joined the colors and expects to be called for service about March 29. He is with an engineering division.

J. A. Budlong is handling a fine supply of all seasonable stock, including fancy sweet peas and gardenias. This house is strong on the pretty miniature rose, Nesbit.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are enjoying a splendid city trade in both cut flowers and supplies.

For Your Supply of CUT FLOWERS

 Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

The Rapid Wrapper Co., with headquarters at 72 East Randolph street, is experiencing a heavy Easter demand for the Rapid Rapper, which is being used more extensively every day by all the leading florists throughout the country. One order for 20,000 was shipped to Los Angeles, Calif., this week and others represent practically every state in the union.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will have a large supply of orchids to offer for Easter for their cattleyas and phalaenopsis will be in exceptionally fine crop. Lilies, which are grown in quantity at the Morton Grove greenhouses, will be a leader and the outlook is promising for a heavy cut of lily of the valley.

The April meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Bismarck hotel and will be S. A. F. night with Paul R. Klingsporn in charge. T. E. Waters, chairman of the Good-of-the-club committee, promises an added attraction to which the ladies will probably be invited.

William Liebermann, a sixteen-year-old brother of Fred Liebermann, has been missing from home for nearly three weeks and so far the family or friends have been unable to locate him or his chum, Hubert Musselmann, who started out on a hunting trip together.

The A. L. Randall Co. has had a vase of George Ball's new sweet pea, Columbia, on exhibit at its store all this week. This variety was awarded a certificate of merit at the last florists' club meeting, where it was one of the main attractions of the exhibition.

Weitor Bros. will have a fine crop of carnations for Easter, including all the old standard and best new varieties. Rosette, Alice and Nebraska are doing exceptionally well with them and clean up nicely each day, owing to their splendid quality.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting a fancy grade of Ophelia roses, which are in brisk demand and command good prices. C. L. Washburn reports a heavy early call for roses for Easter, which he is inclined to believe will be in short supply.

Percy Jones, Inc., is well pleased with the early Easter demand, which is heavy and compares most favorably with that of 1917. Carnations will be in heavy supply at this house this year, along with a complete line of all other seasonable stock.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a large quantity of fancy sweet peas in addition to a most complete line of all other seasonable stock. The outlook is very bright for Easter, judging from the early demand for stock at this establishment.

Joe Einweck, of the Bassett & Washburn force, and Ed. Hunt, with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, who have been accepted for military service, expect to be called to the colors any day.

EXCELLENT STOCK IN ABUNDANCE.

With Easter less than two weeks away the market is crowded with all kinds of seasonable stock, with the Easter plants becoming more and more in evidence in the retail shops. Some handsome specimens of hydrangeas are appearing in the flower shops, in the pink and white French varieties, Tausendschon and other rambler roses are being offered, and bulbous stock is at its height. Some fine genistas are also seen on the market. In cut flowers, carnations are becoming very plentiful, but the prices remain firm. Roses are still off crop, but many of the local growers are expecting their crops to be in for the Easter business. Sweet peas and Rainbow freesias are coming in for a large share of popularity with the flower-buying public. Double and single violets continue plentiful, and forget-me-nots and candytuft offer variety. Everyone in the trade is preparing for Easter, and with organized efforts, the business this holiday ought to be a record-breaker.

NOTES.

The spring style show, which will be held next week, will be a big advertising feature of the Fort Wayne merchants, in which the florists will take a prominent part. There will be a grand window display of all the merchants in the downtown section, and prizes are offered for the best window decoration. On Wednesday morning there will be a unique parade of decorated commercial floats and private automobiles, prizes being offered for the best decorated cars. The florists are getting their share of business from this style show, as a large number of department stores have put in orders to decorate their entire stores and windows. Among the florists of this city who have entered the competition for the best decorated window, are: Doswell Floral Co., Edgar Wenninghoff, Freese Floral Co., Lanternier & Co., and the Flick Floral Co. A large number of florists will also have decorated automobiles in the parade.

Henry M. Freese, of the Freese Floral Co., who recently purchased the business of Markey Bros., reports business very active, with funeral work in

MARKET SUFFERS FROM OVERSUPPLY.

The market has been crowded with stock of all kinds the past week while business has been anything but good, but this is partly caused by the oversupply, when so much of it goes on the bargain counters. Roses are holding up in quality and there should be a good crop for Easter. Carnations as a whole are of very good quality, but can be bought at bargain prices in quantity. Sweet peas are very good, and while the shorter grades bring poor prices, the longer stemmed bring excellent returns considering the great supply. Jonquils are not so plentiful. Darwin tulips are coming in good supply, but narcissi are about done for. Lilies and callas are equal to the demand. Violets are very poor on account of the warm weather. Southern smilax is much below standard and will cause some inconvenience for Easter. Other greens are in good supply.

den to hold their April meeting as their guests. The trustees also staged an exhibition of miscellaneous flowers. Among the exhibitors were Jos. Hauser, A. S. Cerny, Hugo Gross and W. A. Rowe. Mr. Rowe exhibited a collection of extra fine snapdragons. The exhibition stock was disposed of at auction for the benefit of the club. Quite a lengthy and interesting discussion took place between the various members as to the merits of certain fertilizer mixtures. While the meeting was not very well attended, everyone seemed to enjoy the interesting talks.

A tour of the growers shows a shortage of pot plants for Easter in everything except bulbous stock. The lily situation, especially, looks somewhat dubious. We will have to have considerable sunshine for the next week to bring out enough to supply the demand.

Jules Bourdet, the genial vice-president of the S. A. F., went on a duck hunting trip last week. He failed to come back in time for the florists' club meeting, but was forgiven when he returned with about three dozen beauties.

The Bourdet Floral Co. and Chas. Beyer have some very fine rhododendrons. In fact, the finest ever seen in this market.

Al. Kopf, of Kirkwood, expects to have a big cut of freezias for Easter. His first lot is all cut out at present.

ENCOURAGING EASTER OUTLOOK.

The very favorable weather of the past few weeks has had a tendency to make the florists forget some of their troubles of the past winter, and from all reports are making preparations for taking care of an unusually large business this spring. Traffic conditions are gradually readjusting themselves but are not as yet back to normal. The local express companies have been moving shipments in very good shape, however, considering the conditions under which they are working. The outlook for a good Easter business is encouraging, although, of course, there will be a shortage in some of the imported plants usually on hand, but we think in all probability, the offerings of other good stock will make up for the shortage. At the present time, the local retailers are offering carnations, sweet peas, lilies, roses, jonquils, hyacinths, etc., in numbers sufficient to take care of the demand. All local florists have made preparations to grow vegetable plants this spring, some more extensively than others.

MARKET CLEANS UP WELL.

The fore part of last week found business conditions rather quiet, but towards the end, with ideal spring weather prevailing, the demand took a jump, cleaning up the wholesale houses by Saturday night, something rather out of the usual. While the demand as a whole for white carnations for St. Patrick's day was not up to former seasons, still it was great enough to use what there was at $4.00 per 100. Unusual activity in funeral work was again noticeable; doing its share in helping a good thing along. Monday, March 18, with the thermometer at 60° in the shade, the demand was very brisk and a clean up reported by noon.

NOTES.

The death of ex-Senator Isaac Stephenson, of Marinette, Wis., was the cause for work "all day Sunday, March 17th" at the J. M. Fox & Son (Inc.) cut flower department. Outside of several good sized sprays they made a casket cover of orchids, sweet peas and violets, and a large wreath of orchids and pansies. In order to insure prompt delivery, Frank Sylvester accompanied the orders.

During the severe wind storm February 2, fire, which originated from a kerosene lamp at the greenhouses of the A. F. Kellner Co., at 5:30 a. m.,

Three Good Sellers For Easter

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., Wholesale Florists 1201-5 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THIRTY-EIGHT YEARS IN FLORIST SUPPLIES

My experience in the business and my knowledge of the trade in all parts of this country from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast, enables me to know just what is used in the various localities. My stock is full and complete. Everything new and up-to-date, including all the dependable staples in Florists' Supplies. Let me quote figures on your every day needs. I am out for business and my prices and quality of stock will surprise you.

MARTIN REUKAUF, Wholesale Jobber in Florist Supplies. 433 Callowhill St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

SHORTAGE IN NEARLY ALL STOCKS.

As Easter approaches, business seems to increase; there is a better cleanup at least, due, some say, to a shortage in almost all lines. The shipments to the market in carnations, sweet peas, roses, and in almost all other stocks, are shortening up very perceptibly. Daffodils and other bulbous flowers are about the only plentiful items. All roses, with the exception of American Beauties, of which the spring crops appear to be coming strong, are still scarce, the daily demand exceeding the supply. Callas are plentiful and in good demand. Easter lilies are not so plentiful and violets are getting smaller. Cattleyas are going off crop, while gardenias are hard to move. Southern asparagus is now supplying the market. Modern methods in cutting and packing get this valuable green to its destination in almost as good condition as the local supply.

EASTER OUTLOOK.

The city is full of out-of-town visitors looking up their Easter plant and supply stocks. From the way the orders are given, all buyers are looking forward to their usual good trade. Transportation is the only difficulty; many of those within a hundred miles radius are taking their selections along, as far as possible, in their own trucks. Express conditions are still uncertain, but special efforts are being made to give this stock the right of way in time for the Easter market.

WITH THE WHOLESALERS.

Flowers in nearly all lines have shortened up considerably and prices have advanced a trifle. American Beauties are coming in more freely, but other roses are scarce. Prospects are such that we look for a good Easter trade. These are conditions with the Leo Niessen Co. Sweet peas, snapdragons and carnations are features here.

Edward Reid furnished one of the department stores for their St. Patrick's day decorations with a clod of genuine Irish turf, a souvenir of his last visit to the little tight isle. Better average prices prevailed the past week, due to the diminished supply. Choice sweet peas, carnations, and Double White Killarneys were prominent in the stock here.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is strong on roses, for which they have a very good outlet. Easter lilies, daffodils and sweet peas are handled in quantity. Manager Miller reported business very good.

Eugene Bernheimer reports a good demand with a falling off in the supply. Very good snapdragons are featured.

suffered the inconvenience of having to wear a truss, due to a rupture. Thinking to relieve himself of this annoyance, he underwent an operation at the Presbyterian hospital, March 3, which was declared very successful. Reports continued to come which indicated a rapid recovery. He was expected to return home March 16. Suddenly on that date he had an attack of heart failure, which he was not able to survive, and passed away at 9 a. m.

The very interesting lecture of Prof. J. C. Saunders, state zoologist, before the florists' club, April 2, should be kept in mind. This will be illustrated with colored slides. Prof. Saunders is an expert on insects and plant diseases and will be prepared to answer any questions presented on these important subjects.

William E. Graham, late with the Fleishman Floral Co., of Chicago, has joined the forces of the A. L. Randall Co., of that city, and will represent them as their agent in the eastern states. He is now in this city perfecting arrangements for the business.

The plant department of the S. S. Pennock Co. has opened an annex at 1608 Ranstead street, which will give them much needed room in which to handle their large Easter plant business.

George Faulkner has opened a store for the sale of Easter plants at the corner of 15th and Ranstead streets. He is well stocked and should do a good business on this busy thoroughfare.

BUSINESS SLOW, BUT NO SURPLUS.

Business was rather slow during the past week, regardless of the fact that there was no great surplus of any stock on the market. White carnations, that usually take quite a jump in price the week before St. Patrick's day, on account of the demand for them for dyeing, were slow this year at $4 per 100. The succession of mild days, followed by swift drops in temperature, that has been the state of the weather of late, has been hard on stock so far as supply is concerned, but the quality is generally good. Cut lilies will be firm in price until after Easter, when there is sure to be a big drop. Our advices indicate that many lilies intended for Easter will not bloom in time, consequently for some time after, the market will be flooded with cut stock. Roses remain about the same as in our last week's quotations. Darwin, Flamingo and other good tulips go quite well. Sweet peas and various other small stocks are cheap. Orchids take a wide range in prices. Inferior stock of cattleyas can be bought for 25 cents per flower, whereas a few C. gigas bring $1 per flower.

March 18.—The weather is fair and there is a cheerful tone in the market. Special American Beauties are running at from 40 to 50 cents each, wholesale. Prices on cut lilies are climbing. 15 cents per flower being asked, and in some instances paid for the best. In tea roses and nearly every other stock, excepting carnations, the supply is light and prices are advancing, as will be noted in our quotations.

THE FLOWER SHOW.

A letter from New York at this time without reference to the flower show, would be something like the play of Hamlet—with Hamlet omitted.

It has been said that no man is a hero to his valet. Reasoning along similar lines, it is doubtful if, figuratively speaking, the heavers of wood and drawers of water who worked all day and far into the night of March 13—and then some more—getting the show into proper shape, could appreciate its beauty from the viewpoint of the visitors who found the Grand Central Palace swept, garnished and decorated. The arrangement of a show of the extent of this one has called for both careful planning and hard labor. Considering the many unfavorable conditions that have confronted the management, the show is a good one, but not as extensive as those of previous years. We believe that the larger space allotted to the Red Cross and its increased activities this year is a good feature. Many people here, and probably elsewhere, do not seem to realize the fact that this nation is now in the greatest war that ever ravaged this planet. The Red Cross is doing a good work in addition to its other manifold activities, when it throws a strong light on that fact. The decorations of the Red Cross garden and theatre were arranged by Wadley & Smythe, 491 Fifth avenue, and in the theatre in particular were quite elaborate. Professor White, of Ithaca, has been constantly on the job since the show opened and as secretary of the American Rose Society and other activities, has been a busy man.

NOTES.

And now we are to have daylight "Hooverized." The bill, which seems sure to become law, provides that on the last Sunday in April the clocks will be set forward an hour, to continue till the last Sunday in September. That is the Senate bill. The House bill extends the period to seven months—from the last Sunday in March to the last Sunday in October. There may be a compromise, but daylight saving, so to speak, is in sight. We do not know whether to be sorry for the lie-a-beds or to laugh at them, as we have daylight saving well in hands. So have the boys of the Cut Flower Exchange who have always been at business at 6 a. m. The two hours after daylight of a summer day are the best part of it for work, but too many people never see them.

William F. Gude, of Washington, visited the wholesale district while here for the show. The two Gude families, William F. and his son Ernest F., in the uniform of a corporal in the United States Army, and Adolphus and his twin sons, Edwin and Edgar, in the uniforms of the United States Navy, attracted much attention at the Flower Show and at the florists' club dinner.

The hotel table decoration staged at the flower show by A. T. Bunyard, 413 Madison avenue, for the Hotel Chatham, was greatly admired. It was composed of acacias and ranunculus and was a fine arrangement.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor at the flower show, March 16, and we are pleased to state that after his recent experience with physicians and surgeons, he is looking well.

J. S. Fenrich, 51 West 28th street, is receiving exceptionally fine Ophelia roses from the Duckman & Pierson range, Chatham, N. J., which bring record-breaking prices.

Herman Weiss, 130 West 28th street, is handling fine Stanley roses from the range of A. E. Jackson, West Summit, N. J., whose Stanleys took first prize at the flower show.

S. Masur, of 256 Fulton street, Brooklyn, advises us that he has had a busy season and is looking forward to a good Easter business.

W. A. Manda, of South Orange, N. J., well known in the trade, has been very ill, but is now much better.

John J. Coan, 115 West 28th street, is handling a fine stock of yellow daisies. A. F. F.

Westchester and Fairfield Society.

The monthly meeting was held in Hubbard's hall, Greenwich, Conn., March 8, with a fine attendance. President P. W. Popp in the chair. President Popp has received to date the sum of $150 from representatives of different seed and nursery firms, to be used for monthly prizes. James Stuart read a letter from F. R. Newbold, treasurer of the New York Horticultural Society, thanking this society for its check of $100 towards planting fruit trees in the devastated districts of France. Mr. Stuart read a very interesting essay on "Co-operation," which brought up a lot of discussion by the members. The judges, W. Morrow, W. Whitton and J. McAllister, made the following awards: Fine specimen cyclamen from James Stuart, first prize and cultural certificate; vase of mixed carnations, fine large blooms, from W. Graham, second prize and cultural certificate; primulas from Tom Atcheson, third prize. Collection of vegetables from Jas. Stuart, first prize; Robert Allan, second prize.

It was decided that we hold two flower shows this year, the summer show to be held in Mamaroneck, N. Y.,

SEND YOUR Telegraph and Mail Orders

For Delivery in Chicago and Vicinity to Us

We handle a large, complete and fine supply of Cut Flowers and Plants, consequently we can give you unequalled service at all times. Another point to be taken into consideration is that we are located in the heart of the great Chicago loop, close to the wholesale cut flower market, depots, leading hotels, theatres, restaurants, etc., making it possible for us to guarantee quick delivery and proper filling of each and every order on short notice.

Out-of-Town Florists are cordially invited to send their Easter orders for delivery in Chicago and vicinity to us. Satisfactory service guaranteed. Attention given to orders only from responsible parties and F. T. D. members. We exchange orders whenever possible.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS IMPROVE BUSINESS.

There has been some revival of social demand, despite the advanced stage of Lent, and this, together with store openings and funeral work, is making business good. All kinds of staple cut flowers are in ample supply, but no surplus of consequence has developed. Pot plants are scarce and limited to few varieties. The outlook for Easter in this respect is not good. Easter lilies will not be over one-half normal quantity, owing to unfavorable weather conditions. The standard selling price of the past year, 25 cents a bloom, has been advanced to 35 cents. There will be no azaleas, and very few rambler roses. They did not get started in time. Prospects are good for hydrangeas, tulips, hyacinths, primroses and jonquils. Uncertain shipments will make novelties scarce.

NOTES.

After an existence of 15 more years at High, near Broad street, Graff Brothers, florists, are forced to vacate through the leasing to other parties of the room in which they were one of the tenants. They are selling off their fixtures, and it is understood will retire from business. The activities of the firm have not included growing, but have been confined solely to the retail end of the trade.

Figures given out by the recreation director show that over 6,000 vacant lots in this city will be cultivated this year. A total of 1168 has been assigned and 1123 reserved by owners for garden purposes. Beginning Tuesday of this week, the remaining 4,000, or thereabouts, will be assigned.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

THE S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam, it is said, will sail for Europe soon.

SEED advertisements with prices must carry the name of the licensee.

NEW YORK seedsmen are reported refusing to sell at wholesale, retailing only.

CALIFORNIA seed growers now say they have had plenty of rain for the present.

THE taking over of Holland's ships may seriously affect Dutch bulb importations.

THE high temperatures in the middle west the past few days have greatly stimulated local as well as mail seed trade.

PARSNIP SEED is reported to have been sold in England in the trade at $5 per pound, retailing at double that amount.

AT a farmer's auction in Wayne county, Mich., a few weeks ago, a two-bushel bag of shelled Red Blazed flint corn of 1916 crop sold for $56, or $28 per bushel.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have greatly improved under the better weather conditions, the price for colors $4.00, whites $5.00 in lots of 10 to 20 bushels.

A. T. FERRELL, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., and family returned from Florida March 16. Mrs. Ferrell will undergo a minor operation at a Chicago hospital.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Charles M. Vick, of James Vick's Sons, delivered a very interesting address before the florists' club March 11, his timely topic being "The Seed Shortage of 1918."

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade March 20 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.25 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $21.00 to $28.00 per 100 pounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Harry E. Hallawell, president of the Hallawell Seed Co., is suffering from a nervous breakdown, the result of overwork, but an early recovery is hoped for. Large shipments to Buenos Ayres and Valparaiso have been made by this firm recently.

THE government is reported to have purchased approximately 1,000,000 bushels of pinto beans, or the entire crop of the semi-arid farming regions of Arizona, Wyoming and Colorado. This bean is said to can well and the price to the consuming public will be 12½ to 14 cents per pound.

EXCESS PROFITS.—Some seedsmen are worried over the excess profits clause of the income tax schedule. A few firms constantly carry large stocks, which in certain dull years entail heavy expense and loss that are partially overcome by the good seasons. How are expenses and losses of previous years to be adjusted with last year's income and the excess profits tax?

New Jersey Seed Crops.

Edgar F. Hurff, Swedesboro, N. J., reports pepper and eggplant sowing has just commenced, and as tomato and vine seeds will not be planted before April 15-May 1, it is too early to make predictions for the 1918 yield. Labor is very scarce and indications are that under existing conditions it will be difficult to secure sufficient acreage to meet the requirements of the trade except under greater expense than ever before. Growers in New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland are holding to $30 per ton for tomatoes. Squash and pumpkin will range from $15 to $18.

Seed corn that is dry and of good germination is very hard to secure.

California Rainfall.

A severe rainstorm which visited Los Angeles and vicinity March 10 resulted in a precipitation of 1.30 inches, bringing the total for the season to 10.76 inches, as compared with 14.53 inches last year. The total for the calendar year, 9.98 inches, is 3.02 inches in excess of normal for the period, which is 6.96 inches. Based on normal precipitation of 1.80 inches for March, 1.13 inches for April, .48 inch in May and .07 inch in June, the seasonable rains should end in a few weeks.

The record at other points, in inches, is as follows:

	Mar. 10	For Sea.	Lst Yr.
Ventura	1.70	15.47	19.04
San Jose	1.32	6.17	11.81
Lompoc55	15.35	21.11
Carpinteria ..	.98	15.05	22.05

Seed-Swapping Day.

Saturday, March 23, has been announced as "seed-swapping day" at Columbus, O., by a local philanthropic promoter of cheaper food schemes, Clark C. Doughty. On two recent Saturdays, with a corps of aids, he has stood on a prominent corner selling packages of seed corn and beans at practically cost. March 16 he disposed, in this way, of 10,000 packages, only one of a kind to a customer. On behalf of the swapping idea he says: "Thousands of bushels of valuable seed of all varieties are left each year, after planting season, which constitutes an enormous loss, in view of the crops that might be raised if this surplus seed was planted." He has wired President Wilson, suggesting his indorsement for the entire country of the Columbus plan, by setting aside a day when all farmers and gardeners of the nation may congregate at the county seats of their respective counties and swap, exchange and sell their excess seed. A similar message has been sent to Food Director Hoover. The idea has the indorsement of the Ohio food administrator. Last summer Mr. Doughty successfully inaugurated a so-called war-market, whereby farmers brought in their products to a common central point and sold direct to the consumer. It ran up until cold weather. For the seed-swapping day, Manager Ramsey, of the 4,000-acre Hartman farm, south of the city, has promised to bring in 10,000 clumps of rhubarb roots, to be sold at five cents each, and 500 bushels of Early Ohio seed potatoes.

Bean Prices Steady.

In western New York bean sections, good medium whites, red kidneys and yellow eyes held at $12.00 and white marrows at $13.00 per 100 pounds, bulk from wagons, trackside. Carlots, Michigan navys, sold $13.35@13.70 f. o. b. Grand Rapids. Colorado Pintos held at $13.50@13.75 f. o. b. San Francisco, and pinks at $8.40@8.50. Large distributing markets reported sales to jobbers at $13.75@14.00 per 100 pounds, sacked, for Michigan and New York whites, $14.00@14.25 for California small whites, $14.00@15.00 for limas and $9.25@10.25 for Pintos.—Market News, March 14.

Nebraska Seed Crops.

The outlook for seed for the 1918 crop of sweet, flint and dent corn is not encouraging, there being an acute shortage of stocks that will necessitate a smaller acreage than usual of many varieties, seed of some kinds being lost entirely.

The acreage of vine seeds depends largely upon the action of the sugar beet factories in meeting the demand of the growers, who are asking $10 per ton this year. If this is met, the acreage of vine seeds will be smaller than usual. If the advance in prices is not acceded to, there will be a good acreage of cucumber and muskmelon grown. It is going to be hard to get the necessary acreage for pumpkin and squash on account of the extra hazard connected with growing and harvesting, washing and drying, which require unusual care and attention, and help is very scarce. We have arranged to cover our watermelon requirements in fairly good shape; in fact, may have surplus stocks of some varieties if crops turn out well.

The wholesale seed growers are offering farmers higher prices for the crops to be grown this year than they charged the seed trade for the same items last season, and still the farmer growers are standing back indifferent to the country's needs. W. E.

Seed Exchange Proposed in England.

It is, of course, well known to the whole seed trade that there are shortages in a number of directions this season, and that these shortages may cause considerable inconvenience before the season is over. One or two leading firms in the trade have suggested that a kind of seed exchange should be set on foot, so that if the wholesale supplies run out of any articles, the retailers may mutually assist each other as long as stocks hold out. It may, of course, quite easily happen that one seedsman may run out of runner beans and have a surplus of some other sort which he would be glad to exchange; and it is suggested that this should be done, on an agreed basis, say, perhaps, half retail catalogue price on both sides. A system of this kind would not only be an advance in co-operation, but by preventing extreme shortage may avert danger from another quarter. The ruling powers have had their eye on the seed trade for several years, and there is a very grave danger that if any serious shortage occurs, the government will step in and put the trade under state control.—Horticultural Advertiser.

THE Texas Bermuda onion crop this spring is estimated at 10,000 cars as compared with 6,000 cars last year.

ONIONS, according to the Ohio Market News, were offered liberally at shipping points during the period ending March 14, with prices low and light demand.

FLORIDA celery shipments to the north have increased but the demand is light. Florida Golden is quoted at 70 cents to $1 in 10-inch crates; 70 cents to $1.40 in 12-inch, f. o. b.

CABBAGE in northern shipping sections has steadied a little after recent heavy declines, but the market is still rather weak, although many holders are refusing to sell at prevailing prices.

UNDER the title, "The Farm Garden of the North," the United States department of agriculture has issued for free distribution, Farmers' Bulletin 937, particularly for use in northern and western states. Another Farmers' Bulletin available for distribution is No. 856, "Control of Diseases and Insect Enemies of the Home Vegetable Garden."

Potato Bread Success.

The state penitentiary, at Salem, Ore., has for some time been using one-third potatoes in the manufacture of bread served to prisoners, the percentage being much greater than generally used in the making of bread with potato flour. The product is said to be excellent, wholesome and well liked.

Carlot Shipments of Vegetables and Fruits.

Carlot shipments of vegetables and fruits reported by railroads to the United States department of agriculture for the season to March 12 were as follows: New cabbage, 1,456; old cabbage, 16,041; lettuce, 5,672; celery, 6,336; onions, 12,993; tomatoes, 41; sweet potatoes, 9,492; white potatoes, 130,615; apples, 54,203; grapefruit, 1,386; oranges, 6,609; strawberries, 39.

Tomatoes Under Glass.

Tomatoes under glass are constantly gaining friends. It is a crop that appeals not only to the vegetable grower, but also to the florist. Carnations after Easter, if not promising, can be replaced with tomatoes, also any empty benches can be utilized. What is needed is good head room, good light, and a fair temperature. At this time of year, anything above 50° will do, as the increasing sun-power will soon correct any deficiency in temperature. Of course, 60° is best, but if not obtainable, no harm is done, only less progress will be made. As to soil, tomatoes are not exacting; what is needed is an ample supply of manure, balanced by the addition of bone-meal. This is especially true on benches, where only four or five inches of soil is carried. Unless thoroughly fed on benches, the fruit will be small and the crop unprofitable. Such varieties as Bonny Best, should be spaced near to 24 inches each way; less than that is not desirable. In regard to support, it is generally best to give each plant a stake. Strings are often used and do well if the ends of the houses are braced. Unless this is done, the enormous strain of the wires pulling may strain the houses. A good crop of tomatoes is a heavy load and calculations should be made on time.

In growing tomatoes, we have always followed two plans of watering—a restricted supply during the earlier growth to get strong root-action and sturdy growth, and an ample supply during the fruiting period; when the fruit is swelling a great deal of water is needed, more so than is generally given; and against the dread disease of dryrotting. Water is the remedy. When the plants make rapid growth, suckering needs prompt attention, as the energy of the plant must be directed into proper channels and not wasted by cutting away heavy branches. The restricted moisture during the early growth also tends to production of pollen, thus insuring early fruit bearing. The grower must bear in mind there is some difference between raising fruit and raising foliage only. The ideal should be to develop the proper amount of foliage and then translate this foliage to fruit. It can be done. Unless we get the leaf area first we cannot produce the fruit afterward. But the practice of encouraging the foliage too much is wrong, as finally the fruit must be our aim. Lastly, do not syringe the foliage; water the roots, and keep the house dry. What is needed is an imitation of good, dry, summer weather.

War Garden Results.

Figures on 1917 war gardens have been compiled by the national emergency food garden commission and show not only remarkable results for this year, but give the greatest encouragement for next year's war gardens, according to the Weekly Bulletin of the United States food administration. The nation-wide survey located nearly 3,000,000 gardens, aggregating 1,150,000 acres of city and town land under cultivation. As these gardens were tilled intensively, and the products had relatively high value, being figured in terms of retail prices which would have otherwise been paid for food purchased elsewhere, it is estimated that their yield was valued at $350,000,000, or $17.50 per family. The glass-jar manufacturers sold about 119,000,000 canning jars this year, and a survey of the household canning in 20 typical towns throughout the country showed that housewives used but one new jar to over 3¼ old jars already on hand. On this basis the housewives of the country put up nearly 500,000,000 quart jars of vegetables and fruits, which is believed to be three times as much as was ever packed before. Besides actual results, there was a return in experience which will be valuable next year, for Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the commission, says that even if 25 per cent of the war gardens failed this year it is reasonable to suppose that not more than 10 per cent will fail next year, because experience has taught them how to grow and pack garden stuff.

Wild Onion Pest.

The wild onion is a common pest which may cause serious loss to both wheat growers and dairymen. If the weed gains a foothold in the grain fields the bulblets on the top of the onion stems are difficult to separate from the wheat grains, and when harvested will contaminate the flour and gum the mill rollers. In the case of the dairyman, the loss is due to the disagreeable flavor in milk from cows that have eaten the weed. Experiments conducted at one of the government experimental farms, however, indicate that if a period of four hours elapses between eating the wild onions and milking time, the onion flavor is practically imperceptible. Detailed information regarding the eradication of the wild onion or garlic from fields may be found in Farmers' Bulletins 608 and 610 of the United States department of agriculture.

DREER'S GRAND NEW CANNAS FOR 1918

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 75 cts. each; \$7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft. 75 cts. each.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft. 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 15 cts. each; \$1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft. 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 25 cts. each; \$2.50 per doz.

"Home Vegetable Gardening from A to Z."

The above is the title of a new book of interest to those interested in home vegetable gardens, many of whom have never before used a spade, rake or hoe. The endeavor is to make the information contained in its 300 pages a reliable guide for gardeners in all sections, and wherever practicable definite information is given as to time of maturity of different crops, their adaptability to different soils and localities and their general behavior under normal conditions, furnishing valuable information to the experienced gardener as well as the new beginner. "Which sorts and why" is also well covered. The book is handsomely bound in cloth and contains more than 200 photographic reproductions and 32 four-color illustrations. It can be had at THE AMERICAN FLORIST office; price, $1.25 net.

SANDUSKY, O.—Park Superintendent Roth says the fine specimen of Cycas revoluta at the city conservatories is now in bloom and attracts a great deal of public interest. The plant is said to be 35 years old.

Speidel, Milwaukee Forester.

Otto Speidel, of Oconomowoc, Wis., was appointed forester for Milwaukee, Wis., by the park board of that city, March 11. He will assume his new duties April 1 at a salary of $2,700 per year. The new forester was born in New York and educated in that city. He has also studied in Europe and received practical training and experience in London, Paris, Brussels and Stuttgart and also with leading nursery specialists in Switzerland. During the Paris exposition in 1889, he represented L' Paillet & Sons, and during the World's Fair in 1893, Gallagher & Co., the well-known Chicago florists of that time. During the last few years he has been engaged in laying out and supervising private estates, among them those of P. A. Valentine and Philip D. Armour in both Oconomowoc and Lake Forest, Ill. His experience extends over 30 years. E. O.

Early Magnolias.

The flower-buds of the Japanese Magnolia stellata have been nearly all killed in the arboretum. This should not, however, discredit this beautiful shrub, for the plants here are in low ground and in a particularly trying position, and in other Massachusetts gardens plants of this magnolia have not been injured and are now in full bloom. The flower-buds of the other early-flowering Japanese species, Magnolia kobus and its variety borealis, have not been injured and are now just opening. As flowering plants they are the least desirable here of the magnolias which bloom before the leaves appear, for the flowers are not large and only exceptionally are produced in large numbers.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, April 30, 1917.

IMPROVEMENT IN TRANSIENT TRADE HELPS

Business toned up somewhat during the past week, and there was a little more activity in transient trade. The market is quite well supplied with roses, carnations, daffodils, narcissi and calla lilies. Tulips are being held back for Easter, as are large quantities of bulbous stock. Narcissus poeticus, myosotis, yellow marguerites, cornflowers, calendulas, sweet peas and mignonette are all plentiful, and the demand for all spring novelties is strong. Azaleas, spiræas, cinerarias, deutzias and cyclamens will be plentiful for Easter. Cyclamens are small of flower and not very good in quality. Asparagus, while arriving from the south in large quantities, is still short of the demand.

NOTES.

Henry P. Neun is growing excellent Primula obconica. At his store, the windows are attractive with baskets of wallflowers and pussy willows.

Salter Bros. are preparing for the Easter rush with baskets of all colors, sizes and designs of birch bark. Geo. Cramer is the artist.

David Scott, of Corfu, is sending to this market excellent long-stemmed sweet peas, yellow marguerites and giant mignonette.

Totty's 'Mums

FOR fifteen years this slogan has been "Over the Top," of our ads and means that as usual, Totty's 'Mums, will be in the first line of "trenches" as regards quality and condition.

We have several hundred thousand plants in all the Standard varieties, ready for immediate delivery and our stock was never cleaner or in better shape.

Two fine Commercial Novelties are:

BRONZE UNAKA

The bronze sport of Unaka, the earliest and best bronze,

YELLOW SMITH'S ADVANCE

Don't forget Connie Dick (The Yellow Doty), the finest Pompon we ever distributed

BEDDING PLANT NOTES.

Some Timely Suggestions.

All of the plants included in the list of bedding plants are now making rapid growth and need plenty of room for their best development. Owing to so much of the bench space having been occupied by the Easter stock or plants producing cut flowers, the bedding plants have had to get along in somewhat crowded quarters, but they must now have their turn and be allowed ample space to make their growth, if first class sturdy plants are desired. Anyone who has had anything to do with growing large quantities of bedding plants knows full well the amount of care that must be given them at this time so as to be sure of first class stock when planting-out time comes. Potting, being one of the principal parts of the work, the plants should be shifted along until the required size is reached; sometimes it becomes necessary to rush this work along to prevent the plants from becoming pot-bound, and it is better to do this at the expense of possibly letting up on some of the other work so as to keep these plants moving, because if they once become root-bound, they receive a check which takes considerable time to grow out of. Do not overpot; if the plants are small in size, give them pots accordingly, it being better to shift again than to give a small plant a large amount of pot space. Pot firmly to insure a short-jointed, sturdy growth.

Bedding plants need a compost as carefully prepared as for the choicest plants. It is a mistake to use a worn-out soil from a chrysanthemum or carnation bench. The best material is a compost made up of one-fourth well-rotted manure to three-fourths loamy soil of a medium texture (not too light or containing any large amount of clay) which was prepared and stacked last fall and put under shelter in time enough to dry up a bit so that it can be handled properly as well as to become in fit condition for the plants, which should never be potted into cold wet soil.

There is a greater demand for geraniums than for any other bedding plant, and there is more work connected with the growing of them than any of the other plants; also, there are no other bedding plants where the sales depend so much on the quality of both the plants and blooms. Unless 4-inch geraniums are nice stocky plants with good flowers and buds showing, it is a hard matter to dispose of them, but when the plants are good and carry a reasonable number of fresh flower trusses customers are willing to pay a fair price for them, but when the plants are carried over winter until the middle of April in 2¼ or 2½-inch pots, and then shifted into 4's, with only a month or six weeks to become established, it is not any wonder the public figures that 25 cents for three plants is about all they are worth. To grow fine plants from fall struck cuttings, they must be shifted three times, first into 2¼-inch pots from the sand as soon as rooted, then into 3-inch not later than January 31, and then into 4-inch, not later than March 31. The plants are then moving all the time and become, under reasonable methods of culture, fine plants that will sell readily for 25 cents each, or more, in some localities. It is, therefore, necessary to give the plants the final shift at this time—a week or 10 days' delay now will make a big difference in being able to get them in bloom by May 15. After potting, give the plants the best of treatment. Be sure they are well watered in at time of potting, but after that watch closely that they are not over-watered before the roots have a chance to become firmly established in the soil. Do not resort to any degree of forcing. Geraniums do not take kindly to it, but delight in a moderate temperature, with plenty of air on every favorable occasion. The temperature best suited for growing carnations is also ideal for geraniums.

A word or two about taking cuttings from these plants. Do not be tempted to take any cuttings or do any topping after the middle of March or the plants will not have time to round into shape and get into bloom in time for planting in May. For later work, they will be all right, but the plants intended for Memorial day or before should now be allowed to go on without any topping or disbudding, unless the buds have been allowed to get far advanced, then they should be picked off, but after April 1 go slow on removing any buds. Should any of the plants have drawn themselves out and become lanky, then a cutting can be taken from these and the plants will do for later planting or stock purposes.

Alternantheras.

In a week or 10 days it will be time for plunging the young plants of alternanthera out into the hotbeds, so if any cuttings are still to be put into the propagating bed, they should receive attention without further delay. There is still time for this work. The cuttings root readily in a very short time, and the plants from cuttings taken now make the best of stock for planting out. They require lots of heat to get them in shape. The stock clumps for producing cuttings should be set in a warm, sunny place, to enable them to produce cuttings quickly. By the first week of April the hot beds should be ready to receive the young plants as they are potted from the sand. The young plants now in 2-inch pots from fall struck cuttings, should have the soil shaken from them and repotted with fresh soil into 2 or 2½-inch pots and plunged into the hotbed. A bottom heat of 75-85 degrees should be maintained until the plants have attained sufficient size, when it can be reduced some to give color to the foliage, but at no time should the beds be allowed to go below 65 degrees. After the weather becomes warm, the sash can be regulated to harden them off preparatory to planting outside, but it should be borne in mind that alternantheras will not stand outside until all danger of cold nights is passed and the weather is settled warm.

Miscellaneous Plants.

Under this head we may include ageratums, begonias, heliotropes, fuchsias, coleus, Mme. Salleron, salvias, petunias, etc., These should be worked along to the required size, according to what they are to be used for. Petunias, heliotropes and fuchsias are generally needed to be large plants, well in bloom. They must be given good treatment from now on to have them in good shape. This means careful watering, plenty of room and a light situation, as well as strict attention paid to keep them free from insects.

These should now be well sprouted and making good roots. If they are being started in sand, as soon as they have made a good start, pot them into 3½ or 4-inch pots and set in a warm place.

There is always a strong demand for hydrangeas well in bloom. These plants should now be showing buds and need to be given good treatment with plenty of room for development. They will come along nicely in the temperature of the carnation house. Regular fumigation should be attended to so as to prevent the greenfly from working down into the buds, which quickly ruins the fine heads of bloom.

The plants need lots of water after the soil has become full of roots, but care should be taken to be sure of good drainage or the leaves will turn yellow.

Try a few fine specimens of geraniums worked up into 6, 7 or 8-inch pots. We find a good demand for this class of plants when in good shape. Roses in bloom, in pots, are also called for largely. Now is the time to start them up.

Pansies.

Watch out for the pansies in the frames. Uncover as soon as the weather will permit, leaving the sash as the only covering, then ventilate freely every day when favorable weather conditions prevail. Get the frames ready for transplanting the winter sown plants.

Ivy on Trellis.

The Support, Painted White, is 36 Inches High.

Seedlings.

Do not neglect the seedlings of verbenas, petunias, lobelias, sweet alysum, etc. As soon as they become large enough to transplant, give them the proper attention. After they are transplanted the overhead shelf in the greenhouse is the best place to set the flats; then, when they become large enough, they can be potted in 2½-inch pots, which is a better method of handling these plants than holding them in the flats and selling therefrom by the dozen. We find that customers would rather pay the extra price for pot plants than to have the seedlings direct from the boxes.

C. W. JOHNSON.

FORT DODGE, IA.—At a recent meeting of stockholders, the North Floral Co. was dissolved.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Ivy on Trellis.

The English ivy is one of the plants to be found in almost every florist's establishment. It is easy to propagate and is not susceptible to disease, although at times, owing to unfavorable conditions, green fly will attack the young shoots and scale will sometimes get a foothold. A good hoeing and a cool temperature will, however, soon rid them of these insect pests.

Because the ivy is so common, it is not thought worthy by many of any particular care or attention; those offered for sale as pot plants are given a center stake, to which the vines are tied in a mass, thus hiding all their lines of beauty.

J. William Colflesh's Sons, of Philadelphia, Pa., have in the past few years taken up the ivy; and by keeping a good stock in all sizes from bushy cuttings in two-inch pots for fern dishes, up to specimen plants, trained as pyramids and others to white-painted fan-shaped trellises, they have had to increase their stock in its various sizes each season, until this year it is planned to raise 100,000 plants.

As shown in the accompanying illustration, the 36-inch white-painted trellis adds 100 per cent to the appearance of the plant. It looks larger as the leaves all face one way. It is dressed up, as it were, and is pretty sure to find some place to go.

In Boston, Philip L. Carbone, on Boylston street, has worked up a large trade in ivies, particularly for plants of good size. These are planted, a number with long vines, six feet or over, in a good-sized tub or terra cotta pot. They are trained to pyramid or half-column form, one side flat, the other half-round, suitable for vestibule decoration. They measure six to eight feet in height, with a width of from 24 to 30 inches. Such plants, with the fancy pots, sell for $50 a pair.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., have made a specialty of ivy baskets, filling 10-inch, 12-inch and even larger-sized wire hanging baskets with ivies, which with long pendant vines, are very effective in large store windows and conservatories. Hotel corridors, as well as the hallways of fine mansions, are made more attractive with the addition of these masses of graceful vines. When balanced with one another over pulleys in the ceiling, the baskets are easily cared for. One being pushed up will bring the other down to be watered and allowed to drip for a short time, which process is then repeated with the other.

It is this emphasizing the decorative features and showing the possibilities of many plants, that puts them to the use for which they were grown.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The great rush is now over, and we hope it has been a profitable season to all. The first and most important duty, is to at once, make an inventory of the left over stock, both in plants and supplies. Then write down a complete and careful resume of the week's business, describe whose stock was best, the azaleas, hydrangeas, lilies, roses, genistas, hyacinths, tulips and other staples. Make a record of that which sold the best, so as to keep track of the trend of the fancies of the public. The success of the plant baskets and other plant combinations, and any suggestions as to their improvement that experience of this season makes possible, should be noted. The arrangement of the store, the delivery of stock, extra help, etc., are all matters of importance that should be a part of the record for reference next year.

HAT WINDOW ARRANGED BY PENN, THE FLORIST, BOSTON, MASS.

Spring Millinery Tastefully Trimmed with Natural Flowers That Attracted Much Attention.

The advertising and its results should prove interesting and a guide for next year's campaign. All these and many other matters should be written out fully. Such a complete record will be found of great value when the next year's Easter business is under consideration. It is also a good plan, while the results are fresh in the mind, to make out an appropriate list of plants in their varieties and sizes for next season. It is much easier to make such a selection now than after 10 to 11 months have passed by. Most memories are faulty, and by the time another year has rolled around, much that seemed indelibly impressed on the mind is forgotten. The record in black and white is as plain as day, however, and a great assistance to a systematic management of the business.

By careful watering and handling, quite a lot of the left over stock may be sold during the week. There is always a demand for lilies and other flowers for the decoration of the Episcopal churches for the Sunday following Easter.

Window boxes of pansies or English daisies will now be in demand or can be pushed with good results. They are most satisfactory. A campaign looking to the more general use of window boxes is a good move. There are many flower lovers, who, if the matter was brought to their attention, would no doubt join the ranks of those who now help in this way to make the "city beautiful."

Keep up the interest in your store with attractive window displays. Passe flowers or plants are far from ornamental; in fact, are a great detriment if allowed to stand as a sample of your stock. Good, fresh, seasonable plants well displayed with appropriate, snappy window cards, keeps the shop up-to-date, attracts attention and cannot fail to bring business.

How about the national publicity campaign? Are you assisting by a display of their window signs, "Say it with Flowers," and other cards? This movement is especially for your benefit, Mr. Retailer, and that of every man in the trade as well. If you have not come across with your good, healthy contribution, do so at once, and by so doing, give your business a distinct boost forward.

Penn's Hat Window.

Several attractive pieces of spring millinery, tastefully trimmed with natural flowers, caught the eyes of those who passed the shop of Penn, The Florist, Boston, recently. Several hats formed the entire window trim, with a few baskets and vases of flowers to add beauty to the display.

While the chief value of the window display was to get the attention of the persons passing by, the value of the window as a sales agent as well as a general publicity medium was demonstrated by orders for a number of hats, running from $15 to $25 in price, principally from brides' attendants and theatrical people.

A few roses, a spray of valley, or some sweet peas composed the trimmings on the hats. The work was done by Jack Eiseman, who entered Penn's employ upon coming to Boston from New York, 12 years ago. He is considered one of the best decorators in Boston, and has won many prizes by his workmanship. The hat window, which is shown in the accompanying illustration, brought members of the staffs of several millinery shops of the city to Penn's to inspect the trimming.

Anderson's Palm Sunday Display.

In response to a general invitation issued by S. A. Anderson, prominent florist of Buffalo, N. Y., the public, to the number of fully 2,500, visited the range on Palm Sunday and enjoyed one of the finest floral displays seen in that city. Lilies, tulips, azaleas and a big showing of rambler roses, which are being reserved for Mothers' day showed wonderful quality with not a trace of the worst winter on record which they had to pass through and which required the constant attention of Carl Butz, foreman of the houses, who worked unceasingly and without sleep for long periods to save the stock, using wood fires and charcoal for the purpose and spraying at short intervals to save the plants from the fumes. Every visitor was presented with a flower as a souvenir.

Anderson's Easter announcement, which appeared in the daily papers in the form of an attractively illustrated advertisement, calls attention to "flowers in the home on Easter morn as Nature's gift to all the household." Easter plants, cut flowers, corsages and special boxes of flowers are named in the list with the prices at which they are offered.

Easter Flowers

REFLECT PATRIOTIC SPIRIT.

In the great Easter parade of flowers this year there will be a hint of war and a suggestion of peace, and even the tiniest floral offering will have a patriotic tinge. For florists have felt the pulse of the public, and they know the thoughts of sender and recipient are so occupied with war of flowers at this season displaying these soft, fluffy, brownish gray-knobbed spikes. At Eastertide which is the day of Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men, the springtime harbinger will be particularly appropriate.

Although it is a simple addition to a basket of flowers, it does not mean the gift will be inexpensive in proportion. Those who can afford it will be generous in their Easter expenditures.

As Grown by the W. A. Rowe Floral Co., Kirkwood, Mo.

that all holidays and other occasions which call for the bestowal of bouquets and growing plants must in some way reflect the public mind.

The soldier's Easter gift is already ordered. Thousands of men in khaki have sent their cards to their favorite florists with instructions what to send on Easter day. One of them said recently, when he appeared fresh from a nearby camp and wrote an Easter greeting which will find its way to the home of a pretty fiancée: "A single rose from a soldier expresses all that the most gorgeous Easter bouquet could say."

And he tucked the small engraved card into an envelope and instructed the florist to put it into a box with one large, perfectly fresh and fragrant American Beauty rose. This is the soldier's Easter offering. All along the line of beautiful florist shops in Fifth avenue and the adjoining streets and neighboring avenues, where costly and rare plants and blooms will be displayed on Easter Saturday, hundreds and hundreds of boxes containing one flower each will go forth carrying their simple, but nevertheless suitable, message.

Easter lily buds will be the favorite selection of persons desiring more costly and imposing floral offerings. And the fact that we are at war and that the Bermuda lily fields, though possibly blooming in all their heavily scented loveliness, are not contributing a single bloom to the New York market will not affect the local situation to any extent. For the lilies that will open in the homes of residents here on Easter morning will be native plants, grown and cultivated with all the care of science for which our own horticulturists are noted.

The pussy willow signifies peace, it is said by florists who speak the language of the flowers, and that's why one sees so many baskets and bunches Sending a bouquet of flowers to some mother or sister or sweetheart is going to be a patriotic duty. It's the first Easter since the United States really entered the war. The president's message declaring war on Germany was only two days old last Easter morn, and the nation had scarcely awakened to the fact.

But this year every man, woman and child realizes it, and all know the anxiety of families whose boys are at the front distinguishing themselves or who are in cantonments ready to go at a moment's notice. And to cheer up these apprehensive mothers and other relatives they are to be showered with spring blooms and hothouse exotics. The outlook, according to experts in the horticultural kingdom, is bright for the greatest flower display of any Easter season.

Anticipating the tremendous demand for flowers, gardens have been tended with the utmost care and regularity, and those who have been able to double their outputs have done so. The flower shops during Holy week will look like the month of June, when roses reach their prime. There will be rare and costly orchids to give variety to the color and the simpler garden flowers, which have been cultivated and expanded, will offer a refreshing contrast to the more formal blooms.

"Do your Easter shopping early," suggested a florist whose clerks are even now pressed almost beyond endurance with orders. For at the last minute it may be difficult to find just the flower you want or the combination you have set your heart on. Though the market promises to be tremendous and the spring weather is helping to increase the number of blooms, it may not be possible to supply all the flowers needed for brightening homes on Easter day.—New York Herald.

Snapdragon St. Louis.

The accompanying illustration shows the new snapdragon, St. Louis, being disseminated by W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo., who has grown it for three years and describes it as a winter bloomer with exceptionally long flower heads of a lavender pink color, which does not fade. It grows on long, stiff stems, often six feet in length. At the time the photograph was taken, they ranged from three to five feet.

CLOSING DAYS.

Our story of the flower show for its closing days, continued from last week's issue, pages 470-474, must begin with March 20, sweet pea day. Bright and early in the morning, George W. Kerr and several assistants arrived from Philadelphia, Pa., to stage the exhibit of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., of that city, which occupied 100 square feet. The vases were arranged with a background of black velvet. The stock was excellent and there were between 40 and 50 named varieties, Asparagus plumosus being used for decorative effect. This exhibit took first prize. For 100 sprays, bi-colored, S. Van Riper, Dundee Lake, N. J., was awarded first and M. Matheron, Hempstead, N. Y., second. For 100 sprays, white, Clarence Slinn, New York, was first and M. Matheron second. S. Van Riper scored first for 100 sprays of light lavender, M. Graff, Elmsford, N. Y., taking second honors. For 100 sprays, salmon or pink, the blue ribbon went to John H. Thompson, Kennett Square, Pa., the Van Riper entry being second. All of the above were in the commercial section. Among the private growers, F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn., was first in the display covering 25 square feet, W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, N. Y., second. In the class for six varieties, the Lewis entry was second. For 100 sprays one or more varieties arranged for effect, W. R. Coe was first and Peter Hauck, East Orange, N. J., second. In the class for dinner table decorations in which sweet peas were used, there were seven entries. All of the stock was good, the honors going to R. J. Casey, Madison, N. J., and Mrs. Charles Bradley, Convent, N. J., respectively.

Among the awards in the special classes, first honors were given to Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., for two standard, two pyramidal and two column bay trees. Alex Thompson, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., was given a silver medal for display of cut flowers. Silver medals were also awarded to Eugene Meyer, Mt. Kisco, for Gerbera Jamesonii hybrids; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., for 25 ferns, new; Mrs. M. F. Plant, Groton, Conn., basket of callas; A. N. Cooley, Cattleya Snow Queen; Fred Dressel, Weehawken, N. J., group of President Wilson fern. The Secaucus Exotic Nursery, Secaucus, N. J., received a silver cup for group of miscellaneous plants. Gold medals were awarded the following: George Gould, Lakewood, N. J., vegetable garden; John Scheepers & Co., New York, display of bulbs; also, International Garden Club cup for Dutch garden in sweepstakes class; W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y., display of crotons; A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., orchids; Wm. H. Siebrecht, Astoria, N. Y., flowering acacia. First prizes were given to Harold A. Ryan, Cambridge, Mass., for cut flowers; Miss Charlotte Trimm, New York, African lily, and a certificate of merit was awarded to Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J., for Cattleya Schroederiae, Mrs. H. Lutcher.

Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., arrived March 19, with a number of fine plants of his new solanum, Orange Queen, which were awarded a silver medal.

John Scheepers & Co., New York, were awarded the sweepstakes prize, the International Garden Club's cup, for their Dutch bulb garden.

P. W. Popp, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., superintendent of the estate of Mrs. H. Darlington, and also vice-president of the New York Florists' Club, won a number of prizes, and reached home on the night of March 19 in time to welcome the stork, that friendly old bird bringing a fine daughter. All are doing well. Cigars were plentiful when P. W. returned to the show.

Peter Gerlaird, a well-known designer and decorator of West 27th street, ably assisted the F. R. Pierson Company's staff in arranging the roses and decorative adiantums in their first prize winning display occupying 300 square feet.

Robert Berry, formerly in the park department of New York, and well known in the trade, who is now superintendent of a large estate in Virginia, arrived at the show, March 20, as cheerful as the morning sunshine.

For a man who is supposed to be on a vacation, Professor White, of Cornell University, has been doing a lot of work for the American Rose Society, but he did not neglect his nice little family, and brought them to the show.

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—The Tri-City Florists' Club at its annual meeting March 14, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Henry Pauli, Davenport, Ia., president; Henry Gaethje, Rock Island; Chris Sorensen, Moline, and Charles Reardon, Davenport, vice-presidents; Wm. Goos, Bettendorf, Ia., recording secretary.

National Association of Gardeners.

The first of a series of conferences to be held under the auspices of the National Association of Gardeners, took place at the Murray Hill hotel, New York, March 15. The well attended meeting of gardeners was presided over by Vice-President P. W. Popp, of the national association, who introduced President Robert Weeks, of Cleveland, O., as the first speaker. President Weeks spoke of the aims of the association and the benefits of co-operation and greater unity among the men composing the gardening profession.

Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., president of the Society of American Florists, was next introduced. He urged closer co-operation between the professional gardeners and the commercial interests in the crisis horticulture is facing due to the war, saying that the interests of both branches referred to are as one in the situation that is confronting them.

W. F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., was the next speaker. He referred to Mr. Totty's remarks and called attention to some of the legislative acts which have recently been introduced in Congress and which, he said, if passed, would result in disaster to many horticultural interests. He also spoke of the coal situation as it affected the florists, and promised his aid when the gardeners appeared in Washington to present their cause on the fuel question, which the directors of the National Association of Gardeners had decided to do at their meeting held earlier in the day. Mr. Gude urged that it was up to the gardeners to aid the florists in convincing the Administration that flowers were not non-essentials in war time. W. A. Manda, of South Orange, N. J., was to address the meeting on "The Future of American Horticulture," but was prevented from attending owing to a sudden illness which overtook him.

John Shore, of Harrison, N. Y., probably the oldest gardener in active service today in the United States, followed with a paper on "The Opportunities of the Gardener." Martin L. Davey, of Kent, Ohio, spoke on the advantages of unity and co-operation between the gardeners' interests and also spoke on the war and its effects on business. He urged that those that are not actually engaged in it or in the manufacture of essentials for it should conduct their affairs as in normal times so that when our soldiers return they will find that the country has not gone backwards, but that it has progressed even in the days of this conflict.

Norman Taylor, of Brooklyn, N. Y., editor of the Journal of the International Garden Club, on being introduced, spoke of the purposes of the journal he represented and invited the gardeners to contribute practical articles to it. Arthur Smith, of Glen Cove, N. Y., read a paper on "The Benefits of Co-operation."

After the speakers' programme it was found that too little time had been left for a general discussion, which was to have been an important part of the meeting and which must be provided for at future conferences.

Ernest Westlake, of Glen Head, N. Y., the chairman of the local co-operative committee of the Nassau County, N. Y., Horticultural Society, spoke of the resolution adopted by his society several years ago, and which was likewise adopted by other local societies throughout the country, on accepting members from one local society to another on presentation of proper credentials, and asked that the National Association of Gardeners again direct attention to this resolution, that gardeners moving from one district to another may take advantage of it. The association agreed to send out another notice to local societies on the matter.

The conference endorsed the action taken by the directors earlier in the day, on a communication received from a local society with copy of a legislative bill introduced in the state of New Jersey against the payment of commissions, gratuities, etc., to refer the communication to the next annual convention to take action thereon.

At the meeting of the trustees and board of directors held in the forenoon, the secretary was instructed to take such action as was necessary to learn from the fuel administrator at Washington what his attitude would be towards the private greenhouse next winter and to endeavor to have the fuel administrator permit private houses to secure a coal reserve during the summer months.

The directors endorsed the plans of the service bureau of the association to bring it to the attention of country estate owners to secure their co-operation in more firmly establishing it.

The directors decided on St. Louis as the next meeting place of the executive board, to be held in August. St. Louis members of the association also asked that a conference be held in that city at the same time.

A letter was read from Secretary Young, of the Society of American Florists, advising that President Robert Weeks had been appointed a director of that society. The directors voted to invest $1,000 of its treasury funds in the next call for Liberty bonds.

The next conference will be held in Boston the latter part of April, the exact date to be announced later.

National Publicity for Flowers.

That the publicity campaign is making good headway, and that it is producing beneficial results is no longer a matter of question. Reports from all sections of the country are to the effect that the campaign, so far, has stirred up business and increased the demand for plants and flowers. This result speaks volumes of praise for those through whose efforts the campaign was made possible, as well as those who have so nobly contributed to the fund necessary to inaugurate and carry it on.

But florists who have not yet subscribed should not get the idea that the campaign is coming to a close. The point aimed for and necessary of attainment is $50,000 per year for four years. What has been accomplished is of an initial character. Thousands of florists are getting the initial benefit without contributing one cent to the cause. Many such have taken advantage of the service of our promotion bureau, which has linked their individual businesses with the national magazine advertising at no further expense than the actual cost of the material furnished to them. The promotion bureau feels sure that they did not intend to be "slackers."

The demand for flowers today is getting an impetus it never had before—not through the efforts of any one man, but through the combined efforts of many hundreds. "Why was this thing not done before?" is a question many are asking. The answer is plain—we had not the nerve! Now we do have it, let us keep it. That will require money, but how little! if we were to consider it pro-rata among the members of the trade to be benefited by increased business.

It should not be considered as money just handed out. It is quite as essential as insurance, and should go into the overhead charges of any establishment. Never was the truth of the old text better exemplified: "Cast your bread upon the waters and it shall return to you after many days." Your money comes back to you without fail, multiplied a hundred fold.

The man of fable who stood upon London bridge for hours offering real gold sovereigns at a penny each and found no customers was much in the same position as that in which we find ourselves as a society today. We are appealing to skeptical florists to reach forth and take the dollars we offer them for their pennies, and they make no mistake—they get a sure thing.

This campaign should be kept up for 24 years instead of four. It should be an elixir of life for the florist trade, and we should all pay for the medicine, each and every one his part.

Just glance over the following list of additional subscriptions reported by Chairman Asmus of the finance publicity committee, many of them secured through the hard work of local committees, and if you who read this, have not subscribed, see to it that your name appears in the next list published:

Wealth in the Making.

Every Saturday millions of dollars are taken out of our banks and spent. By the next Friday all of that money is back in the banks again. In that short interval it has performed a miracle. It has kept a nation hard at work, producing food, clothes, munitions, furniture, flowers, and what not. The nation is richer by all this wealth, created by raw materials, and not one dollar of the money has been lost. It is all back in the banks again, ready to be paid out once more. Part of the goods it has produced we consume. The rest remains in the shape of wealth. Wealth is nothing more or less than raw material—plus labor. Money is not wealth—it is the symbol of wealth.

But, suppose we were to slow up the process. Suppose, instead of paying out the money every Saturday and getting it back within a week, we were to pay it out on the first of every month and get it back by the end of the month. In that case, it would circulate only 12 times during the year, instead of 52, and the wealth it would produce would be exactly 40 times less than the wealth now being produced. In other words, the products of the labor of the nation would be the same as though the nation worked for 12 weeks instead of 52. That, of course, would mean nothing but stark, starving poverty.

Yet there are a lot of people at the present time who are telling us to do that very thing. They tell us to stop spending money on anything but the barest necessities of life and keep that money in the banks doing nothing. No more new clothes should be bought—we should wear the old ones till they are in rags; no new shoes—we should patch the old ones as long as they will hold together. Do not buy flowers, we can do without, and so on down the line. We should save the money, keep it out of circulation, and stop the nation's turning out raw materials in wealth by means of labor.

In that case, we should have to pay for the war out of accumulated savings, and if we attempted to do that we should soon be bankrupt. What we have to keep in our minds is that the only way in which we can pay for the war and preserve our prosperity as a people is by bringing our productive capacity up to the highest possible standard; and the way to keep the labor and machinery of the country at its highest producing capacity is to keep our money in circulation, instead of hoarding it. The more often our money is circulated, the harder people work, the greater will be the surplus wealth we shall produce.

Every day sees us a richer nation. Every day sees us able to take a bigger part in paying for the war out of newly created wealth. Now, there is one way to kill this present prosperity and thereby stop our driving power in the great war, and that is to stop spending our money and keep it locked up. Keep your money from working, and you stop an equal proportion of labor and machinery from producing the wealth out of which the cost of the war must be paid. The less you spend on other people's products the less other people can spend on yours, and so we, in the flower business, must keep the wheels moving, doing everything possible to keep up the quality and volume, so as to be able to say that we have done our share in the world's work; and who among us here can say that the florists have shirked in doing their duty by being contributors to the Red Cross, Liberty Loan, Y. M. C. A., Red Triangle and similar worthy objects?

Keep up the good work—we have started in our first publicity campaign—and do your share toward it, and we will ultimately get our returns, ten to one, for every dollar we have put into it. I thank you.

HENRY PENN.

"Lely," said the brasso-cattleya to the laelia-cattleya, in the orchid reservation at the flower show in the Grand Central Palace, March 14, "Lely, it is evident that the sphere of beauty in which we have shone supreme is rapidly narrowing. Of course, I knew this war was hitting Flora hard, but never did I expect to see a vegetable garden in the place of honor at an exhibition heretofore devoted exclusively to the aristocrats of botanical society." Lely gave her lovely head a sad, sad shake. "If efficiency gets much more firmly fixed in the saddle," she agreed, "I shall begin to tremble for our very existence. It's all right for Friend Poppy, now—they can make opium out of her blossoms for anaesthetics. Out in California there are big poppy farms from which they get the stuff that puts the soldiers to sleep when they're wounded, so the doctors can operate without hurting them. But unless we can discover some way to be practical and useful, Brasso, I fear we have no place in a country at war."

The white lilac drew her leaves around her with a reminiscent shiver. "Well," she remarked, "if I have to put in another winter like the last one, with the coal shortage and all, I really would just as soon give up the ghost. See how anæmic my blossoms look!"

"Serves you right!" shouted a fat young tulip from Scheeper's Dutch garden. "If you grew in a dooryard like Mynheer Whitman wrote you wouldn't be taking the fuel the soldiers need. I'm glad to see in this show evidence that America is waking up. That vegetable-garden of Mynheer George J. Gould gladdens my heart. When I gaze upon it, so trim and orderly, I could think myself back in my native Holland."

The golden bantam corn over in the Gould garden heard the tulip's compliment and gave a pleased simper. "Some garden we are," it agreed. "Observe the neat rows—the lettuce, the chicory, the peas, all so perfectly laid out, and not a weed! We are a model garden if there ever was one."

"Humph!" giggled a neighboring sweet pea. "I s'pose Mr. Gould got up early and weeded you so's you'd be sure to get a prize." But the corn and the peas and the chicory, knowing this to be mere envy, glanced proudly at the card in their midst which proclaimed "gold medal," and remained silent.

"Ah," sighed a pink rose in the rustic rose garden of A. N. Pierson, "we flowers from Cromwell have tasted the horrors of war. Fancy our feelings last week when the gardener announced in the conservatory that he had been unable to get transportation by railroad for us and must truck us to New York!"

"I am glad," said President Wilson, otherwise nephrolepis, a fern, but rechristened for war time, "to hear from one of the plants that were brought down just now from the Red Cross tea garden on the second floor that instead of tea tables the garden is filled with long workmanlike tables at which sit women rolling bandages for our soldiers, a lesson for the gay crowds to behold."

The voice of Park Commissioner John N. Harmon of Brooklyn, the mayor's representative, then boomed out. His speech gave the discouraged flowers great encouragement, because it informed them that Mayor Hylan's policy was to "grow the lily."

"We of Mayor Hylan's great democratic administration are urged to encourage what is of natural and moral beauty. The mayor's policy is to disregard what is false—not to paint the lily but to grow the lily. He holds it a high privilege to give encouragement to this exhibition, where New York may see nature's pageantry, sweet in its perfume, exquisite in its forms, brilliant in the rich beauty of its colors."

Blushing with pleasure and relief at this evidence of official approval the flowers relaxed and proceeded to talk over the awards.—New York Sun.

Boston Spring Show.

Supplementing our account of the Boston spring show held in Horticultural hall, that city, March 13-17, which appeared in last week's issue, page 475, the list of the principal winners of prizes and gratuities was as follows: R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.; Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Mt. Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me.; Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass.; M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass.; W. FORT WORTH, TEX.—T. D. Long, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, was a recent visitor.

BELVIDERE, ILL.—The Herzog Flower Shop celebrated the first anniversary of its establishment, March 16, with a spring opening at which lady visitors were presented with floral souvenirs. Both the retail and wholesale departments have shown healthy growth.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The following officers have been elected by the florists' club for 1918: Z. D. Blackstone, president; Harry B. Lewis, vice-president; William F. Gude, treasurer; Adolph Gude, George Field, Theodore Diedrich, George H. Cooke, David Bissett, and William H. Ernest, members of the board of directors.

San Francisco.BIG EASTER DEMAND ASSURED.

As is usual at this period of the year trade had been somewhat quiet during the week, the only interest being shown in the market being chiefly due to funeral work. Stock is none too plentiful, however, so that the dull spell is not affecting prices to any extent. Carnations jumped to $4 per 100 again last week, but dropped slightly this week. Roses still are on the short side with the possible exception of red. Russells of excellent quality are now coming in and bringing fine prices. Mrs. Aaron Ward is more plentiful and very popular. Cecile Brunners are still short. Lily of the valley is completely out of the market and cattleyas are almost as scarce. Lilies are becoming more abundant. The quality is of the best and prices realized are very satisfactory. The outlook for a large supply for Easter is promising. Bulbous stock of all kinds is in large supply. Prices for this class of stock may be said to be fair. Violets are very numerous and very good. Great quantities are disposed of to the street fakery every morning. Seldom have larger quantities of fruit blossoms been offered as is the case this year. Outdoor flowers are beginning to come in now owing to the warm spring weather. Ferns are very scarce. The demand is continuous and prices have stiffened accordingly. Cut ericas are being offered and always sell readily. Freesias are still plentiful, especially the new colored varieties. Few, if any, callas have been offered as yet, but as this flower is not much sought after in this market, its absence will not be missed. Plants are coming in very freely and all the stores are stocking up heavily in anticipation of a busy Easter.

NOTES.

George C. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, has been appointed a member of the joint advisory committee of the department of agriculture and the food administration, organized to consider national agricultural problems. Mr. Roeding's duties will probably take him to Washington in a short time.

John Bommersbach, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, was a recent visitor calling on the trade here.

G. N.

Fort Wayne, Ind.EASTER SUPPLY SEEMS PLENTIFUL.

Preparations for a big Easter trade are being made. Fine specimens of rambler roses, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, and a few azaleas are beginning to appear, besides a fine selection of bulbous stock and Easter lilies. Hyacinth plants are probably the finest of the bulbous stock. In cut flowers, there is a good improvement noted in the supply of roses, especially Ophelia, Russell, and the Killarneys. Sweet peas are most plentiful, and there are all the carnations that the florists can handle. Indications from local growers point to the fact that there will be a plentiful supply of Easter lilies, and probably enough roses to go around.

CLUB MEETING.

There was a very enthusiastic meeting of the florists' club, March 21, at the retail store of the Freese Floral Co. President Wenninghoff was in the chair. A great deal of routine business was attended to. The matter of deciding prices for Easter came up, and minimum prices for all Easter stock were agreed upon by all. The closing of the retail stores on Sunday was also discussed and it was decided that there should be a uniformity among all the retailers in regard to this matter. It was voted to have all retailers close their stores as soon as their morning orders were out on Sunday, big holidays like Easter, of course being an exception.

NOTES.

A very handsome window decoration of baskets of Easter lilies, and Dutch hyacinths and tulips against a background of green panne velvet was noted at the Flick Floral Co's. store last week, the work of Miss Marguerite Flick, decorator for the firm.

Visitor: I. M. Bayersdorfer, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Doswell Floral Co. has a splendid lot of lilies for Easter. They are also well supplied with rambles, hydrangeas, and a full line of bulbous stock, all of which was grown at their greenhouses at Lindenwood.

Some of the finest Dutch hyacinth bulbs in the city are displayed at the flower shop of Ed Wenninghoff. French hydrangeas are also featured here in baskets, and Easter lilies will be in large supply.

The Easter lilies at the Vesey greenhouses are timed just right, and six houses of Trianae and Schroederae cattleyas are ripe for cutting.

The Freese Floral Co. had a large number of church decorations for Palm Sunday, and report funeral work heavy.

Pittsburgh.GOOD EASTER BUSINESS ANTICIPATED.

Palm Sunday was nothing out of the ordinary; in fact, not the usual rush that was expected. There was plenty of all kinds of stock on the market, and prices were not above the week previous. Carnations are coming in large quantities and clean up well at $2 and $3 per 100. Roses are somewhat more plentiful, with a good crop in for Easter. The cold weather during January and February held the cuts back, but most growers will have a good cut, with a few days of bright weather. American Beauties are improving each day, and the Easter crop looks promising, but the demand for this flower for Easter is not very heavy. Sweet peas have been flooding the market, with most of them going to the street merchants. The stores of this city could not handle the large amounts that have been coming to this market. They are all shipped via parcel post and during transit receive some rough handling, which effects the stock considerably. Oftentimes they are delayed, and during the warm weather they are unfit for sale. Orchids have been rather scarce and prices have advanced from 50 cents to $1 each during the week. Lily of the valley is also scarce, but prospects are for a good crop for Easter. Lilies seem to be scarce, and what few there will be in this section will bring good prices, the first time for some years. Bulbous stock of all kinds is plentiful and moves very slowly. There should be a good supply for Easter, and the demand looks promising. Most all the plantmen in this section are sold out of their blooming stock and good offerings are at a premium. Azaleas and spireas are very scarce. There are plenty of good hydrangeas and rambles, also tulips, hyacinths, cinerarias, cyclamens and daffodils in pots. The outlook for Easter is excellent, and if the weather turns out good there will be a large business done.

NOTES.

On account of the express congestion on all railroads, most of the out-of-town florists are driving to the city with their trucks to get their stock.

During a wind storm last week, J. B. Murdock & Co., of Van Eman, Pa., had a loss of about 300 lights of glass. Very little other damage was done.

John Kiel, of East Liverpool, O., was in the city looking for Easter plants, but was disappointed, as all the growers were sold out.

M.

Cincinnati.EASTER SUPPLY FAIRLY GOOD.

The Easter supply, judging from present reports, will be good and fairly large, but not as large as was expected. The demand is very strong, and all receipts should be cleaned up in a hurry. Roses have become somewhat scarce and will undoubtedly be short of actual needs. Carnations are in good supply. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful. There is a fair supply of Easter lilies, but, compared to other years in this market, they are rather scarce. A fair supply of callas and rubrums is available. Bulbous stock includes tulips, jonquils, daffodils, hyacinths and freesias, all in a fair supply. Other offerings are lily of the valley, orchids, calendulas, forget-me-nots, primroses and mignonette.

NOTES.

The engagement of Miss Matilda Garges, daughter of Mrs. Anna Garges, to Mr. McDeward Mellow, now of this city and formerly of Vermont, was announced last week.

Dave Klein has purchased the Dave Tiernan store, 639 Monmouth street, Newport, Ky.

The stork called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mayhall, March 21, and left a boy.

C. E. Critchell has been getting some excellent bulbous stock from Henry Koeske.

The E. G. Hill Floral Co. has an attractive Easter window display.

Visitors: C. P. Dietrich, Maysville, Ky.; C. P. Brunner, Springfield, O.; Mrs. Wm. Gerlach, Jr., Piqua, O.; Ed. Fancourt, of S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; S. M. Rosenfeld and Julius Dilhoff, New York. H.

Buffalo.FUNERAL WORK ESPECIALLY HEAVY.

With weather conditions during the past week very favorable, stock looks promising for Easter, although the supply will be limited. Trade has been active, especially in the call for funeral work. The death of one of the originators of the moving picture industry aided much in a very busy week. Liberal advertising by some of the local stores will help to add to the Easter volume.

NOTES.

The lilies at S. A. Anderson's are in perfect shape, and the same can be said of the tulips, hyacinths and rambles here. He will also have a fine lot of hybrid roses. Azaleas and genistas will be the scarce items. The draft is liable to take two of this firm's men, one from the range and one from the store, but it is hoped they will be able to remain here until after Easter. Mrs. Anderson is at Southern Pines, N. C.

W. J. Palmer & Son, L. H. Neubeck and the Wm. Scott Co., Inc., will have lilies for their trade, but no surplus stock. All local growers are going to be short of stock, and good prices should prevail.

S. A. Anderson, W. J. Palmer & Son and the Colonial Flower Shop were unusually busy during the past week with funeral orders. BISON.

NEW CASTLE, IND.—Wm. Dittman, Jr., leaves, March 29, to join the colors at Camp Taylor, Louisville Ky.

Boston.FINE WEATHER AND GENEROUS SUPPLY.

The sunshine of the past week has worked wonders with greenhouse stock. Flowering plants are in excellent condition and every one is looking forward to a good Easter trade. Although cut flowers are shortening up and all crops are going off, there will be plenty of good stock for the trade. The best carnations are selling at $4 and $5 per 100. Roses remain the same. Killarney Ophelia, Sawyer, Maryland and Sunburst are in good form and sell at 8, 12½ and 16 cents. Pansies are good, the best costing $1 and $1.50 per 100. Sweet peas are extra good, and range from $1 to $2 a hundred. Rubrum lilies have just started to arrive and find ready buyers at 8 and 10 cents each. Roman anemones are a drug on the market and move slowly at 50 cents a dozen. Ranunculus are scarce at $1 a dozen. French and Spanish irises sell good at $2 and $3 a dozen. Jonquils, tulips and poeticus, are in abundance.

NOTES.

A. Abramowitz, road salesman for Philip L. Carbone, Inc., has been called in from a successful trip to report to headquarters, as he is in the selected draft, reporting for duty March 29. Before leaving for camp a committee headed by Miss Harriett Sykes gave a dinner and dance in his honor, and presented him with a gift that he will always remember.

Wm. McAlpine returned from the New York flower show very much enthused over the new roses shown there, and has placed a large order for several varieties, among them the new rose, Columbia; also, a pale pink that will take the place of Ophelia.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report the past year was the best in a long time in spite of the competition and other conditions. They kept the force working up to the minute and in that way gained the confidence of many customers.

Wm. Elliott has started to cut Christy Miller roses but only a few are arriving, not near enough for the demands, although he is cutting heavy in Ophelia. Killarney, Stanley and single Irish roses and Asparagus plumosus.

At John O'Brien's on Beacon street, business is very good and his store is attractively arranged with rose bushes, lilac, flowering apple and prunus with a large selection of bulbs, genistas, heather and Darwin tulips.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report very good business and are very much pleased the way orders are arriving. Bennie Snyder is seen every morning at the market, selecting choice stock for his out-of-town customers.

Harry Randall, of Worcester, visited this city the past week while making a trip to the various greenhouses and reports business good with anticipation of an excellent Easter trade.

J. M. Cohen is receiving from one of his growers, an excellent grade of Nelrose snapdragon. Spencer sweet-peas. Hadley roses and several varieties of carnations.

Arthur Carr is receiving daily shipments of Morning Glow carnations, French iris, anemones, pansies and yellow marguerites, which find ready buyers.

Neal Boyle, of Malden, who grows a large amount of lilies, reports that only one-half of his stock will be ready for the holiday trade.

Penn's store is attractively arranged for Easter and he reports business very good with orders arriving in large numbers.

John J. Cassidy had a very busy week with a large funeral trade.

Welch Bros. Co. had a very profitable month and figures this Easter will go ahead of last year.

Henry Haas, formerly with Welch Bros. Co., has gone into business in New London, Conn.

S. K. G.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

March 21 was not an ideal day for a visiting trip, but there were 21 of us who started out, with the first stop at John Schreiner's, where we found 84 varieties of sweet peas grown in high-grade quality, most of which are disposed of locally. The Easter bulbs here are timed to perfection and, in spite of the warm weather, will be just right. He also grows vegetable plants, almost by the million, and in every variety imaginable.

A run was next made to Paradise, where, at Ira Landis's, the usual assortment of carnations was found in fine shape for Easter and a big crop of freesias, with tomatoes and pot carnations between the rows. Mr. Landis grows quite a stock of ixias along the edges of his carnation beds, and in a number of houses that were run cold on account of the fuel rulings he has now coming irises, columbines and pyrethrums. Buttercups are being tried out on a large scale.

M. J. Brinton, at Christiana, was next visited, where we found tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, daffodils and lilies. His Easter lilies are almost a failure, due, he thinks, to poor bulbs, as they are in an ideal house—the same house that produced such wonderful results last season, and with the same temperatures and treatment. His Magnificum are just the opposite, and he is cutting them in immense quantities and good quality. In the carnation houses a good crop of flowers for Easter was in sight, and he said that never in his experience had his carnations produced such a continuous crop of good flowers as they did this past winter.

At Ira Ranck's we found carnations and sweet peas the main crop, with a batch of Godfrey callas in pots for cut flowers.

Walter Denlinger does not have a large place, but manages to get a good deal out of his glass with carnations, narcissi, calendulas and vegetable plants.

Rutter Hess, at Gap, was of the party, and a stop was made at his place. Here carnations are the main product, and he likes White Enchantress in preference to Matchless, which for some reason does not do well with him. Merry Christmas looked better here than in any other place in the county. A by-product here along the carnation beds is parsley, and they cut it by the barrel.

Elmer Weaver, our president, was next called on, and showed us the finest bed of Benora I ever had the pleasure of seeing. Miss Theo was a mass of buds and bloom of good color, but rather under size. Aviator was the best red we saw anywhere, from a money-making point of view, with Washburn perhaps just a little better flower. Rosalia was in fine shape. A number of seedlings showed good promise; in fact, outside of Cottage Maid, all the carnations looked fine. A house of sweet peas had flowers enough on one side of the long rows to keep a man busy cutting all day. He is growing his own seed. A house of Matchless just under construction is now coming into a big crop of flowers.

Chas. M. Weaver is the largest grower of sweet peas in this section, and his large houses are full of what is perhaps the best they ever held, some of them having stems over 20 inches long. A house of mignonette is in full crop, and here again we find him growing his own seed, which accounts for the uniform quality of his stock.

T. J. Nolan was a welcome guest, both on the trip and at the meeting held at 7:30 p. m. Harry Haverstack was to have given us a paper on bedding plants, but reported being unable to prepare it, and Mrs. A. M. Herr, who had a parent teachers' meeting with an illustrated lecture on "School Gardens," invited us to come there after the business of the club was through—an invitation that was accepted by a number. M. L. Ruch and M. A. Eisman, representatives of a boiler preparation, visited the club and were given an opportunity to talk on their product. ALBERT M. HERR.

Tacoma, Wash.SUPPLY EXCELLENT WITH GOOD DEMAND.

Business continues good, with an abundance of fine stock to be had except on occasions of heavy demand. Carnations are better, with less splits and improved coloring. The weather is bright and warming up so that bulbs of all kinds are coming into flower. Some of the best blooms of Von Sion are the flowers grown outside. Sweet peas are coming in very fine and have rather a larger sale than carnations. Roses are good, and the best of them are from our local growers. Lilies at most places are coming along about right, so the supply will probably be ample, and will be good stock. The greatest Easter in the history of Tacoma is not far away if we are able to judge from business conditions of the past six months and the great prosperity that this city is enjoying.

NOTES.

The writer does not love the floral work well enough to pass up a job at $6 or $7 per day for eight hours to work around a greenhouse for 10 hours for $65 or $70 per month. Our love of flowers is great, but the prices of spuds and other things tell us the best way to have plenty of spuds is to get the six or seven per. This city is still holding to the old price of past seasons in the way of prices for cut flowers and the outlook says the prices must be raised or go out of business.

The problem of good greenhouse help is getting serious. The high wages paid by the ship-building yards have called out several of our florists, and to tell the truth wages paid for greenhouse help will have to be boosted or it will be a case of "do it yourself, if you want it done."

The Late Matthew T. Keenan.

Matthew T. Keenan, for the past 40 years a retail florist of Brooklyn, N. Y., died at his home, 114 Willoughby avenue, that city, March 17, of pneumonia, aged 62 years. He was born and educated in Brooklyn. In the early years of his business career he had several locations at different times, but since 1883 his location has been 406 Myrtle avenue. He was a man of fine appearance and did not show his age by 20 years. He was popular in the community in which he lived and among business men. He was active in the charity work of the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church. He was a life member of Brooklyn Lodge No. 22 B. P. O. Elks, and a member of Long Island Council No. 173, R. A., and John Loughlin Council No. 303, Knights of Columbus. He was a bachelor, but is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Annie O'Connor and Elizabeth Keenan, and two brothers, James and John Keenan. A nephew, Joseph F. McCall, has been his assistant in the business. A. F. F.

The school garden movement in San Francisco, Calif., will start the first week in April with a parade of 50,000 boys and girls marshalled by the mayor in war garden uniform.

CONGRESS has been asked for an appropriation of $911,300 of the sum of $19,730,893 required for war emergency activities in food production, the former amount to be used in control and eradication of plant diseases.

Traffic Soon to Be Normal.

Ordinary commercial traffic will be soon handled by the railroads in a normal manner, Director-General McAdoo announced March 19, commenting on reports that the Administration contemplated restricting shipments of non-essentials. Embargoes have been placed on various railroads, due to accumulations at certain ports. On that day 8,016 loaded cars of freight for export were held at North Atlantic ports, besides materials from 6,760 discharged on piers and 15,713 cars unloaded on the ground, because ships were not supplied in sufficient numbers.

Tribute to the Late Joseph Heacock.

In just a few words of tribute to our deceased friend and co-worker, the late Joseph Heacock, I would say, what a gain it was that he lived in this world, and what a happy thought to hope to meet him on the other side. Surely this man will be sorely missed in our future councils.

To know him better was to love him more. J. FRED AMMANN.

Florists' Hall Association.

President E. G. Hill has announced the appointment of James W. Heacock as treasurer of the Florists' Hall Association to fill the unexpired term of Joseph Heacock, deceased.

President Hill has also designated, Wednesday, August 21, 1918, at St. Louis, Mo., as the time and place for the annual meeting of the association.

JOHN G. ESLEB, Sec'y.

Late Mrs. Breitschwerth Resolutions.

The following resolutions have been adopted by the Pot Makers' Credit Association upon the death of Mrs. Lillian Breitschwerth, proprietor of the Syracuse Pottery Co., Syracuse, N. Y., whose death was reported in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of March 9, page 351.

Whereas, our long time business friend and fellow member has been suddenly taken from us, be it

Resolved, that the following minutes be entered upon the records of the Pot Makers' Credit Association in sincere appreciation of her high character and as a testimonial of our great loss.

We, the officers and members of this association, deplore the ruthless fate which has so suddenly ended her exceptionally useful career and has deprived us of the benefits of her unflagging interest in the conduct of this association.

We shall honor her memory by ever striving to be true to her principles and her daily example and the high standard of honor which she consistently maintained.

Be it further ordered, that a copy of these resolutions suitably engrossed be sent to her devoted family with the deep and fervent sympathy of this association and hope that the tender memories of her helpful life will serve as a solace and inspiration in the years to come.

Society of American Florists.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEES JOINT SESSION.

The publicity committee and the publicity finance committee met in joint session at the administration offices of the society, 1170 Broadway, New York, March 16, at 2 p. m., and the meeting lasted several hours. The following members were present: Henry Penn, Boston, chairman of the publicity committee; George Asmus, Chicago, chairman of the publicity finance committee; President C. H. Totty of the S. A. F., Madison, N. J.; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, O.; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; and John Young, secretary, New York. There were also present: Patrick Welch, Boston; Fred Lautenschlager, president Chicago Florists' Club; G. E. M. Stumpp, New York; Max Schling, New York; and Major O'Keefe, of the

P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston.

The accounts covering the first period of advertising were examined and finally approved. The plans for the next period of the campaign were discussed, but no definite action was taken. The work of the promotion bureau was approved and its exact scope determined. The urgency of obtaining more subscriptions to the campaign fund was discussed at length. While well pleased, the committees did not think that the response to the call for subscriptions was as large as it should be, especially when the great value of the campaign to everyone in the business was considered. Ways and means for accelerating contributions were considered from all points of view, and ultimately the secretary was authorized and instructed to make tours among the trade, with the idea of promoting a proper reciprocal spirit and making the campaign a real one in every way.

All florist clubs and societies holding regular meetings, are requested to notify the secretary of their dates for after-Easter, as, if at all possible, arrangements might be made to permit of his attendance some time during the season. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Terminals Case Ended.

It will be of interest to shippers from points west of Oklahoma and Texas, and this side of Pacific coast terminals to know that new west-bound transcontinental tariffs became effective March 15. The tariff prepared in line with a decision of the inter-state commerce commission provides for terminal rates the same as were formerly in effect at intermediate points and withdrawing the east-bound port-to-port rates via the gulf route, so as not to exceed the rates from and to intermediate points. Hereafter rates to Pacific coast terminals and to intermediate points will be the same.

Parcel Post Overburdened.

The post office department calls attention to the fact that many articles are being mailed to soldiers in France which are on the canteen list and can be bought there in retail quantities at wholesale prices. Two thirds of the articles found in a 12-hour inspection of soldiers' parcel post are found on General Pershing's canteen list. By reason of so many unnecessary articles being mailed to soldiers abroad, thus burdening the parcel post, it may become necessary to curtail parcel post privileges. It can readily be seen what the situation will amount to when we have a million or a million and a half men in France. The question is one that will have to be answered by the relatives and friends of the soldiers, or it will, of military necessity, be answered by the authorities in France charged with the responsibility for the success of this war.

Reuter Receiver Appointed.

Herbert W. Rathbun, of Westerly, R. I., has been appointed temporary receiver in the matter of S. J. Reuter & Sons, of that city, announcement of whose petition in bankruptcy was made in our issue of March 23, page 477. The liabilities are reported to be about $40,000. Secured claims are about $30,000. Assets are said to be under this amount.

St. Louis Snap.

After growing this wonderful Snap, for the past three years, we have decided to put it on the market, and as a duty to your business you should have some to grow this coming season.

In color it is all that can be desired in a lavender pink. In growth it is no doubt the strongest growing commercial variety ever put on the market. We are now cutting strong spikes from four to six feet long. The heads of blooms are twelve inches long or more. The color does not fade and the spike keeps longer than any Snap we have ever grown. Above all, it is a great winter bloomer. We have cut constantly through the past winter months. Any St. Louis florist will testify to the above—Ask them about Rowe's St. Louis Snap.

EASTER OUTLOOK NOT PROMISING.

The outlook for Easter is not very encouraging, especially as cut roses of all kinds, it is reported, will be scarce, they being affected, as most crops will no doubt be, in the shortage that has prevailed since last fall. Carnations will not be any too plentiful, and many orders will not be filled in full, even at a price of $8 per 100 for No. 1 stock. In lilies it is doubtful if more than 40 per cent will be in on time. Sweet peas and bulbous stock will be depended on for the bulk of the orders. In plants, there are plenty of Primula obconica, cyclamens, some good roses and a few azaleas. Hydrangeas will not make it on time, and, with the few lilies to be had, basket combinations will be depended on for the better class of trade.

EASTER DEMAND IS BRISK.

The early Easter demand is brisk, and from present indications it appears as if stock will clean up completely in all lines at an early hour, although it is more plentiful than some of the larger dealers at first thought it would be. American Beauty roses are in fair supply and of fine quality, but the receipts are nowhere near as heavy as last year, owing to the fact that many of the local growers discarded this variety last season, and one large wholesale concern shut down practically their entire range this winter devoted to this item owing to the scarcity of coal. Mrs Charles Russell roses are in good supply and the longer stemmed grades are furnishing a splendid substitute for American Beauties. Milady, Ophelia, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and Richmond are a trifle more plentiful than they have been but like all the other roses are expected to clean up long before the rush is over. Carnations are seen at all the stores in quantity and probably never sold at such low prices so near to Easter as they did last week. The demand is much better at this writing, and it would not be at all surprising if they were in short supply before the end of the week with favorable weather for Easter. Lilies are good property and command high prices with very little stock obtainable. Sweet peas are arriving in quantity, but are selling well at very satisfactory figures. Lily of the valley is in large supply and the receipts of orchids and gardenias are probably big enough to meet the demand, but it looks now as if there will be no surplus in this line. Tulips, Paper White narcissus, white and yellow daisies, calendulas, mignonette, snap-week, a grand clean-up in all lines may be expected. The local plant growers have had an unusually good Easter business and report being completely sold out in all lines. Extra fancy cut lilies are bringing 20 cents per bloom today, Wednesday, March 27, the highest wholesale price on record.

NOTES.

New coal prices covering the state of Illinois, effective March 23, were announced by Fuel Administrator Garfield. The state has been reclassified into six coal districts. Fuel administration officials said it was impossible for them to give a comparison of new prices and those fixed by the president last year, because there has been a general regrouping of counties and coal districts. In general, however, they said the change is slight. Illinois is divided into six districts, the prices varying somewhat in each. Under run of mine the price ranges from $2 to $2.65. The price for prepared sizes varies from $2.20 to $2.90 and slack or screenings range from $1.70 to $2.40. The prices given do not include the additional 45 cents a ton which may be charged by operators complying with the Washington wage agreement.

E. F. Winterson, well-known wholesaler, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother, Mrs William Winterson, whose death occurred last week at the age of 78 years. The funeral was held from his residence at 422 South Homan avenue, Tuesday, March 26, at 11 o'clock, with interment at Forest Home cemetery. Although services were private the family's large circle of friends in the trade were represented at the funeral by many beautiful floral offerings.

Archie Spencer is anticipating a brisk Easter business on the theory that the demand has always been good during the holiday period following a lull such as has been experienced the past few months. Here's hoping that he is right and from present indications it appears as if this Easter will be no exception to that of 1914 and 1915, which records seem to bear him out.

Anna Grace Sawyer, proprietor of the store known as the Pansy Florist, 4044 West Madison street, writes that two of her young men are now with the colors. Peter Parvlek is with the D. H. McNulty, brother of Miss Marguerite McNulty in charge of the Peter Reinberg office, sailed for France this week as a member of the United States signal corps. Her brother Archie is already with the colors in France.

The E. C. Amling Co., is receiving a fine supply of Columbia roses from the E. G. Hill Co's, greenhouses at Richmond, Ind. Max Awizzus, known as the "Russell Kid" at this establishment, is already being called the "Columbia King."

Wietor Bros. are cutting a splendid supply of carnations in all the standard and new varieties which are in good demand for Easter. N. J. Wietor reports a heavy call for carnation cuttings with new orders arriving in every mail.

Ed Goldenstein, formerly manager of the bulb department of Vaughan's Seed Store, who is now with the National army at Rockford, visited his many friends here March 23-24.

It is rumored that several young men in the trade are planning on opening a new wholesale house in the near future in the quarters recently vacated by Wiltgen & Freres.

C. L. Washburn reports a brisk demand for Easter cut flowers at Bassett & Washburn's store, with a heavy call for roses, of which there is a scarcity in this market.

Fred Lautenschlager, with Kroeschell Bros. Co., has returned from New York, where he attended the spring show, and from a business trip to Washington, D. C.

T. E. Waters is comfortably located in his new home at Evanston where he can devote what little spare time he has to the care of his war garden.

Zech & Mann report a heavy call for cut flowers for Easter, particularly lilies, which are in good supply with them, thanks to Damm Bros., who succeeded as usual in having them in on time. The shipping trade is particularly heavy this year at this house and the early indications point to a satisfactory city demand.

For Your Supply of CUT FLOWERS

 Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

The Freres-Windler Co. has sold its wholesale commission business to Louis Finnerman, with A. Henderson & Co., and Morris Grossberg, who will take possession April 1. D. E. Freres will represent the Freres-Windler Co. at the old stand until the affairs of his company can be closed satisfactorily to all concerned. The Freres-Windler Co's. many friends are sorry to hear of their retirement for this firm has been known for its square dealing and honest competition since it entered the field.

Marshall Field & Co. in last week's review of the dry goods trade, say: "The current wholesale distribution of dry goods is greatly ahead of the corresponding period a year ago. The volume of road sales for both immediate and future deliveries shows a large gain over the same week in 1917. Customers have been into market in great numbers. The market on domestic cotton continues strong. Collections are good."

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a large supply of fancy roses, carnations and Easter lilies, in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable flowers, including cattleyas, phalaenopsis and lily of the valley. The outlook for a brisk Easter business is very bright at this establishment and everything points to a grand cleanup in all cut flowers before the rush is over.

C. P. Bassett, formerly senior member of the firm of Bassett & Washburn, will be 83 years old April 2. His many friends will be pleased to learn that he is enjoying good health at his home at Pasadena, Calif., where he has been located for several years.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a large Easter supply of roses in addition to a fine line of all other seasonable stock. Carnations and snapdragons are the leaders with Manager Klingsporn this week.

An old established profitable wholesale cut flower commission business offered a $10,000 partnership with a remunerative salary in a blind advertisement in the local daily papers this week.

Percy Jones, Inc., reports a splendid Easter trade which so far compares most favorably with that of 1917. Carnations of fine quality are in particularly heavy supply at this house.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are receiving large shipments of choice Killarney, White Killarney, Ophelia and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses which are in exceedingly brisk demand this week.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are supplying their trade with fancy Darwin tulips for Easter in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock, particularly roses.

Eddie O'Neill, with the Ernst Wienhoeber Co., was pronounced physically fit for military duty this week and is expected to be called to the colors in the near future.

A. T. Hey's son, Will, has been accepted for limited military service.

EASTER PROSPECTS LOOM LARGE.

The market the past week has been crowded with stock of all kinds. Carnations have only moved in bargain lots and sweet peas have suffered the same fate. Roses have held up fairly well and some extra quality Russell and Ophelia are seen daily. Violets have reached the end of their season with the warm weather we have been having. Darwin tulips have been coming in quite heavily, but on account of the good quality they move well. Snapdragons are also a bit heavy in supply. From present indications callas are going to be fairly plentiful for Easter, which is lucky for the retailer. The past week has been exceptionally fine for the lily growers, and from present indications there will be at least enough to go round. Tulips and hyacinths of course have suffered somewhat from the warm weather, but the bitter has to be taken with the sweet. Freesias have been somewhat off crop but indications are that there will be a new crop on for Easter. Fancy ferns have reached the high water mark in price and at that not any too good. Southern smilax is very poor. String smilax is very scarce; in fact, the shortage for Easter has reached serious proportions with southern smilax so poor. Asparagus plumosus is in fair supply.

NOTES.

W. A. Rowe bought a motor boat which he intends to use for himself and his men at his plant somewhere on the Meramec. He is looking towards a whole lot of fun out on the river this summer. What he needs next is a shack of some kind to bunk in.

A tour of the local growers shows a good supply of the following pot plants for the Easter trade: Lilies, tulips, hyacinths, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, azaleas, roses, lilacs, daffodils, genistas and daisies.

The general shortage of palms hit the retail florists harder this Easter than ever before. Scores of churches have been turned down by the various retailers on palms because they simply cannot be had.

The Bourdet Floral Co., A. Jablonsky and Geo. B. Windler, the big growers of pot lilies, are smiling now after the perfect weather of last week which put their crops in a salable condition.

The secretary of the ladies' florists' club announces the next meeting will be held April 3, at 2 p. m. at the Palm house, Missouri Botanical Garden. (Shaw's Gardens).

The prospects for Easter look big, and here's hoping the weather continues to smile as it has for the past 10 days.

FINE WEATHER AND EXCELLENT STOCK.

Stock has been quite plentiful during the past week, with local demand heavy enough to keep it well cleaned up. Carnations of very good grade are arriving by thousands. Bulbous stock is also very plentiful and hardly needs forcing. Roses are numerous and the quality is also excellent. Cut lilies are scarce and the prospect does not seem promising. The stock of pot plants looks better, and, with the ideal weather, a large number of lilies are looked for for Easter. Roses, cinerarias, hydrangeas, azaleas and miscellaneous plants will complete the assortment.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. report the best advance Easter demand in the history of the establishment. They will be supplied with extra large quantities of good roses, carnations, snapdragons, lilies, sweet peas and bulbous stock.

BUSINESS BETTER THAN NORMAL.

The ever pulsing throb of business appears to be beating as regularly as if there was no such dire happenings, as are daily taking place, when one-half of the world is trying to annihilate the other. The business in the wholesale and retail flower shops has been, if anything, a trifle better than normal the past week. The mild spell brought on quite a lot of stock in every line, but the market took it all, and on Saturday night there was practically nothing left over. Prices have not advanced materially, but there is a gradual hardening, so as to be able to hand the growers a little velvet along with their Easter returns. At this writing, with the favorable weather expected, good crops in all lines are looked for, with perhaps the exception of cut Easter lilies, which do not appear to be very plentiful. The American Beauty supply will be in good shape and of splendid quality. Other varieties of roses can be depended on for a good supply. Carnations and sweet peas will be offered in quantity. There will be plenty of violets, gardenias and a fair supply of cattleyas. The Easter plant men have been rushed the past week and in nearly all lines are practically sold out. The keptover azaleas are all wonderfully well flowered. There are comparatively few of these however, and this has helped the sale of hydrangeas, which have cleaned up everywhere. For all Easter is so early, the ramblers roses are splendidly flowered with nearly all growers, and have sold very well. Bulbous stock is in great demand. If the stores have anything like the business they have prepared for, they will retrieve the losses of the early fall.

NOTES.

In speaking of the business of the past season, Frank Ross, who conducts three large retail stores, said that after the shock of the first liberty loan campaign the demand for flowers in all lines of the social calendar, had gradually increased until that of the last month had been above normal. He was prepared for and looked forward to a very good Easter trade.

WITH THE WHOLESALERS.

Clarence Watson, of the Leo Niessen Co.'s, force, expects a splendid Easter trade if the weather continues favorable. There has been an active and increasing demand the past week with large orders for Easter delivery. American Beauties and other roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock are features of this week's offerings.

Manager Liggett, of the S. S. Pen-nock Co.'s, plant department, is handling van loads of Easter plants. This department has grown wonderfully the past two years, demonstrating that a central city market for flowering and foliage plants is a great convenience to the retail trade.

High grade sweet peas, carnations and roses in variety are features with Edward Reid. Transportation facilities are now better, and with the aid

"We are going to be very strong in roses and sweet peas," said Manager Miller of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' exchange. "Business the past week has been fine, and we expect a rattling good Easter."

A good crop of white and pink Killarney roses are a feature of the Joseph Heacock Co.'s stock. Manager Corts finds a good demand and seldom has any to carry over from one day to another.

WEATHER PROPITIOUS.

Business was good during the early days of the past week, but slackened off toward the last. If the growers do not bring into flower a large stock of Easter lilies, it will not be the fault of the weather during the past week, for it was clear throughout and at times almost unseasonably warm. In cut lilies, there is considerable poor stock arriving. Tulips and narcissi are also being unfavorably affected by warm weather. Roses are going well; in fact, we cannot recall a day, since last fall, when there was not a fair demand for good roses. Orchids and gardenias are not plentiful, and prices are likely to advance before Easter, and we expect to see good cut lilies up to 20 or 25 cents per flower. Carnations are slow at $4.00 per 100 for good stock; the fancies going higher. One retail firm made up four casket covers, early in the week, of violets and bought 75,000 from one wholesaler. The best violets are bringing 50 cents per 100. At this writing some of the retailers are beginning to stock up with Easter plants and plants will be pushed to the limit until it is time to buy cut flowers for Easter, therefore we look for cut flowers to be slow until March 29-30.

March 25.—The market is slow this morning, and as elsewhere predicted, is likely to so continue till the last of the week. There is but little change in prices; carnations and the bulk of spring stock going cheap, but there is no surplus of good roses and lilies. Scott Key roses are very scarce. Sweet peas are plentiful, short stock selling at 50 cents per 100, with $2 for the best. The weather continues fine, and possibly excepting lilies, the outlook is for an abundance of Easter stock.

NOTES.

Frank Sheehan, who is with the Growers' Cut Flower Co., has just received a letter from William Sullivan, who was in wholesale stores in this district for a number of years, but enlisted in a United States regiment soon after we got into the war and is now in France. He writes interestingly of his trip across, saying the boys thought more about what was coming for the next meal than they did of submarines, but adds that the meals were all right. He has gained in weight and health and is in good spirits, and says that he is learning to talk French.

Hon. Jay E. House, mayor of Topeka, Kans., has said: "While a colored man doesn't exactly welcome death, the promise of an expensive funeral goes far toward reconciling him to it." We can inform Brother House that walking in a parade, in uniform, or watching other colored men do it, is more pleasing than a funeral, without its disagreeable features. There was a parade of colored troops here, March 23, and we noticed a colored man who was in the garb of a roustabout buy a dollar's worth of flowers and pay for them.

Men and women who now are grandfathers and grandmothers will have pleasurable recollections of Maggie Mitchell as "Fanchon, the Cricket." In private life she was Mrs. Charles Abbott, and as one writer has said: "In private life she was altogether admirable." Her funeral was held in her late home in this city, March 24, and many beautiful floral tributes were noticed. She was 81 years old.

Meyer Othile, of the wholesale firm of Riedel & Meyer, has just received letters from two of their former employees, William Halpin and Al Bowker, who are now in France, in our army. He had sent them comfort kits which they greatly appreciated. Bowker is captain of a machine gun company and seems to be in love with his work.

Louis Handing is back with the firm of Russin & Handing, after serving three months at Camp Upton, L. I. He was discharged on account of serious trouble with his feet. He says he was sorry for not being able to serve his country, but expects to do his bit in some other way. He is well known and popular in the trade.

We have noticed at the store of Malandre Bros., Broadway and 72nd street, exceptionally fine plants of bougainvillea and acacia. This firm donated 10 per cent of all their sales on Palm Sunday to the New York Catholic war camp fund, for which a great drive was in progress the past week.

Al Rigo, who formerly had a retail store at 810 Madison avenue, which he turned over to his brother when he joined the army, was home the past week from Camp Gordon, Georgia, on a 10 days' leave. If he is as good a hustler as a soldier as he was a florist, he will surely make a record.

Herman Mammitzsch, who is well known as a good grower of sweet peas and other stock, and who has been located at Clifton, N. J., has succeeded George T. Schuneman, the noted grower of sweet peas at Baldwin, L. I.

Wadley & Smythe, 491 Fifth avenue, had five funerals early in the past week, one being that of James Stillman, the noted banker. They made up four casket covers of violets and one of orchids, and used much other fine stock.

Henry S. De Forest, local representative of the King Construction Co. of North Tonawanda, N. Y., advises us that they are getting out the material for the new greenhouses in Bronx park, for which they have the contract.

Lieutenant A. M. Henshaw of the Naval Reserve, who has made two trips "over there," happened to be at an Atlantic port in time to attend the New York Florists' Club banquet.

At the store of John W. Hauser, 571 Madison avenue, a good stock of lilies, acacias, rambler roses and some very creditable azaleas were noticed.

Frank Deery, of J. H. Small & Sons' staff, went to Boston, March 21, and arranged a large funeral order which the firm had received from that city.

Marshall Clarke, of David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th street, stated March 22 that it had been their best week's business since Christmas.

B. Ezechel, well known in the trade, has formed a partnership with D. Fexy, in the wholesale business at 106 West 28th street.

Thomas Young, Jr., arranged a quantity of fine designs for the funeral of the late Mrs. Abbott (Maggie Mitchell).

Notice of the death of M. T. Keenan, for 40 years a Brooklyn retailer, will be found in another column.

Meyer, Madison avenue and 58th street, had a large stock of lilies and many other good plants.

WINDOW BOX CAMPAIGN STARTS.

Window boxes was the subject of the special meeting of the florists' club held March 21 at the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, Inc. Frederick A. Danker, chairman of the committee appointed at the February meeting to handle the subject, made an extensive report. The committee had on view samples from four different makers, and an order for a considerable number will be sent later by the retailers. The makers will be asked to quote prices to the trade here for their goods and the samples on hand will be sold through the Albany Cut Flower Exchange and the makers reimbursed from the proceeds. It is likely that the action of the club will have the effect of stimulating the sale and use of window boxes in the city this year.

Three new members were elected: H. E. Eberhardt, Schenectady; J. H. Van Ry, Rosedale Greenhouses, Schenectady, and William Maver of Menands. A letter was read from Mayor James R. Watt asking the club to supply him with the names of members in the service of their country. The mayor is compiling a list of Albanians who are in the war. The Albany club members named are: Private William Christie of the Three Hundred Third Infantry, N. A., Camp Devens, Mass., and Private Henry P. Schaefer of Company A, Tenth Infantry, National Guard, New York. President Earl Shaw named the following members chairmen of committees: Finance, Frederick Henkes; Flower Shows, William Newport; Sick Visitation, Thomas F. Tracey; Entertainment, Louis H. Schaefer.

NOTES.

Fred A. Danker, March 23-24, extended an invitation to the public through the press to visit his greenhouses, 744 Central avenue, to see his Easter stock. The invitation was generally accepted and on Saturday afternoon and Palm Sunday many Albanians wended their way between rows of blooms in the Danker establishment. No orders were taken and no plants or flowers were sold on Palm Sunday. The inspection of the Danker greenhouses at Easter time has become a notable local event in the past few years.

The opening of the new building of the Albany Evening Journal on The Plaza on the afternoon of March 23 was the occasion for sending plants and flowers to the managing editor, heads of departments, and to the principal members of the staff. Vases of roses decorated the desks of the city editor and the city hall reporter. The latter was remembered with a large vase of American Beauties from the city officials. The building was inspected by city and county officials and numbers of prominent business people.

The 1st of May Thrift Stamp Day In The U. S. A.

The Active Co-operation of Every Reader of
The American Florist

Is Urgently Requested To Make It a Success

May 1st, 1918, will be observed throughout the United States as Thrift Stamp Day! On that day retail stores everywhere in every line of business will ask customers to take part of their change in Thrift Stamps! It will be patriotic for every man, woman and child to accept at least one Thrift Stamp as change on every purchase made that day—and to make as many purchases as possible on May 1st.

Here is a big, practical way of getting millions of Thrift Stamps into the hands of the people of the United States, and of insuring the success of the Government's War Savings Stamps campaign. Thrift Stamp Day will help everyone. It will prove a tremendous boost to business. On May 1st, 1918, the nation should do the biggest total retail business of any single day in our history! The beneficial habit of Thrift will be sown broadcast among the citizens of the U. S. A.! Most important of all, Uncle Sam will be furnished with the sinews of War and Victory!

American business must go "over the top" at once in a quick drive to make Thrift Stamp Day an overwhelming success. You wholesalers, you jobbers, you salesmen, must talk Thrift Stamp Day among your trade, arouse the enthusiasm of the retailers, the storekeepers, the clerks behind the counters. Uncle Sam needs your help. A practical plan has been prepared showing how each one of you can "do your bit" to make Thrift Stamp Day a red letter day in American business annals. Write for this plan today without fail. Remember, in helping Uncle Sam you are helping business and helping yourselves. Address Mr. W. Ward Smith, National War Savings Committee, 51 Chambers St., New York City.

NATIONAL WAR SAVINGS COMMITTEE
51 Chambers St., NEW YORK CITY

are not to be had in number equal to the demand. Roses and carnations are plentiful. Among the growers who have a good Easter stock is William W. Hannell, Shaker road, Watervliet. The retailers who visited Mr. Hannell a week or two before Easter were agreeably surprised at the condition of his stock and the amount he had on hand. He is a careful grower and deserves the reputation he has in the local market.

Among the changes on April 1 will be the removal of Mrs. Harriet B. Hazeltine from 32 to 25 Central avenue, a few doors east of her present retail store. Mrs. Hazeltine will have a store steam heated with the care of the fire in the hands of the landlord. Last winter's experience with stoves was enough to persuade Mrs. Hazeltine that a steam heated store is to be preferred. R. D.

CRANSTON, R. I.—The Budlong Rose Co. will grow vegetables on a large scale this season, in place of flowers.

ROSES SCARCE ITEM FOR EASTER.

Roses will be among the short items on the local market for the Easter trade from present indications. Many of the plants that came from abroad this year were much delayed in transit, arriving too dry and only a small percentage of them grew. Holland bulbs are also in bad shape.

NOTES.

Some of the local growers are considering turning their ranges over to vegetable growing next winter. With the increased cost of operation and supplies of all kinds, it is pointed out that at least part of the glass would bring good profits, as vegetables already command good prices while flowers will not stand an advance under present conditions. One local grower says he can save $20,000 a year by devoting his range to winter vegetables.

J. J. Hess believes that within six months truck lines will be established between the principal cities in the United States and the transportation situation will improve accordingly. If the experiment with trucks between New York and Chicago proves a success other lines will be put in operation between other cities wherever good highways exist.

The supply of flower pots being shipped here from Louisville, Neb., a nearby town, is running so short that local trade can no longer be fully supplied from that source, and increased freight rates on stock from other points is another item of increased expense added to the cost of doing business.

Local florists are strongly supporting the campaign of the chamber of commerce to raise a fund of $50,000 to advertise this city nationally as a convention center. J. J. Hess, of Hess & Swoboda, is a strong supporter of the movement.

Some of the flower shops now have a regular window card service which gives them a change of dress twice a week. "Flowers Will Brighten Up Your Table" and others of a similar character are among the slogans used.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

EARLY OHIO seed potatoes, Red River stock, are $1.20 to $1.50 per bushel.

JULIAN BOWEN of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., has returned from California.

VISITED CHICAGO: Edwin B. Northrup, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

NEW YORK.—Ralph M. Ward & Co. will occupy four floors at 25 Murray street after April 1.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The rainfall for the season to March 23 was 13.28 inches; last season, 14.59 inches.

ONE of the largest seed houses, jobbers of garden seeds, has withdrawn all present prices from travelers, including retail.

THE D. Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa., have mailed customers a memo explaining the difficulty of securing and shipping seeds.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are quoted this week at $3.00 to $3.25 for colors and $4.50 for whites in 10 to 20 bushel lots.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade March 27 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.

By an amendment to postal regulations, live chicks are now accepted for mailing, without insurance, when the package can be delivered within 72 hours.

SEEDS were exempted in the one-week freight embargo, operative in New York city on less than carlot shipments. The depots and docks are badly congested.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Northrup, King & Co. have issued an invitation to growers and florists to inspect their new, up-to-date establishment, a convenient date to be announced later.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—C. C. Morse & Co., report large shipments of seeds to both the Orient and South America. —Harry E. Hallawell, of the Hallawell Seed Co., is again at his desk, after a two weeks' illness.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Consideration of the $10,000,000 bill for relief of farmers in the spring wheat country was begun in the House March 27. It gives the secretary of agriculture power to lend farmers up to $450 each to purchase seed and recommends an appropriation of $7,500,000 for that purpose.

LOMPOC, CALIF.—In a communication dated March 19 it is stated there were three inches of rainfall since the night of March 17, that prospects were for a further fall, and that the Santa Ynez river is in bad shape owing to the cutting of the banks, some of the land going down to the ocean. This gives a total rainfall of about 18 inches in the valley.

VALLEY, NEB.—The C. Herbert Coy Seed Co. say they are experiencing much difficulty in placing vine seeds for the 1918 crop on account of the high prices being paid for other farm crops.

TOLEDO, O.—March clover, cash, was higher March 25, at $20.60, closing 15 cents higher than the previous day at $20.75. Receipts were 47 bags, shipments 358. Timothy was unchanged, old quoted at $3.75, new, $3.80; April $3.80; September, $4.32.

SANTA ANA, CALIF.—The Haven Seed Co. reports beneficial rains and prospects are good for crops in this section. Contract business is running much heavier than ever before and hopes are entertained for good yields, which will make good deliveries possible.

The Late George H. Price.

New York state has lost one of its oldest seedsmen in the death of George H. Price which occurred on March 20 at his home, 543 Clinton avenue, Albany, after an illness of two weeks. The deceased was born in Boston 76 years ago of Puritan stock. He was educated in private schools and in the Frank D. Sanborn academy at Concord, Mass. He then entered the employ of Joel Nourse & Company, seed merchants, Boston, and remained with the concern for five years. In 1868, he removed to Albany to become manager of the seedstore of Strong & Douw. In 1870, Mr. Strong retired and Mr. Price became a partner of the concern under the style of V. P. Douw & Company. Mr. Douw died in 1876 and Mr. Price took as partner D. M. Knickerbocker and the concern was known as Price & Knickerbocker. In 1885 Mr. Knickerbocker retired and Edward T. Reed was admitted to the firm under the title of Price & Reed. The latter retired in 1898 and George H. Price then conducted the business alone until his death. A widow and four children, George H. Jr., Frederick H., Edward E., and Caroline Price, survive. R. D.

Onion Neck Rot.

Onions in storage are often seriously affected with a rot that may show itself on the surface as a grayish mold or as a collection of black, scale-like masses. The disease attacks the onions in the field, where it may produce white spots and water-soaked areas in the leaves, may check the growth of the bulbs, making an over-large proportion of "seconds" or "picklers", or may blast the flowers when the bulbs are set the second season to produce seed. The principal damage, however, comes in the storage houses, where more than 50 per cent of the bulbs have been destroyed in several cases in widely separated localities. Studies on the disease made by the New York Agricultural Experiment Station (Geneva) prove it to be due to a hitherto unnamed fungus, and trace its history and method of producing harm through the season. Effective remedies for the trouble are not yet fully worked out, but careful cultural methods and proper storage conditions are very helpful.

Those interested in onion storage should secure a copy of the Bulletin, No. 437, which will be sent free on request.

New York Seed Trade.

The seedsmen are all busy, and business seems to be better than at this time last year. At Vaughan's Seed Store, it was said, March 23, that the demand was better than last year. J. M. Thorburn & Co. reported that they had all the business they could handle. Manager Cleary of the Macniff Horticultural Co. said that they are looking forward to a good Easter trade in plants. Peth & Duggan stated that their business was good. Wm. Elliott & Sons say they are doing well.

M. Griggs and W. Gills were in charge of Vaughan's Seed Store exhibit at the Flower Show; George Morrison and R. Vaughan-Cott did similar service for Weeber & Don; David Dean was in charge of the A. T. Bodington Company's booth.

The Sunday Sun of March 24 had a good portrait of J. C. Vaughan in Florida attire. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan are still at Miami.

Julian H. Walter, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., who has been ill since January, is now in Florida and is said to have improved.

Chicago Seed Trade.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports the counter trade exceptionally brisk, more so than has been previously noted so early in the planting season. Ed. Goldenstein was in March 23 from Rockford, where he is now with the colors. Miss Frances Ludlow, of the flower seed department, left March 26 for the New York house, to help in the big spring rush there.

W. W. Barnard, of the W. W. Barnard Co., is expected home from California the latter part of this week much improved in health. A. H. Goodwin of this firm is spending a few days at his Indiana home.

The business here is now running at high speed.

A. Henderson is now shipping cannas in large volume, the demand for these having been slow earlier in the year.

The S. F. Leonard Seed Co. reports that all hands have all they can do day and night.

Arnold Ringier says the seed pea business has been quite satisfactory this season.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., says gladioli are going well.

California Notes.

Most California stocks were in the ground March 18 and the soil is in good condition from recent rains.

Pole bean contract growers, as well as some others, may claim such high prices as to stimulate an outside competition which later on will be troublesome.

Radish, after repeated sowings, is looking better.

ONE hundred carloads of tomatoes were shipped from south Florida in three days, week of March 23.

CABBAGE at $20 per ton in the lower end of Florida is hardly worth cutting, owing to expensive freight haul to markets.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Kempenaar & Christensen, florists, have rented a farm of about 40 acres, upon which they will grow vegetables during the coming season.

THE food administration states that it has no power or desire to fix the price of tomatoes, some misunderstanding on this point having resulted from an announcement for bids for the army and navy.

INDEPENDENCE, ORE.—Horst Bros.' hop range, said to be the most extensive in the world, will be largely converted into a vegetable farm, and the product will be evaporated. Four hundred acres are said to have been leased for this purpose.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 25.—Mushrooms, home-grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per carton; lettuce, box, 25 to 30 cents; radishes, 35 to 60 cents per dozen bunches; celery $1.50 to $1.75 per box; tomatoes, per 6 baskets, $4.50 to $6.00; cucumbers, per box, $2.75 to $4.00.

New York, March 25.—Celery, per crate, 50 cents to $2.25; cucumbers, $1.50 to $2.00 per dozen; mushrooms, 60 cents to $3.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00.

Bryan Canning Co. Formed.

Alonzo J. Bryan, well-known plant grower of Washington, N. J., whose range is one of the largest in the state, is the leading spirit in what promises to be an equally important industry to be known as the Alonzo J. Bryan Canning Co. and will undoubtedly mean much to the farming interests in that vicinity. A modern concrete building will be erected in the near future and this will be equipped with machinery of the most up-to-date type. An expert has already been engaged for the position of superintendent. The establishment will have a capacity of 5,000 cans in 10 hours. Not only vegetables, but all kinds of fruit will be canned in season.

Mr. Bryan will devote 25 acres of his large farm to peas, beans, tomatoes and other vegetables, but purchases from small growers in the vicinity of wagon load lots will give a ready market at all times and will do much to prevent a glut on the market and prevent frequent waste.

Spring Plowing.

We are all interested in spring plowing—whether we wish to grow corn, potatoes or carnation plants—it makes no difference. Most plowmen have ideas of their own upon the subject, and the variation is great. However, there are some underlying principles which we must mind in order to be successful. The first is the proper condition of soil in regard to moisture. No harm is ever done in plowing a dry soil, but a wet soil is easily unfitted for a season's work, and sometimes for a longer time.

The old rule holds good—whenver the soil balls up and sticks together, if you squeeze a handful, do not plow it; if it crumbles, go ahead. There are, of course, some exceptions brought about by necessity, but wet plowing invites grave risk of crop failure. In regard to depth, plow as deep as your humus permits, plus the power at hand. Nothing is ever gained by turning up a lot of new soil at once—better add to your depth gradually from year to year. In regard to the time of plowing, science and practice agree that it is good practice to plow as early in the spring as conditions permit, whether we need the land or not at the time. Unplowed land loses its winter moisture rapidly by evaporation from the surface; good practice requires the conservation of subsoil moisture and additions thereto, and not the dissipation of such moisture. Unplowed land generally sheds rain readily, hence it is not benefited by rains as it should be. When land is not needed at the time, and power is available, the best practice is to plow it and roll it as soon as possible; then leave it alone until additional work is necessary. In that condition, evaporation is checked, while rains have ready access to the subsoil. And, when needed, a good discing will generally prepare such land in short order.

As regards the plow itself, too little attention is given to the condition of the plow. The two vital points to every plow—the parts that stand the soil impact—are the point of the plow and the corner of the share. If the plow is turned upside down and a square laid upon the lower part of the land-side toward the point, it is easy to see how much wear has taken place; and, bear in mind that any deviation from a true straight line greatly reduces the efficiency of the plow. In the same way, any loss to the corner of the share will reduce cutting capacity and increase the pull required. Therefore, these need attention frequently by sending to a good shop. The proof of a good job is to examine the plow while at work—if the land-side and share do not travel flat on the bottom of the furrow, something is wrong; generally, the point is worn or the hitch is too short. A great deal can be done by either lengthening or shortening the hitch. And, finally, the share should cut the furrow slice clear through to the bottom and not leave an uncut strip, no matter how small. derstand and then insist that they are attended to. MARKETMAN.

Sweet Potato Plant Outlook.

From reports received from about 150 warehousemen, shippers and growers throughout the southern states, a general shortage of seed sweet potatoes has resulted by the heavy freeze which damaged practically all potatoes stored in hills or banks. Plant growers in every section who were prepared to cure and store their seed potatoes properly will be able to produce a normal supply of plants; others are making an effort to conserve the available supply of seed for bedding, while several are making preparations to plant a large acreage from first drawing of

DREER'S GRAND NEW CANNAS FOR 1918

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carminé Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. 4½ ft. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. 4½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination, 3½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft., 75 cts. each.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. 4½ ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. 4½ ft. 25 cts. each; $2.50 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

plants so as to be able to furnish large quantities of vine cuttings for later plantings. The demand for plants is reported to be above normal, and the production of vine cuttings to supplement the supply of plants will enable plant growers more nearly to meet the requirements of growers and truckers.

To assist further in supplying this demand, it is suggested that storage houses discontinue marketing potatoes of good quality for eating purposes and that these be marketed as seed stock for bedding.

WEST HARTFORD, CONN.—John R. Coombs has closed his entire range on account of a shortage of fuel.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Mrs. Minette Fritts has purchased the Dothan Floral Co. Business under her management is reported very satisfactory.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., President; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-third annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 26-28, 1918.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—J. H. Stoepler has been appointed superintendent of parks, succeeding Ernest Kettig.

TORONTO, ONT.—James M. Goodall, for many years park superintendent and later city forester, died March 8, aged 83 years.

BOSTON, MASS.—A. Robeson Sargent, son of Professor C. S. Sargent, of Arnold Arboretum, died recently from heart trouble following an attack of pneumonia.

GENEVA, N. Y.—Local nurserymen report that the big question at the present time is that of being able to supply the increased demand, especially in fruit trees.

THE Kentucky legislature has passed a bill requiring nurserymen to fumigate their products with a formula approved by the state entomologist before offering same for sale.

ROSA rugosa seedlings, classified as rose plants at four cents each under paragraphs 211, tariff act of 1913, have been held dutiable under the same paragraphs as Rosa rugosa, three years old or less at $1 per 1,000 plants by the court of customs appeals.

P. J. Berckmans Co., Augusta, Ga.

DISCONTINUES AFTER 40 YEARS.

P. J. Berckmans Company, incorporated, have applied for a receivership, on account of the expiration of their charter, which would occur Tuesday, March 12, and L. A. Berckmans has been appointed receiver of the company, according to the Augusta Chronicle of March 10. The receivership is, of course, not due to the result of any insolvency whatever, but is a legal action made necessary by circumstances surrounding the organization of the corporation at this time, and the receivership will be empowered to close out the business and distribute the assets among the stockholders of the company, composed of Mrs. Edith F. Berckmans, P. J. A. Berckmans, L. A. Berckmans, and R. C. Berckmans. The whole whole proceedings are designed to simply technically handle all the details connected with the distributing of the interests of the stockholders.

The P. J. Berckmans Company was for about 40 years operated by P. J. Berckmans himself, and 20 years ago it was incorporated in legal form, and the period of the incorporation ended March 12, so that it would either be necessary to reincorporate or else surrender the charter. Hardly any other nursery enterprise in the country exceeds the business enjoyed by the company in question, their patronage extending all over the world, and the concern on the whole has been a most prosperous and progressive one at all times.

According to an announcement issued March 15, Louis A. Berckmans and P. J. A. Berckmans, Jr., will continue in the field as consulting horticulturists, both being well qualified to render expert advice relating to the cultivation and upkeep of orchards, private grounds and parks from long and successful practice in all of these subjects.

New Roses at Bagatelle.

European papers are printing the following announcement with reference to new roses intended for the Bagatelle trials:

"A trial of new roses will be conducted in the park of Bagatelle, near Paris, in 1918-1919, as in past years. The plants, as far as possible, should have been raised in pots, and several specimens—five at least—must be sent to the Rosary of Bagatelle before April 30. A notice must be attached as to their origin and parentage, stating, if necessary, any special treatment required for the plants. The varieties sent will be planted in the public rosary as soon as they reach Bagatelle. They will remain there until the month of October of the second year, so that the jury may be able to study, during two seasons, the flowering and habit of growth. Parcels by rail should be addressed to Roseraie de Bagatelle au Bois de Boulogne, enggare de Neuilly-Porte-Maillot-Paris, and letters to Le Conservateur des Promenades de Paris, 4, Route du Champ d'Entrainement par Neuilly (Seine)."

ALAMEDA, CALIF.—Matthew H. Dunn, superintendent of parks of this city for the past 10 years, died recently, aged 58 years.

THE EASTER TRADE.

Sales and Prices Show Increase.

Flowers and plants are essentials, especially during the stress of war time, if the phenomenal demand that cleaned the flower shops in all parts of the country of everything available during the Easter period just passed can be taken as a criterion. From reports received from all points, the demand exceeded that of all previous years, and while the sale of higher priced stock was not as great as usual, the increased number of orders resulted in the majority of cases in a larger volume of business. Prices on the average were somewhat more satisfactory than a year ago, especially in the case of lilies and roses, the former on account of the scant supply available, being more sought for than ever. In the majority of cases, the amount of cut stock was of generous proportions, but the throngs that visited the stores during the three days preceding the great holiday continued to buy until all lines were entirely depleted, and the retailers, with no other supplies available, closed their doors with a feeling of complete satisfaction with the results and the contents of the cash register. Considering the early date, the weather was ideal, and there was a record-breaking call for corsages, which brought sweet peas, violets, lily of the valley and orchids into the class of the best sellers. Roses in the majority of cases maintained the lead in popularity in the cut flower section. The stock was of excellent quality and prices were not much higher than in former years. In pot stock, following the lily, the hydrangeas were probably next in favor, but, with the general shortage, everything of good quality at a moderate price found a ready buyer. There seemed little inclination on the part of the public to "Hooverize" and, from indications, few homes in the United States were not brightened with flowers in some form. The following condensed reports from a number of the prominent retailers in various sections indicate the spirited trade generally enjoyed:

MONTREAL, QUE.—According to the report of Julius Luck, the volume of Easter trade was about equal to that of last year, with prices better than usual on cut stock, but not on plants. In the latter lilies were the short item. Cut stock was quite plentiful, with the exception of lilies, violets and lily of the valley. Ferns and palms had no sale. In spite of the early date, much stock was too far advanced or overforced, with the quality below standard.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—J. J. Windler had a greater Easter trade by about 10 per cent, with better prices in plant sales than a year ago. Pot lilies were scarce, and these, with hyacinths and tulips, sold best. The sales were in more moderate amounts than in former years. In cut flowers, sweet peas had the best call. Roses moved poorly.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—The Saltford Flower Shop reports the close of a very successful Easter week. The cut flower supply was good with prices normal, and while local lilies were scarce a full supply was on hand. Transfer orders were very numerous. The streets on Sunday had the appearance of a regular flower show.

MIAMI, FLA.—Easter trade was good, the Miami Floral Co. and the Exotic Gardens Co. having a large share of the business done. All cut lily flowers were shipped in, costing 15 cents, plus heavy express, retailing at $3.50 to $4.00 per dozen. Florida gladiolus spikes wholesaled at seven cents, retail $1.50 per dozen.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—B. Van Bochove & Bros. found this year's Easter demand about 35 per cent ahead of last, with nominal prices. Stock of all kinds was in ample supply. Lilies and spring flowering plants moved well, and a good demand for all cut stock was experienced, especially sweetpeas.

TORONTO, ONT.—Easter trade this year, according to H. G. Dilleuth, surpassed that of 1917 by about 20 per cent. Prices as a rule were about as usual with the exception of roses and lilies in which an advance of 50 per cent was noted and lily of the valley was 75 per cent higher. In plants, there was a good supply except azaleas. In cut stock, which was scarce, the high prices equalized the returns to a great extent. Lilies and roses in the plant section were most called for, but cyclamens were hard to move. In cut flowers, violets, sweet peas and roses were the leaders. Weather conditions were most favorable and helped to bring the stock to good condition and made delivery easy.

RALEIGH, N.C.—J. I. O'Quinn & Co., say the Easter trade this year, compared with that of 1917, was one-half greater, with prices somewhat better. There were not enough plants to supply the demand, and the same was true of cut flowers of the better grades. Lilies and hydrangeas were the best sellers, while in cut blooms sweet peas, lily of the valley, orchids, roses and lilies had the principal call. Carnations, in fact, everything, enjoyed a brisk sale, and this firm stopped taking orders at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

TORONTO, ONT.—Dunlop's report Easter business for 1918 as about 15 per cent better than a year ago, with an increase of about 25 per cent on roses and lilies. Plants of all kinds were very scarce, there being no azaleas or imported stock, and lilies led the demand. In cut flowers the supply of carnations and roses was limited, but the quality was very fine. Spring flowers enjoyed the best demand. Business was good even in the face of war conditions, and cash sales were more numerous than in previous years.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Although prices ranged somewhat lower than a year ago, this season's Easter business was of greater volume, according to Heitman-Oestreicher Co. The supply was far from being able to take care of the demand in the plant section, but in cut flowers all lines were plentiful with the exception of violets. Lilies and pot roses were most popular, the plant variety being limited. Sweet peas and cut lilies sold especially well, while an oversupply of bulbous stock went slowly.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Gust. Rusch & Co. had about the same volume of Easter sales as in 1917 with prices about equal to those of former years. Blooming plants were scarce and everything sold fast in this line. The cut flower supply was plentiful, with Easter lilies and Russell roses most called for. The movement of bulbous stock was only fair. All retailers report excellent business with early cleanups. Some of the carnations were of poor quality, due to the hot weather.

COLUMBUS, O.—Better business and better prices are reported by John H. Hellenthal in his summary of the 1918 Easter business. The ample supply in nearly all items was also a very satisfactory feature which made it possible to meet the big call for cut flowers and also blooming plants. Sweet peas were leaders, and many more could have been used in corsage work. The weather was exceptionally fine and the flower shops were crowded to capacity.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The report of E. C. Armbrust indicates a very satisfactory Easter demand with prices better than a year ago, especially in lily plants. The supply in general was ample. Genistas and cinerarias did not move particularly well. Lilies and hyacinths were the favorites. In cut flowers, the big movement was in roses, violets and sweet peas. There was a general shortage of lilies, rhododendrons, azaleas and lilacs.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—As compared with the 1917 Easter trade, the McCallum Co. reports sales this year about 25 per cent better, with prices also more satisfactory. Plants were very scarce, the supply being below requirements, while in cut flowers there were just enough to hold prices firm. In the latter class, while sweet peas led in popularity, anything sold faster than ever before. A large volume of business was done.

COAL.

Fuel Administrator Garfield in a statement issued advises consumers to put in their coal supply immediately.

Further, he says, if they have not sufficient money to pay for the coal, they should go to their banks and borrow the cash.

All orders should be placed through former mediums of supply.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN

March 30, 1918.

NEW ORLEANS, LA. — The Avenue Floral Co., comparing this year's Easter sales with those of a year ago, finds an increase of about 15 per cent in volume, with prices about on a par with other seasons. Flowering plants were scarce. There was no call for palms or ferns. In cut flowers, lilies, roses, carnations and boxes of spring flowers were most popular. Business was generally satisfactory.

BRAMPTON, ONT.—W. G. Peacock, of the Dale Estate, reports the Easter trade for 1918 about 10 per cent better than that of a year ago. Prices on roses and lilies were somewhat better, the latter coming in on time with favorable weather conditions. Stock of nearly all other growers in this vicinity was late. The supply of both cut flowers and plants was not equal to the demand.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Henry Smith reports Easter sales about on a par with last year's, with prices somewhat better. The supply in general was adequate, but there was a shortage of pot lilies. These, with azaleas, led the demand, while there was a surplus of bulbous stock. In cut stock, tulips, narcissi and carnations were on hand in quantity and there was a very good call for roses.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—A. J. McNutt reports about 20 per cent better Easter sales than a year ago. Prices were also better. Lilies were the only short item in pot plants and the supply of cut stock was ample. In the former, hyacinths, lilies and hydrangeas led in popularity. Roses and cut lilies moved freely. The public did not "Hooverize" on flowers as they did at Christmas.

EAST AURORA, N. Y.—Fred W. Wise reports this year's Easter trade about 20 per cent less than that of 1917 with prices slightly better. The supply of both cut flowers and plants was ample to meet all requirements. Corsages and spring flowers were most called for and medium priced plants sold best. The volume of business was good considering war conditions.

WORCESTER, MASS.—According to M. W. Reid, the volume of the Easter trade this year was about normal, although prices were slightly better. The supply of pot stock was scarce, especially lilies, and there was a strong demand for everything in sight. In cut flowers, sweet peas, violets and orchids had the lead.

OGDEN, UTAH.—E. J. Hendershot & Son had about the same volume of business as last year with prices somewhat advanced. The supply in all lines was plentiful. Lilies had the big call, and cut roses led in popularity in their class. Business did not seem to suffer from the effect of war influences.

NEW ORLEANS, LA. — Abele Bros. noted a decrease of 10 per cent in this year's Easter sales, with no improvement in prices over those of 1917. More low priced plants could have been sold had they been available. The supply of cut lilies, for which there was a brisk call, was also limited.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—A. Washburn & Sons had a small increase in the volume of this year's Easter sales, with prices more satisfactory than in 1917. The supply of plants and cut flowers was equal to the demand, and lilies as usual had the call. The weather was ideal.

Window Boxes.

One of the many features of the plant section of the business that is not worked to anything like its full possibilities, is the outdoor window box. There are thousands of window ledges in every large community that should be ornamented, and in this way help make theirs, "A city beautiful."

Features of the business, such as this, however, have to be exploited; people are not standing in line when the store opens in the morning with orders for window boxes. Well-arranged boxes are an ornamental feature to any residence, and in most cases are worth far more in decorative effect and the pleasure they give the household, than the initial cost and the necessary care to keep them in good condition.

It is a mistake in introducing this feature to establish low prices; cheap boxes that soon go to pieces are a detriment, rather than giving encouragement to their use. Those of wood should be constructed of cypress, or good yellow pine, which should be well coated with oil, inside and out. They can be painted or bark covered, either with cedar or white birch. A strip, top and bottom, of the same material, nailed around the box, close to the edge, holds the bark firmly in place. One inch cleats on the bottom are necessary when the boxes are to stand on porch floors or similar board foundations, as the moisture soon rots out the contact surfaces.

WINDOW BOXES AT RESIDENCE OF E. T. STOTESBURY, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Hyacinths, Boxwood and Ivy on Windows and Balconies.

For hotels, clubs or large mansions with stone or terracotta sills, the terracotta or cement boxes are most suitable. These can be made to order to fit in with the architecture of the dwelling. When more than four feet in length, they should be made in sections of three feet, to be fitted together, as great weight in the larger sizes makes them too heavy to handle. The initial cost is considerably more than the wooden box, but they last much longer and in the end are the cheapest. Every item in the filling should be accounted for to ascertain the cost price. Soil, time consumed in planting each plant, cost of delivery and putting in place, brackets and screws used; each of these means time and money. To guess it costs so much, or that is enough for it, is where so many lose out. The actual cost should be first ascertained, then the profit, and be sure it is enough, is to be added, and one is then certain to be on the safe side.

To be successful with this as well as any other feature of the business, there must be no experimenting, no half-hearted methods, with a half dozen in assortment just to see how they will take, or "If I sell these, I will get more." There must be a well defined campaign with a good line of boxes suitable to the neighborhood to be exploited. The plants that will do best for the various locations should be looked up and best prices obtained. Examples of the decorative work with well-filled boxes should be shown on every vantage point about the front of the store. Charles Thorley's establishment, in New York, is a model in this respect, as every foot of decorative surface, from spaces cut in the sidewalk in front of the show windows, over all cornices, on every window ledge of the four stories, on brackets between the windows, and on the roof, there is an array of foliage and flowering plants and vines that makes his store name, "The House of Flowers," most appropriate.

THE NATIONAL COLORS.

With the patriotic spirit now so prevalent all over the land, boxes filled with flowers of the national colors should be popular. Red and white geraniums, with a border of lobelia among the vinca or ivy vines, on the front, would make a good showing. All red geraniums, with a row in front of sweet alyssum alternated with lobelias, would also give the colors.

For the greatest efficiency, boxes should be filled three times during the season; first, about March 20 with pansies or English daisies, to be followed with geraniums and other flowering plants, which are to be replaced about August 1 with Scottii or similar ferns, which give way at the first frost to boxwood or evergreens for the winter decoration.

The soil should be rich, as so many plants occupying such a small space, soon use up the available food. Fresh soil should be used for the August filling of ferns. For shady situations, a variety of variegated foliage plants make the best showing. The greatest care should be taken to impress upon the persons having charge of the watering, the necessity of vigilance in this respect. A look once a week or so at all new work, to see how it is being cared for, is worth while and is sure to be appreciated. K.

Keep the Home Fires Burning.

It is of the greatest importance, for the maintenance, and even the very life of the business, that every department should at this time be kept up to the greatest possible efficiency. There has, in the past 25 years, gradually been built up a splendid and ever increasing demand for plants and cut flowers. It has become the custom to include plants and flowers as gifts at Christmas, and voice the joyous Easter greetings with the lily and other choice plants. All through life, from conveying congratulations on the advent of the little stranger, and during all the various stages of existence to the end, flowers play an important part.

There is a tendency by many misguided and hysterical people to discourage the products of the florist at this time as being luxuries and non-essential. This propaganda should be fought tooth and nail. Once let down the bars, and there is no telling where it will stop. As an instance, lily of the valley, always a staple and important item of the florist's stock, has the past winter been very scarce and high in price. In consequence, the people have become weaned away from it as it were, and now very good stock finds little demand.

It is doubly necessary now to "keep the home fires burning," to be alert and ready to fight off the "non-essential" shout, and keep the machinery of the business running full time and ever ready for effective service. K.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Easter in the New York Shops.

There was a time last winter when the temperature was hovering around the zero mark and coal was scarce and hard to get, when the prospects for Easter plants, particularly lilies, were unpromising. Happily for the plantmen, the coal situation improved, and the weather for the two weeks before Easter was in their favor. The crop of lilies flowered in time for Easter was not large, but was larger than had at one time been expected, and on the whole the quality was fairly good. Of the azalea stocks that had been carried through last summer, there was a fair sprinkling of plants—nearly every store had some—and they were fairly well flowered. There was a profusion of bush and standard roses, the pink varieties being much more numerous, though some good crimson ramblers were seen. There was good rose stock, but many blooms on the pinks had a pale and washed-out appearance. Both rhododendrons and genistas were fine features, there being large and well flowered plants. A considerable stock of medium-sized plants of heather was used in combination baskets. Particularly large and well flowered bougainvilleas were noticed in a number of stores. Good plant stock was not as plentiful as at Easter 1917, consequently it brought in some instances, higher prices than last year. This was particularly the case in lilies, which according to quality, ranged from 25 to 40 cents, bud and flower. Briefly stated, all good stock brought high prices. There were good rhododendrons. In large and small pots of daisies there was good stock. Pans of good tulips and hyacinths went well. Nice plants of hawthorn and apple blossoms were noticed in several stores. In small stocks, primroses and pans of mountain pinks were noticeable.

Up to Saturday, March 30, trade was rather slow, but the weather of that day was the mildest of the week, and it being the last chance before Easter, the buyers were out in force. The business in cut flowers was good and higher prices were realized than last Easter. There is usually a good demand for anything that is scarce, and lilies both in pots and cut, were in demand. Roses always sell well at a holiday and there was no exception this year. Carnations and violets went fairly well and were plentiful, prices not going to extravagant figures. There was a good demand for orchids. Gardenias were scarce, and the wholesale prices asked were almost prohibitive to the retailers, who also complained of the high prices on tea roses.

NOVELTIES.

The dictionaries define a novelty as "something new," but there are things that are not new, that considering time and place possess an element of novelty. We have sometimes thought that in this country too little attention has been given to the growing of fuchsias, for if grown on, they make beautiful plants. In the average of our plant ranges, it is almost a rarity to see fuchsias above bedding size. Among the Easter plants in one retail store, we noticed a number of fuchsias grown as standards that were over six feet high and beautifully flowered. The same firm had geraniums and heliotropes grown as standards, that were nearly as tall. The acacias are also well known in the trade, but this year there were exceptionally large and well flowered plants. Such plants of fuchsia as above described were quoted at $30 and $35 each, acacias $35 to $50. Considering all conditions, the retailers had good business.

A. F. F.

Easter in the Chicago Shops.

The Easter trade was good this year, but not quite up to expectations. A few report that their total sales were greater than those of 1917, but the majority say that it was not quite as good, but were pleased with the result, however, considering the existing conditions; in fact, it was better than many hoped it would be. The demand started in real late and it was impossible to handle the large army of buyers on the day before Easter, consequently many sales were lost which could have been used to good advantage had the buying started in earlier. The weather conditions were ideal notwithstanding the promised rain by the official forecast, which, however, fortunately failed to materialize until late Sunday afternoon. A. Lange and Fleischman advertised extensively in the daily papers with good results, while others used the street cars, elevated, and special folders. The department stores as usual sold lily plants at the extremely low prices of 24 cents and 34 cents per pot and the stock offered compared favorably with that of the leading retail establishments. One department store sold 10,000 pot hyacinths and tulips at eight cents per pot and another sold carnations as low as 20 cents per bunch. Plants sold unusually well with the florists, especially lilies, azaleas, rambler roses, hydrangeas, heather, rhododendrons and miscellaneous bulbous stock in pots and pans. Sweet peas and violets were in exceedingly brisk demand at good prices and while a large quantity were obtainable in the wholesale market they were in short supply. Orchids, lily of the valley and gardenias were good sellers and roses had a brisk call. Carnations did not move any too well, which was due considerably to the fact that the dealers did not attempt to push them, notwithstanding that they were in extra large supply at exceedingly low figures. American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses cleaned up quickly, as all the other varieties did. Cut lilies never brought such good prices as they did this Easter, owing to the general shortage in this vicinity. Miscellaneous stock moved nicely, especially snapdragons, freesias, daisies, jonquils, tulips and daffodils. Roses sold at prices ranging from $2 to $6 per dozen, with Mrs. Chas. Russell bringing $4 to $10 and American Beauties $10 to $12. Sweet peas brought from $1 per bunch and up and violets from 50 cents to $1.50. Gardenias brought about 75 cents and orchids $1 each. Spring flowers had a good call at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.25 per dozen, and plants from $1.50 and up. The outlying stores did exceptionally well and while loop establishments report splendid business it is doubtful if the total sales will be anywhere near as good as those of 1917. The majority of the dealers bought very carefully this year and some waited so long that they were unable to obtain what they wanted. Nearly everyone disposed of all the plants they had to offer and report a grand clean up. Considering the existing conditions, everyone is pretty well satisfied and while business was good nearly everyone will agree that the punch was lacking to the buying. Many of the churches used flags for decorating this Easter instead of flowers and plants, which cut quite a figure in this year's sales. Incoming and outgoing telegraph orders were numerous and were a big item in this year's Easter business.

Mothers' Day Po terette.

Issued by The Chicago Florists' Club.

Easter Features of Philadelphia Shops.

After the decision as registered by the Philadelphia flower loving public in their purchases at the Easter holiday just closed, flowers can certainly be classed as among the essential things of life. All along the line, in stores of high or low degree, in market, and on the street, there was an insistent demand for both plants and flowers that kept up until the stock ran out.

A look around the shops in this city demonstrated that most of them had put their best foot forward and presented a splendid assortment, which, while lacking the essentials of former years, such as spiræas, imported azaleas in quantity and a plentiful supply of lilies, yet made a splendid showing, from which selections in great variety could be made.

In all the higher class shops there was a judicious use of ribbons in the ornamentation of all the choice specimens, which extended to the smaller pieces; in fact, some stores specialized in choice hand-painted baskets, hampers and plant combinations of medium to small sizes, in which the plants were dwarf or miniature ericas, acacias, small baby rambler roses, blue hydrangeas, English primulas, choice variegated foliage plants, Glory ferns, small plants of Nephrolepis Norwood and Smithii, choice hyacinths, tulips, etc. The favorite colors of these receptacles were shades of light and dark blue and battleship gray, ornamented with pink bands and flowers. Different widths and shades of pink and blue ribbon set off these arrangements to good advantage.

WINDOW BOXES AT RESIDENCE OF JOHN WANAMAKER, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Boxwood and Ivy on Windows and Balcony.

Touches of blue ribbon were seen on many of the specimen pink hydrangeas and Tauschenschon and Dorothy Perkins roses, which certainly gives them an added value much greater than the cost of the ribbon.

Eight to ten inch tubs, painted light and dark shades of blue, with dainty hand-painted flower decorations, set off the specimen plants to good advantage. White or gray tubs, with the iron bands gilded, made good receptacles for combination plants of lilies.

Nearly all the stores featured baskets. These were made in great variety, there being a marked tendency to good color combination. Yellow callas were used with fine effect. In nearly all of the high class work ericas and acacias were a feature. The E. cupressina was especially well flowered.

Trellis boxes were not so much in evidence, although large white trellises were used to good advantage with specimen rambler roses. The failure to the extent of about 50 per cent of the Easter lily crop, both in plants and cut flowers, was a great disappointment, many stores not being able to fill their orders. Hydrangeas and other plants, however, sold the better for this discrepancy.

Genistas were good stock, both as specimens and in small sizes for use in basket work. Bulb pans in good condition sold very well.

There appeared to be the usual demand for decorations in the churches, and wreaths and other designs for the cemeteries. Taken altogether, as one of the storekeepers put his impression, "It was a crackerjack Easter."

Mothers' Day Posterettes.

The success of the co-operative advertising campaign for Mothers' day, conducted by the Chicago Florists' Club, has brought many requests from the florists of the United States, and in response, the same will be undertaken again this year upon a national scale. Posters and posterettes will be offered at the same prices as last year—there will be no advance in cost, and in case any profit is derived from the sale of same, 50 per cent of the net proceeds will be immediately transferred to the Society of American Florists as a country-wide contribution to the national publicity campaign for flowers, and the remainder reserved for future publicity purposes. Buy a quantity of these posters and posterettes at once. Combine your order with your neighbor florists and obtain the quantity rate. This will reduce the cost and insure an organized campaign for your entire community. Everyone in the trade will use the posters and posterettes this year. Do likewise. This is your opportunity. It will identify your business with the national campaign at small cost, and with the benefits obtained you will be well rewarded. Use the posterettes on your April and May statements, use them on every letter you mail, paste them on every box of cut flowers and use them on your advertising matter. Display the posters inside and outside the entrance to your store and greenhouses, paste them in your show windows, put them on your automobile and delivery wagons, use them in your street car advertising.

The price list of the posterettes, size 2½ inches high, printed in two colors, gummed and cut ready for use, is as follows:

250 "	1.50
500 "	3.00
1,000 "	5.00
2,000 "	9.00
5,000 "	21.00
10,000 "	40.00
25,000 "	95.00
50,000 "	180.00
100,000 "	350.00
500,000 "	1,500.00
1,000,000 "	2,500.00

The window poster of the same design as the posterette is 7¼ inches high. Prices are: Each 10 cents; per dozen, $1.00; 25 for $1.75; 50 for $3.00; 100 for $5.50; over 150, five cents each.

Please send remittance with orders, as we have no facilities to carry charge accounts. Make all checks payable to Otto H. Amling, Treasurer, Chicago Florists' Club. Send all orders and remittances to F. Lautenschlager, 440-472 West Erie street, Chicago. Send names and address and list of posters and posterettes wanted by every florist in your town and we will make delivery of same without extra charge.

McHutchison and Ward Close Big Deal.

What is believed to be one of the largest deals in the floricultural trade was consummated March 20, when James McHutchison, of McHutchison & Co., New York, closed a contract with C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Calif., by which the well-known horticultural supply house will act as selling agents in the territory east of the Rocky mountains. The Pacific Coast trade is reserved and will be handled by the Cottage Gardens Nurseries. The contract is for the next two years and includes bulbs and ornamental shrubs to the value of $250,000, practically the capacity of the nurseries during that time. Mr. Ward expresses himself as being highly pleased with the arrangement which will eliminate large items in selling costs and the handling of thousands of accounts.

At the present time there are now growing at the Eden nurseries, 35,000 matured azaleas and 250,000 cuttings and grafting plants, 50,000 gloxinias, 75,000 tuberous begonias, 50,000 cyclamens, 150,000 ericas and 250,000 hollies, box and other ornamental shrubs and trees. At the bulb farm, narcissi, tulips, hyacinths and other bulbous stocks are counted by the million. The McHutchison contract includes orders for about 30 varieties.

Following a recent visit to the bulb farms of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Dr. David Griffiths, of the United States department of agriculture, in charge of the experiment station at Bellingham, Wash., is reported in the Eureka Times, as follows: "You can hardly realize what a big thing Mr. Ward has done. If he had planted twenty times as many bulbs, he could sit on a chair in his office and sell them all. There is no danger of competition from Holland for the next seven years, as it will take all of that time for that country to recuperate from the effects of the war. This firm will be the largest commercial producer of bulbs for many years, and after the war the demand will be greater than ever. In recent visits to eastern markets I have carefully examined bulbs from all parts of the world and found nothing finer than those grown at Humboldt."

Kerr Company Incorporates.

The Robert C. Kerr Co., Houston, Tex., was incorporated March 15, with a capital stock of $35,000 and a charter secured for the erection of an extensive range on Westheimer road, that city, from which flowers and nursery stock will be supplied to the wholesale trade in Houston, Beaumont, Galveston, San Antonio, and other cities in southern Texas. The nursery will occupy 125 acres four miles from the city, said to be ideally suited for the purpose, having three kinds of soil, with sufficient water and well drained. Mr. Kerr, who served as president of the Society of American Florists in 1917, was president of the Houston Florists' Club at its inception, and president of the state florists' association for two years, is known today as head of one of the largest retail florists' establishments in the south, and has spent 23 years in the business. He has been working slowly and conservatively for the past eight years on experiments which have demonstrated that the time is now at hand to establish a large growing establishment, the first unit of which will be started immediately. Associated with him in the enterprises are E. W. Eichling and M. C. Walker.

Indiana State Florists.

The monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held at Bluffton, April 10, at the Bliss hotel. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock. Members are invited to attend and see the largest assortment of vegetable plants in northern Indiana and are requested to kindly notify H. S. Weicking or Myers & Co. of that city if they will be in attendance.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Monarch Florist, Euclid avenue, has closed its doors.

ALEXANDRIA, VA.—Gus Wolt, formerly of the Dunbar Floral Co., has taken a position with the United States department of agriculture.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—The Wm. Blackman Floral Co., reports a highly satisfactory Easter business, with lilies the only shortage. Geo. Blackman, who has been seriously ill for some considerable time, is gaining slowly but still confined to his room.

St. Louis.

DEMAND RELIEVES HEAVY SUPPLY.

The market was flooded with stock the first part of the week, but the big demand for decorations Easter week relieved considerably. A shortage in white carnations, roses and lilies developed. In fact, white carnations were a bit short for Easter. Roses are plentiful and of good quality. Sweet peas were in big supply, but cleaned up fine. For Easter, thousands more could have been sold. Violets were practically off. A few were on the market, but of poor quality and very high priced. The supply of lily of the valley was enough to go around. Snapdragons, Darwin tulips and jonquils were plentiful, but sold well. Smilax was very scarce and a whole lot of retailers were inconvenienced by the short supply. Southern smilax was very poor and helped very little for Easter decorations. Fancy ferns are getting poorer, and the new cut will be welcome when it does come in.

NOTES.

Easter certainly does use up the sweet peas. It seemed every other lady on the streets on Sunday had on a corsage or bunch of sweet peas. The wholesale houses must have handled three to four hundred thousand. At that, the retailers in the residence sections were cleaned out by Sunday noon.

Lilies were sure a big seller. On Sunday morning retail florists were selling lilies with buds only half open and no fully developed flowers. Bulbous stocks of all kinds sold well. Rhododendrons and azaleas did not have such a big call. The people seemed to demand more moderate priced plants.

It is reported that Marion Uhl-schmidt, formerly manager of Grimm & Gorly's East St. Louis store, will represent A. L. Randall Co. in this district selling supplies.

The retailers who do much church decorating for Easter week, had quite a time getting their palms this year. It seems everybody is low on decorative plants.

Otto Klingler, for the past six years an employe of Grimm & Gorly, has succeeded Marion Uhl-schmidt as manager of the East St. Louis branch.

The local florists will give a dance April 17. They have designated it a Tacke party. All members and friends of the trade are invited.

EASTER TRADE BEYOND EXPECTATIONS.

The Easter rush of 1918 is a thing of the past, but not soon to be forgotten, for from every side the report is that it was very satisfactory and far ahead of expectations. The ideal summer weather which prevailed all week was a boon to the growers, and with 70 degrees in the shade on Easter Sunday it seemed everybody, rich and poor alike, had flowers of some kind, thus creating a large demand up to the last minute. Never before were there so many corsage bouquets in evidence. In pot plants, the Easter lilies were in great demand with a rather short supply. The varieties offered were not as great as in past seasons, but cleaned up long before the holiday came around. The quality throughout was fine. In the cut flower line, the supply of every item was heavy with the exception of violets, which due to the heat were already done for, and sweet peas, which enjoyed an exceptionally brisk call. Roses were plentiful and carnations right on crop and the quality excellent. Although bulbous stock was in good demand, the supply was exceedingly large. While the forepart of the week business had not got started in earnest, still the closer it got to Sunday the more the demand increased, with the result of a grand and glorious Easter business. While the prices obtained were not up to former seasons, the greater volume of business helped to make up the difference.

NOTES.

At the C. C. Pollworth Co., where they had a large stock of pot plants and all kinds of own grown cut flowers, they report that they were sold out completely. Their roses and carnations hit it just right for the holiday.

Helmuth Baerman, of G. T. Baerman & Sons, on the Burleigh road, left April 1 for Camp Custer, Michigan. This firm, being next to the Wanderers' Rest cemetery, enjoyed a fine transient trade on Easter day.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports having been cleaned up on pot plants as early as Wednesday of last week. Business at the wholesale house was very fine. Over 100,000 carnations were handled during the week.

W. A. McKenney & Co., who moved from Milwaukee street to Wisconsin street about two years ago, again are back next to their old stand which they occupied so many years. The transfer took place, March 19.

Gust Rusch & Co. report a complete clean up by Sunday noon, March 31. Their lily supply was inadequate and they refused orders from Friday morning on. Shipping trade was very satisfactory.

EASTER TRADE BEST IN MANY YEARS.

Every thing contributed to making the Easter season this year one of the best known in the floral business in this city. The days preceding the Easter tide were mild and balmy, and all vegetation both under glass and in the open responded to the conditions, and there were more flowers and a greater variety than usual. Each of the uptown stores was a bower of beauty and it required large additional forces to handle the trade which was brisk through Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and by twelve o'clock—new time—Sunday there was a virtual clean-up on all sides. Lilies were rather scarce in comparison to other years. When they were first brought in there seemed to be plenty for everybody, but long before noon Saturday the supply was exhausted. The pot roses, baby ramblers and Tausendschon sold well and were splendid specimens of plants. The decorative baskets were objects of especial beauty and demand. Counters that were filled with them were entirely bare by noon Sunday. Prices were fine and reached a maximum never before attained in this market. Lilies were at least one-third higher and cut roses went as high as $4 and $5 per dozen. Baskets ranged in price from $2.50 to $25 each. Carnations brought $1.50 per dozen, hyacinths and tulips ranged from $1.50 to $5 per plant.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Company's store was most artistic in its arrangements and collection. This establishment is capable of a beautiful display and the greenhouses furnished the wherewith to appeal to the eye of beauty. Innumerable handsome baskets with artistically combined chiffons and ribbons in the pastel shades were eagerly sought after by throngs of customers. One side of the wall was arranged in tiers and filled with pot plants—hyacinths, tulips, cyclamens, hydrangeas, and the smaller plants, with a section all to itself of lilies, but the latter were taken early in the day, Saturday, and customers were content to take something else. This firm had perhaps more roses than any other, with good sales at good prices. The call for corsage bouquets, with the butterfly bow of ribbon, was unprecedented. Orchids and lily of the valley were favorite combinations, and all on hand were sold. A carload of beautiful pot plants and a large quantity of cut flowers were shipped to the Chattanooga branch house, and the sales there were great.

Geny Bros. brought in from their splendid greenhouses a most perfect and beautiful assortment of plants and cut flowers that completely occupied their large sales rooms and required the assistance of innumerable additional clerks to wait on the trade which came on in a rush all the four days. Their collection of Easter lilies was very large, but exhausted early in the day. Their pot baby rambler roses were readily sold, and magnificent plants of the Tausendschon were beautiful to behold and met with ready call. They were decorated with the large pot mats.

Charles Tritschler had a fine wagon display at the market, and he and several assistants had all they could do to wait upon the constant stream of buyers. He too had to replenish through the day from his greenhouses. Mr. Tritschler has not yet gone into the rose growing and cut flower trade, contenting himself with the pot plant and bedding plant business, which he does in large volume, and each year is adding to his reputation as a grower of ability.

Geny Bros.' decorated baskets were very handsome. They had a large number of them and all were sold out. One of the best things this firm handles, were the fine Kaiserin roses and they sold readily at $5 per dozen. Early Sunday morning the store was virtually cleaned up and all the most desirable things had been taken, but a straggling trade continued on until late in the afternoon.

The McIntyre Floral Company was in the game with a beautiful supply of all the Easter flowers. Their store and the adjacent greenhouse make bowers of beauty, and were thronged with customers. They also had a stall at the market house, where several wagon loads of pot plants were disposed of Saturday.

The Mount Olivet Conservatories were filled with splendid Easter flowers, and cleaned up almost entirely with sales to visitors to the cemetery for grave decoration. They had hyacinths, tulips, all kinds of geraniums, pansies and other small flowers suitable for the cemetery.

All the lesser lights in the local floral world were in the market place with wagon loads of pot plants and they too, after a renewal in mid-day, had cleaned up by night fall. A large funeral, or several of them, served to increase the sales of Saturday and Sunday.

Haurly & Son had good lilies, and quite a number of them, with splendid sales. They also had fine pot hyacinths and tulips.

M. C. D.

HAWTHORN, FLA.—John F. Dayton, who came here from Waukon, Ia., for the benefit of his health, is planning to specialize in plants and bulbs adapted to this section, also holly and mistletoe.

Boston.WONDERFUL EASTER BUSINESS.

For once the weather was in our favor and were benefited by one of the best Easters on record, and, although stock was not over plentiful, it was in the very best condition possible. The plant trade is simply wonderful and rambler roses, lilies, French hydrangeas, acacias and genistas were entirely sold out before Saturday noon and late buyers bought every thing in sight. In cut flowers, prices were not extra high. Cut lilies and callas were unobtainable.

NOTES.

Paine Bros. cut heavily on Golden Spurs, Victoria and Sir Watkins, which cleaned up well at $2.50 and $3 a hundred. Flamingo, White Hawk, Yellow Prince and Lorraine tulips sold well at $4 and $5 a hundred.

H. W. Peirce, of the firm of Peirce Bros., has joined the army in the transportation department in charge of trucks. E. Allen Peirce Jr., has volunteered to drive an ambulance.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report one of the largest Easter business ever. Out-of-town trade has increased so that an extra road salesman is going out for Memorial day business.

Wm. Stickle is shipping to the salesman at the market very good French iris and carnations. Among the best are Enchantress Supreme, White Wonder and Alice.

Thos. F. Galvin had a large trade and Saturday noon was telephoning to greenhouses for more plants to fill orders. Funeral work was also heavy this week.

The Boston Rose Conservatories cut many New Boston, Ophelias, Russell, Hadley and Stanley roses and the entire stock was cleaned up at good figures.

Penn. The Florist, had a large holiday trade, both in cut flowers and plants. There were just enough plants left to arrange the store.

Wm. McAlpine had a large supply of roses from his Exeter houses, among them Ophelia, Tipperary, Stanley and White Killarney.

Welch Bros. Co. had a wonderful week. All stock cleaned up nicely. Roses, lily of the valley and orchids were very good.

Wm. Elliott, from his Madbury greenhouses, had a heavy cut in Christie Miller, Ophelia and single Irish roses.

Wm. Sim had a large demand for violets, English primroses and carnations. Of violets alone, he picked 120,000.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report good business and were especially successful with roses, sweet peas and bulbous stock.

The Houghton-Gorney Co. reports extremely good business and a heavy run on bulbous stock.

M. Seigle, salesman for Mann Bros., has reported at Camp Devens.

Arnold & Fisher have a very good crop of sweet peas.

S. K. G.

Pittsburgh.EASTER STOCKS DEPLETED EARLY.

The 1918 Easter trade was most satisfactory; in fact, the best in a number of years. There was a large quantity of cut stock, and everything brought good prices. Cut blooms were in more demand this year than for some time past, due to the limited number of plants offered. Even bulbous stock cleaned up well under a steady call, unusual at this season. Lilies were very scarce—not enough to meet requirements, with prices ranging from $12.50 to $15 per 100. The quality was very good. There was a great demand for sweet peas and some very fine stock was offered. Violets sold well for this time of the year. Some very good stock was received, also that which was below standard. More of the better grade could have been used had it been available. The cut of carnations was very heavy and the quality was A1. Prices varied from $4 to $6. Some stock was offered at as low as $2.50 per 1,000. Roses were very much in demand, but there was not enough to go around. Some very fine Killarneys, Ophelia, Prima Donna, Sawyer, Richmond, Russell and other sorts were offered at good prices. American Beauty was in greater demand than at any previous Easter, with an abundance or short grade of very good quality available. Orchids were in short crop but there was a good supply of gardenias which sold up well. Lily of the valley met a good call at $8. Calendulas and myosotis moved satisfactorily. Greens were very scarce. Some very handsome plants in attractive baskets were seen in the shops and small pot plants, such as hyacinths, tulips, jonquils and cyclamens, sold very well. Most of the stocks in the stores were depleted by Saturday night and all are well satisfied with the volume of business done.

NOTES.

Edward Ludwig, son of E. C. Ludwig, who is connected with the ambulance corps at Augusta, Ga., was home for a few days on leave.

The A. W. Smith Co. did a large business in corsages. Their large landscape force is now very busy with several good sized contracts.

Mrs. E. A. Williams displayed some of the finest plants seen in this city for a number of years. The windows here are always attractive.

George Wessenauer, of Sewickley, opened a store at Ambridge, Pa., for the holidays and disposed of all of his blooming plants early.

M.

Cincinnati.GOOD DEMAND FOR FAIR SUPPLY.

Easter business was excellent. Everything that came in that was good and on time for the rush sold readily and more might have been used had we had it. The supply, while not quite as large as we had hoped for, still was good and fairly liberal, and went around pretty well. Shipping business was very heavy. Since Easter, the market has been fair. Roses are not very plentiful but carnations are in good supply. Receipts in sweet peas are large and generally of a high quality. Easter lilies are not very plentiful but the cuts that were not quite ready for Easter are coming into the market, and by the time the week is gone we should have a heavy supply. Some callas and rubrums may be had. Outdoor daffodils, hyacinths and tulips are coming into the market. Other offerings include snapdragons, pansies, orchids, lily of the valley, calendulas and mignonette.

NOTES.

Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind., had a cut of roses of the highest quality. L. H. Kyrk had no trouble in disposing of them.

C. E. Critchell had an excellent large lot of sweet peas that he disposed of very readily.

J. A. Peterson & Sons disposed of all their hydrangeas, lilies and lily of the valley.

Charles Garvey, manager of Peter Weiland's store, left for Camp Sherman for training March 30.

H.

CLEVELAND, O.—Clarence A. Meyers, formerly with the Smith & Feters Co., has entered into partnership with Timothy Smith, Euclid avenue and Forty-sixth street.

San Francisco Notes.

Eric James, of Elmhurst, will have his usual fine stock of Easter plants. His stock of baby ramblers was never better and all are arranged in the most desirable designs, such as arches, chairs, etc. His Pink Pearl rhododendrons are grand stock and all of them are already ordered. We noted a fine stock of azaleas, all of which, too, are being made ready for shipment. Large lots of Boston and other varieties of ferns are now going forward daily. He expects to sell out completely during the coming week. As usual, his nursery is a model of neatness and is always a mecca for plant enthusiasts.

The nurseries of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. are well equipped for Easter trade this year. Several houses are devoted to rambler roses in variety, azaleas and rhododendrons. A large stock of lilies will also be in, and foliage plants. Shipping trade in the plant line is brisk just now, as the Easter shipments are beginning to go forward. Andrew McDonald, who is in charge here, has every reason to feel pleased with the splendid condition of his Easter offerings.

The last meeting of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society was largely attended and numerous fine exhibits were shown by the members. The society is undecided as to its plans for its usual large spring and fall exhibitions. If conditions continue as they are at present, it is highly probable that the exhibition committee will recommend that they be abandoned this year. President Tuttle is proving to be a very capable official and a hard worker for the society.

Luther Burbank was the guest of honor of the citizens of Santa Rosa, his home town, on his birthday, March 7, which day is also arbor day in this state. Elaborate exercises were held in honor of Mr. Burbank by the citizens, and a fine programme was prepared by the Chamber of Commerce. A large number of congratulatory telegrams were received by the noted hybridizer on that day from all parts of the country.

Ferrari Bros. are sending in a fine lot of phalaenopsis. They are very acceptable just now, as the market is rather short of orchids of any variety. Their cut of Lilium giganteum is heavy now and of the finest quality. Their Easter stock of lilies never looked better. The rose houses, too, are in fine shape with every prospect of a heavy cut for Easter.

Thomas Standiford, well known to the trade in this city, has joined the British forces at their recruiting office here. Although a married man, with two children, Tom did not claim exemption, and we all hope he will be safely returned to his family and friends when the war is over. His services as judge at our flower shows will be greatly missed.

Florists and nurserymen have never experienced such a year in the sale of fruit trees as the present one. The demand was so heavy and unexpected that there is practically nothing left to sell at any of the nurseries. The sale of ornamental trees and shrubs has fallen off to a corresponding degree, and very little has been done in this line this season.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., says his firm has been unusually busy with funeral work during the past two weeks. They are already making preparations here to handle the large Easter trade usually done by this firm. Additional space has been secured and a very large consignment of stock is due to arrive during the week to fill orders.

Julius Eppstein, at the St. Francis hotel, says he is having great difficulty in securing orchids of late. The demand at this store is always heavy for this particular class of flowers, and he is hard pressed at times to secure enough to fill his orders. He says Easter prospects never looked better and he is stocking up heavily with plants.

The man who comes into a flower store and orders a $2.50 wreath and presents a check for $5.00 and receives the balance in change has been operating in town during the past week. We are glad to be able to report that he was apprehended by the police and is facing trial. Quite a number of our prominent stores were victimized by this clever dupe.

The Lynch Nursery Co., of Menlo Park, is shipping some of the finest carnations and freesias coming to the market. Their cut of Matchless is very fine, also their new red seedling, Menlo Park. Manager Ellings says that the plant department is being kept very busy at all times, and that the shipping business is very satisfactory.

The E. W. McLellan Co.'s greenhouses promise to be in with a heavy cut of roses for the Easter trade. They have a fine cut of lilies just now, all of which are bringing high prices. Manager J. A. Axell is kept very busy these days booking Easter orders. The shipping trade still is quite heavy and shows no signs of abatement.

Chas. Abraham, proprietor of the Western Nursery, is having a busy season in the plant line. Mr. Abraham is one of our best known authorities on plants and has a remarkable collection at his nurseries. Everything that comes out which gives promise of being an addition to our flora is added to his collection.

According to Rosie Rosaia, manager of the funeral department of the Art Floral Co., the force has been working overtime every night during the past week. The decorative staff, which is under the direction of J. W. Williams, reports many large decorations during the week also.

Kibuya & Tchida, the chrysanthemum growers, are busily engaged in getting their stock in condition for this coming season. They will have over 100,000 to cut from. The stock sent in by this firm is always of the highest quality.

F. C. Jaeger & Son are making elaborate preparations for the Easter trade. Large stocks of seasonable Easter plants are being received daily, and this store will be among the most handsomely decorated in the city during Easter week.

Recorde Lee Murray, whose attractive store on Geary street near Larkin, is always maintained at the highest standard, is showing a fine lot of Easter plants. She tells us that she is preparing to handle her heaviest Easter trade.

John Bianchini has resigned his position with the Art Floral Co. to accept a similar one with Josephs on Grant avenue. John is so good-natured and popular that the trade wishes him success wherever he goes.

Chas. Stoffenback, of the American Florist Shop on Polk street, has had an unusually busy week. He has a splendid window showing at all times, which makes his store one of the most attractive in that part of the city.

M. Rosenfield, son of the famous eastern peony specialist, is now located in this city, and is building a house at Garden City. He expects to add a collection of the best peonies to his attractive home.

The force at the A. O. Stein store on Sutter street have been kept on the go all week with decorations. Manager Patrick Orr says his great trouble has been to secure enough high-grade flowers to fill orders.

Frank Pelicano is busily engaged with his dahlia orders. These are sent from his nursery on Guttenberg street. He reports a heavy call for his sensational prize-winner, Dr. Harry L. Tevis.

Fred Lewis, vice-president of the Art Floral Co., came from Los Angeles during the week on a business visit to his firm and left a few days later for Portland, Ore.

C. C. Morse & Co. say they are having a very busy season in plants. Manager Tom Holmes at the Market street store reports fruit trees as being entirely sold out.

Sam Matraia is now associated with the Art Floral Co., of which his brother, P. Vincent Matraia, is president and manager.

Fred Bertrand, former manager at Joseph's, on Grant avenue, is now with the MacRorie-McLaren Co. in their Powell avenue store.

August Fille is now with the MacRorie-McLaren Co., having left the Art Floral Co. March 1.

Kansas City, Mo.

BEST EASTER DEMAND IN HISTORY.

The Easter demand was the largest in the history of the trade in this city, in spite of the handicap caused by the strike of all local unions, which affected delivery to some extent. Reports show a cleanup of all pot plants and the same is practically true of cut stock. While the great demand was confined to popular priced items, the immense volume of business made a most satisfactory total, the orders ranging from $1 to $10. Lilies were quite plentiful but at that the supply fell short, and then the rambler roses, cinerarias, azaleas and the miscellaneous offerings began to move briskly. Many fancy baskets and made-up arrangements were disposed of. There never before was such a heavy supply of bulbous stock, both cut and in pots. Carnations, roses, snapdragons and sweet peas found ready buyers.

NOTES.

A complete cleanup was noted in the establishment of W. J. Barnes and the receipts show a big increase over last year. The supply of plants this year was exceptionally large and he never handled as much bulbous stock at one time before.

The Alpha Floral Co. had all they could do to handle the immense local and out-of-town business, which was limited only by the amount of stock that could be secured. Much more could have been sold had it been procurable.

Chas. Thomas, of The Rosery, reports business far better than was expected. The call for corsages was unusually heavy and pot plants went fast. He is also kept busy with numerous funeral orders.

Samuel Murray says he is well satisfied and was surprised at the amount of business. His splendid stock was up to its usual high standard.

H. Kusik & Co. had a heavy supply but stock ran short at the finish. Fine Russell and Onhelia roses were among their feature offerings.

Bob McGrail was surprised at the volume of business. He had a fine run on corsage work and cleaned up on pot plants early.

Fred Fromhold had a big stock but it depleted early. The demand for corsages was unusually heavy.

T. J. Noll & Co. never handled as much stock before and shipping trade was better than ever.

John Stevens cleaned up early on lilies and disposed of fine carnations in large quantities.

A. Mohr had his large stock sold 10 days before Easter and had to refuse many orders.

A. Newell had the best Easter in his history. Everything moved without effort.

BUSINESS FULLY UP TO EXPECTATIONS.

The 1918 Easter trade was all that could be expected considering conditions. Lilies were never finer than this year, while rambler roses, tulips, hyacinths, daffodils and hydrangeas, all well grown, were in ample supply. The cut flower stock was also equal to all demands upon it, and a heavy call for corsages depleted the offerings of sweet peas, violets and lily of the valley. Orchids were decidedly popular. The three days preceding Easter were all that could be desired, with continuous sunshine, and Easter was almost like a summer's day, ideal for the display of Easter flowers and gowns. There was no letup in trade until 6 p. m. Funeral work the first part of the week was active. Wedding orders were practically minus.

NOTES.

S. A. Anderson had the order for three handsome casket covers, one of roses, one of lilies and the other of roses and orchids. Two of the force here have departed for Camp Dix, N. J.

Among the shops rich in fine displays were those of W. J. Palmer & Son on Delaware avenue, S. A. Anderson and the Colonial Flower Shop.

The Late John Harrison Dick.

John Harrison Dick, for more than four years editor of the Florists' Exchange of New York, died at midnight, March 25, in St. Mary's hospital, Brooklyn, following an operation which he underwent on the previous day. The operation was performed, we are advised, for an affection of the kidneys. The deceased was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, 40 years ago. His father was head gardener on the estate of a British army general, and in his boyhood he had ample opportunity to familiarize himself with the various features of horticulture. After he reached manhood, he held various positions in private and commercial establishments, working for a time at Veitch's nursery, London, England. Later, he was employed on the editorial staff of the Journal of Horticulture. He was a member of the Society of American Florists, of the New York Florists' Club and secretary of the American Dahlia Society.

J. Harrison Dick was a good citizen and a Christian gentleman, devoted to his daily duties and in his leisure to his home and religious work and study. His family and late associates have our sincere sympathy. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, and by his aged father and mother, who reside in Edinburgh.

Among the many who were present at the funeral services were: Richard Vincent Jr., White Marsh, Md.; President Charles H. Totty, of the Society of American Florists, Madison, N. J.; Secretary John Young, New York; George W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.; M. Free, Brooklyn Botanic Garden; Joseph Sperry, C. Lowther and A. T. De La Mare, New York. The minister, in speaking of the deceased, referred to his high personality, steadfast and unmovable, abounding in good works. He added: "Such a man of great mind and spirit was not given the physical body to correspond, although no soldier on the battlefield, ever sent forth from England, was a truer hero."

NEW LONDON, WIS.—The New London Floral Co. has established a downtown store.

FT. DODGE, IA.—The Olympia Sweet Shop has added a flower department under the management of Nick Mosco, formerly of Minneapolis, Minn.

Most of the progressive retailers now say gasoline is the best substitute for the unmitigated errand boy and the spavined steed.

Personal.

Frank L. Budlong and wife started for Providence, R. I., from Florida April 1. Mr. Budlong found navigation of the everglades muck in a "Packard Twelve" more awkward than cruising Indian river in his "Tarpon Queen." However, he closed a deal for 500 acres of muck and should be able next winter to train his Packard on a tract of that size so it will run on the surface instead of searching out the lower deposit of everglade muck.

Ed. Goldenstein, former head of the bulb department at Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, now at Camp Grant, has been the victim of some waggish reporter who contributed the following to the camp news column of the Chicago American of April 2: "Edwin Goldenstein is right at home at Camp Grant. With the mild weather and the big drive to clean up the camp, Goldenstein is an indefatigable worker. The artistic part of the work is right in his line. He was formerly a landscape artist and is in Co. M, 344 Inf."

REGARDING digging up Central park for trenches, the New York Times says: "To win the war, let everything be sacrificed, if need be. To throw away unnecessarily is not a sacrifice, but a folly."

PRICES of all commodities being likely to advance rather than decline for some time to come, it would seem generally advantageous to buy early. There should be good demand for everything after the war, munitions excepted.

THE Wisconsin Horticultural Society has issued a series of timely folders for war gardeners as follows: "Getting Ready for the War Garden," "Seed Sense for War Gardeners," "Prepare the Soil in the Seed Bed," "Sowing the Seed in the Garden," "Early Plants." For copies address Secretary Frederic Craneheld, Madison, Wis.

The Rose Annual.

The American Rose Annual for 1918, of the American Rose Society, will shortly be mailed to members. In its 188 pages, well illustrated, the editor, J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., has gathered much information, some of it notably first hand, that is worthy of careful attention by the rose grower. In addition to a symposium, "Shall We Grow Roses in Wartime?", of especial interest at present, data presented with respect to combating of rose diseases, furnished by Dr. L. M. Massey of Cornell University, offers valuable information regarding crown canker and black-spot and powdery mildew, the result of visits to gardens and ranges of about 50 growers. "Roses Retained and Discarded," by George C. Thomas, Jr., presents a very comprehensive list, the results of tests, with variations and characteristics, which will aid rose growers to determine sorts which are desirable to cultivate in the rose garden. Among other interesting articles are: "Roses in Broad Landscape Planting," by Warren H. Manning, North Billerica, Mass.; "A Rose Garden with a Reason," by H. A. Caparn, New York; "The Rose Garden of Humboldt Park, Chicago," by J. F. H. Heide, Chicago; "Portland's New Municipal Rose Garden," by Hon. Geo. L. Baker, mayor; "Rose Species Observation," by John Dunbar, Rochester, N. Y.; "Notes from the Rose Firing-Line," by Dr. W. Van Fleet, Washington, D. C.; "Rose Work in England," by Herbert L. Wettern, London; "Methods of Rose Breeding," by Professor E. A. White, secretary of the American Rose Society, Ithaca, N. Y.; "Stocks for Rose Propagation," by Dr. W. Van Fleet; "Succeeding with Roses," by Robert E. Hughes, Buffalo, N. Y.; "The Rose in Florida," by Marian A. McAdow, Punta Gorda, Fla.; "Roses in the Semi-arid Southwest," by W. C. Blanks, San Angelo, Tex.; "Rose Families and Their Tendencies," by Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; reports of rose test garden progress and a partial list of roses introduced in America, compiled by Chas. E. F. Gersdorff and the editor.

Among the many attractive illustrations are color plates of the new roses, Mrs. Henry Winnett, Columbia and Rosalind and an excellent portrait of Professor E. A. White.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

The following requests have been received for registration of roses and have been approved by the rose registration committee. Unless objections are received within three weeks from the date of this publication, the registrations will be permanently accepted:

Name—Victory. Class, hybrid Wichuraiana. Parentage, Dr. Wm. Van Fleet x Mad. Jules Grolez. Description: Habit of plant, climbing. Character of foliage, Dr. Wm. Van Fleet foliage. Freedom of growth, very vigorous. Hardiness, perfectly hardly. Flower, double, 3½ inches in diameter. Color, deep pink, darker in center. Form, center projecting, medium long, round. Fragrance, quite fragrant. Bud, pointed but rather round. Petalage, 48 petals, curved, stiff. Freedom of bloom—very profuse in June; may bloom later. Lasting quality, on bush one week; when cut buds retain shape until faded. The rose is similar to Mad. Jules Grolez and Dr. Wm. VanFleet, but is different in color, fragrance and petalage and superior for the following reasons: To VanFleet: (1) color is darker; (2) rose is more double; (3) petals are stiffer; (4) rose lasts much longer. To Mad. Jules Grolez: (1) more vigorous grower; (2) free from disease; (3) longer stems for cut flowers; (4) glossy foliage all summer. (Signed) Frederick R. M. Undritz.

Name—Freedom (The climbing White American Beauty). Class, hybrid Wichuraiana. Parentage of rose, Silver Moon x Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. Description: Habit of plant, climbing. Character of foliage, Silver Moon foliage. Freedom of growth, very vigorous. Hardiness, perfectly hardy. Flower, very double, over 4 inches in diameter. Color, white, base petals tinted cream, center yellow. Form, center projecting; medium long. Fragrance, Silver Moon fragrance. Bud, pointed and firm. Petalage, 75 petals, curved, stiff and erect. Freedom of bloom, profuse in June; may bloom later; lasting quality on bush, about eight days. The rose is similar to Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, but is different in petalage and form and superior for the following reasons: (1) more hardy; (2) disease-resistant; (3) the rose lasts longer; (4) more vigorous grower; (5) much better bloomer. Better than Silver Moon because: (1) it is much more double; (2) better cut flower, one flower to a branch; (3) typical climbing White American Beauty. (Signed) Frederick R. M. Undritz.

Name—Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury. Class hybrid tea. Parentage, seedling of Jos. Hill and Maryland crossed on Milady. Description: Habit of plant, throws off lateral shoots from the bud ranging from 12 inches to 18 inches. Character of foliage, large, dark, glossy foliage. Freedom of growth and hardiness, very free, strong and vigorous. Flower, large, does not bruise. Color, light pink, shaded in darker pink. Form, large, full flower, opening wide. Fragrance and bud, spicy fragrance, long bud. Petalage, 32 petals average. Freedom of bloom and lasting quality, very free; good keeper. The rose is similar to Shawyer, but is different in color, foliage and growth and superior for the following reasons; it is more free, stronger and has a heavier flower.

WAR CONDITIONS Of Supply and Demand

While there is no doubt the demand for spring bedding and other decorative plants and bulbs will be materially curtailed by the war garden movement, we believe this condition will be fully counterbalanced by the prosperity in the south and the effects of the coal shortage on the greenhousemen of the west, north and east, placing in the market for stock a large number of new buyers not familiar with the sources of supply.

Most of these buyers can be reached at small cost by advertising in The American Florist, and we feel that it will be greatly to your advantage to start this campaign with an advertisement in our columns.

BIG WEEK OF BUSINESS.

Easter business in this city was the best in all respects ever experienced. The weather uniformly fine every day of the week, continuing over Sunday, was a big factor that contributed to the successful business of the week. It was the experience of nearly every retailer that the buying started in earlier in the week than ever before. Monday even gave a clear indication of the big week that followed, and with each recurring day the trade increased over corresponding days of a year ago, and Saturday with clear, bright skies and the typical spring day it was, seemed to inspire everyone with a desire to indulge in the beautiful array of floral products to be seen in all the florists' shops. Lilies seemed to lead in popularity, as a pot plant, closely followed by high grade bulbous stock, in the larger sizes. Some nice azaleas were available, and these maintained their usual popularity in the sizes ranging from $3 up to $10. Hydrangeas in most cases proved a disappointment because of their inability to hold up in appearance as seen in the greenhouses before the ordeal of shop conditions rendered them unattractive. Varying were the reports concerning baby rambler roses, which with some were as popular as ever, while with others they were a disappointment, due chiefly, it is thought, to their premature condition on delivery to the stores. High priced specimens of Dorothy Perkins and Tausendschon in trained shapes did not attract the buyers this year, nor did lilac of equal value. It was observed throughout the week that the higher priced articles of any kind were being eliminated by the formerly extravagant buyers. The total great volume of business enjoyed by all was the result of the increased number of buyers that this year, of all years, sought the floral shops. Few of the dealers this year prepared a stock of plant baskets, and only those with medium prices attached moved to a satisfactory degree. Lilies with nearly every one were short in supply, and it is safe to say many more thousand plants could have been sold. These brought a higher price than ever before in the city; it being rarely the case in former years to charge more than 25 cents a bud and bloom, while this year the ruling price was 30 cents a bud and bloom, while many were sold for an advance over this price and in the computation every bud was counted and yet this rule being most uniform in its application brought no resentment from the prospective purchasers, many of whom would be satisfied with nothing but a lily. In cut flowers, everyone was surprised at the popularity of the violet, the supply of which was far short of the demand. Sweet peas, too, was an item of special popularity, and even the necessary higher prices asked for them did not deter their speedy sale. Carnations were in rather meagre supply, but the quality was good and all were sold, the ruling price being $1.50 a dozen. Roses in all grades sold well, and a distinct advance in price was maintained for them. Bulbous stock sold well, and this, too, enjoyed an advance in price over previous years. In the early part of the week, a lengthy editorial appeared in the Detroit Free Press. It was a forceful, logical and timely article, that in substance pointed out the propriety of the use of flowers and the clear duty of the people to patronize the florists whose lives are devoted to this ever increasing and important industry. Its effect and actual value to the local trade far exceeded that of pages of advertising by the florists themselves, who this year refrained from the use of the daily papers for Easter publicity, more generally than in previous years. It was noted that the large advertisers of other lines of goods during the week employed a free use of cuts of lilies and other flowers, which, we think, were very suggestive of flowers and left an impression that strengthened the desire for their possession. The facilities for handling a big rush of trade that nearly all the florists had installed were found inadequate for the surprisingly incessant call that all enjoyed. The comments of some of these dealers follow:

Bomb Floral Company.—We had a big trade. Advanced prices prevailed. There was an even call for all items on the list of plants and cut flowers. Lilies were as heretofore the leader in flowering plants. Our greatest difficulty was to handle the customers promptly and to get out our deliveries on time. On such occasions, the growers who supply us throughout the week, should aid us in our terrible rush on that day.

Fetters Flowers.—It was the best trade we ever experienced for Easter. Lilies and high grade bulbous plants were leaders in plants. Many baskets sold too. Violets were in great demand. We did not have enough. We never had better bulbous stock. Our trade at our upper Woodward avenue store was very brisk on Easter Sunday, as well as satisfactory throughout the week.

John Breitmeyer's Sons.—We did an immense business all through the week, culminating in a big rush Saturday, the fine weather being an important factor, contributing to the grand results. Probably an outstanding feature of the week was the reluctance of the very rich to indulge in the higher priced items they formerly bought as Easter gifts.

Central Floral Co.—Easter trade was very good, far exceeding that of last year. All the week was good, indicating the great volume attained Saturday. Easter lilies easily led in popularity and we had not nearly sufficient stock to satisfy the calls. Baby rambler rose plants moved rather slowly, but good bulbous stock was easily disposed of at prices a shade higher than last year.

W. B. Brown.—We had a very good trade; far better than expected. Bulbous stock was very popular, while high priced hydrangeas and lilacs moved slowly. Good baby rambles found ready sale. Violets were very popular and more could be sold if the quality would equal some of the fine ones we had. Lilies were very popular.

Scribner Floral Co.—We had a nice trade and were able to handle it most satisfactorily. The volume exceeded quite a little that of last year and popular priced plants had the lead. High priced lilies and other plants moved slowly. Violets were exceptionally popular and we sold a great many of them.

J. K. Stock.—Our trade was fairly good in high priced items, but exceedingly good in moderate priced plants. We made a specialty of bulbous boxes, as originally planted in receptacles 24 inches long by 26 inches wide, which was a great hit. These filled with mixed plants also were popular.

B. Schroeter.—Trade was very good. Nearly every kind of a plant sold well except the higher priced plants, but the volume was greater than a year ago, made up by the more numerous sales. We are well satisfied.

J. F. S.

GOOD EASTER BUSINESS.

The Easter trade was good this year all things considered but could have been a whole lot better. Roses, lilies and sweet peas were in exceptionally heavy demand and cleaned up quickly at an early hour at very satisfactory prices. American Beauty roses moved swiftly in the fancier grades at prices ranging from $40 to $50 per 100 and there was also an exceedingly brisk demand for long stemmed Mrs. Charles Russell. Roses in general were in short supply and it was impossible to fill anywhere near the orders that were received. Lilies were also scarce and what stock was offered commanded high prices. Sweet peas sold surprisingly well at the advertised quotations and there was no surplus when the day was over. Lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias cleaned up early and while violets were in good demand they did not bring the prices that everyone expected they would. Carnations were in extra heavy supply and never sold at such low prices before at Easter as they did this year. Fancy stock brought fair prices but the average will be low compared to other Easters and many a grower was or will be disappointed when he receives his returns. Jonquils, tulips, daffodils and narcissi sold surprisingly well considering the poor demand for carnations. Snapdragons, freesias, calendulas, daisies, feverfew, stevia, mignonette and other miscellaneous seasonable stock had a good call and while business was not as good as the majority of dealers expected it would be the market cleaned up pretty well in all lines with the exception of carnations. The weather was ideal in every respect and the retail stores were crowded to capacity all day,

At Houston, Texas.

March 30, when it was almost impossible to handle the crowd. The demand started in later than usual this year and what promised to be a very quiet Easter for the retail florist turned out to be a very good one, owing to the whirlwind finish. There was more stock offered in the market than anyone expected there would be owing to the very favorable weather that prevailed the past month and it might be safe to report that the dealers who were long on sweet peas, lilies and roses enjoyed as good if not a better holiday trade than they did in 1917. Several of the large growers were almost completely off crop with roses and were hit heavily and in one instance of this kind the proprietor reports that his sales were at least 50 per cent. below those of last Easter. The growers of pot plants sold out completely in all lines and were more than pleased with their sales. The news of the big battle in Europe put somewhat of a damper on the business but considering existing conditions the Easter trade was good.

NOTES.

A. Lange, the well-known East Madison street florist, had all the business that he could possibly handle for Easter, and while he has not yet had time to compare his sales with those of 1917, the writer will venture to report that they will show up most favorably. He used the daily papers extensively and deserved all the business that he enjoyed. His son, Homer, who has charge of the shipping department, made a new record for himself this Easter and delivered all the orders in due time, which is doing exceptionally well considering the large number of packages sent out.

South siders will have an opportunity to profit from three model war gardens which will be maintained by the south park commissioners. The gardens will be situated in Washington park, Bessemer park, and Sherman park. J. Frank Foster of the south parks will have supervision over them. The gardeners will be available to answer all questions.

Phil Weinberg, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., has been classified for military service by his draft board and expects to be called to the colors at any moment.

The Florists' Club will meet at the Bismarck hotel, Thursday evening, April 4, at 8 p. m.

Emil G. Skoglund, builder, has sold to John Fuhrman, florist the 21 apartment building on 77x137 feet of ground at the northeast corner of North Ashland and Carmen avenues, for a reported consideration of $70,000, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000. In part payment the purchaser conveyed a tract of 20 acres at the northwest corner of One Hundred and Fifty-fourth street and Torrence avenue, at a reported valuation of $10,000, and the vacant 72½x122 feet at the corner of North Clark street and Rascher avenue, at an indicated consideration of $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $3,000.

O. J. Friedman, 516 South Michigan avenue, had a magnificent display of blooming plants and deserves the palm for art and novelty this Easter. Hydrangeas, Scotch heather and rambler roses together with made-up baskets of bulbous stock arranged in Victor Bergman's usual fine style were his leaders and sold quickly. Baby Tausendschon roses were scarce this season and greatly missed at this establishment.

The White House Florist sold out completely in plants as well as cut flowers this Easter and reports a very satisfactory business. This firm allowed the purchasers 25 cents on each plant ranging from $1.50 to $3.00 and 50 cents on all over $3.00 and up to avoid delivery, which made a big hit and saved a lot of time and trouble.

Percy Jones, Inc., had a fine Easter which exceeded all expectations. Manager H. Van Gelder was particularly well pleased with the out-of-town demand and also reports a very good call for stock by the city buyers. This firm has a tremendous supply of Superiora magnolia leaves on hand to meet the call for Memorial day use.

George Wienhoeber had the finest and largest collection of azaleas in the city for Easter at his South Wabash avenue store, not to mention his usual magnificent show of other plants and cut flowers. Business was extra good with him and the total sales show a wonderful increase over those of last Easter.

Zech & Mann never enjoyed such a splendid Easter business as they did this year, for they had an exceptionally large supply of all seasonable stock, including the scarce items, particularly lilies, sweet peas and roses. Allie Zech says that every advance order booked was filled in full.

Magnolia Wreaths will be in brisk demand for Memorial Day this year so prepare for the rush by making them up during your spare time. You can afford to stock up now at this price.

Lieutenant Fred W. Haeger, formerly with the A. L. Randall Co., Edward Goldenstein, recently with Vaughan's Seed Store, and Allan Humason, well-known knight of the grip, now with the National army at Rockford, spent Easter with relatives and friends here.

Nic Dahm, Jr., of Morton Grove, who left to join the national army at Rockford several weeks ago, is now with the 602nd Engineers, Company B, at Camp Devens, Mass. Jakey Baumardt, another Morton Grove boy, is in the same company.

Peter Duris was more than pleased with the Central Floral Co.'s Easter business which shows a 25 per cent increase over that of last year. This firm has one of the prettiest retail stores in the city, not to mention one of the best locations.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner were agreeably surprised to find in comparing their Easter sales with those of 1917 that there was only a small difference, which is doing remarkably well. This firm received its first shipments of Spanish iris this week.

William F. Schofield, the North State street florist, reports a splendid Easter trade with a grand cleanup in all lines, particularly plants. He expects to move in his new store and flat building adjoining his present place on or about May 1.

Mrs. Herbach, with Labo, Joliet, was in the city last week buying stock for Easter. She reports business as good and was confident that her holiday trade would show a substantial increase over that of last year.

George Perdikas says that his Easter business was better than last year with a complete cleanup in plants. Lilies and bulbous stock in pots and pans were his leaders and best sellers.

Casper Manheim of 122nd Field Artillery now stationed at Houston, Texas, is home on a sick leave. He is a son of Harry Manheim for many years with Hørber Bros.

The Grossberg, Tyler, Finermann Co., successors to The Freres-Windler Co., opened for business April 1. D. E. Freres will be at the old stand for several months.

Roy Bindon, formerly with A. T. Pyfer & Co., is awaiting his call to the colors, having been found physically fit for military service by his local draft board.

Erne & Company had a good Easter trade which was much better than expected and compared favorably with that of 1917.

For Your Supply of CUT FLOWERS

 Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

The bodies of two boys were found in the north branch of the river at Miami avenue, March 31. One of them was identified as William Liebermann, 16 years old, 2509 West North avenue, and the other that of Hubert Musselmann, who started out together on a hunting trip, February 24, first mention of which was made in the March 23 issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. The funeral of both the boys was held Tuesday, April 2, with interment at Waldheim and Forest Home cemeteries. The late William Liebermann is a brother of Fred Liebermann, of Kennicott Bros. Co.

The Alpha Floral Co. had more business than it could handle for Easter and sold out completely in everything. Plants never sold better, especially lilies, and while a large supply was arranged for it was impossible to meet the demand. Sweet peas never had such a good call at fancy prices as this Easter which also holds true for cut flowers in general. Andrew Chronis was highly elated over the result and had every reason to be for the store was so crowded with customers at times that it was impossible to anywhere near handle the crowd.

Pöhlmann Bros. Co. had a large cut of extra fine roses for Easter this year which cleaned up at an early hour each day not to mention their fancy lilies and orchids. Their Easter trade was very satisfactory considering that a part of the large range at Morton Grove was closed last winter to conform with the wish of the fuel administrator and to meet the coal shortage. The plant department cleaned up completely in all lines of blooming stock especially lilies, which sold like hot cakes.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. had a splendid Easter business due largely to the fact that the Pyfer & Olsem greenhouses at Wilmette were in full crop with roses. Darwin tulips from the same range and their Murphy avenue place in large quantities cleaned up early at good prices.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. enjoyed a very satisfactory Easter business with a heavy out-of-town demand. Several large shipments of southern outdoor stock early in the week came in handy and sold like hot cakes, which helped swell their total sales considerably.

Miss Edna Bauer and Hans V. Yepson were quietly married at Evanston, April 1. The happy couple have the best wishes of their many friends for a safe voyage on the turbulent sea of matrimony. Mr. Yepson is with A. H. Schneider at Oak Park.

Kyle & Foerster had a banner Easter business with the sales showing a great increase over those of 1917. Their total sales for the month of March were the best in the history of the firm.

Mrs. Irene Williams, who has been conducting a retail florist business at 32 East Randolph street under the name of the Atlas Floral Co., has moved to 176 North Wabash avenue in the Le Moyne building after a most prosperous Easter trade. The Atlas Floral Co. was located at 32 East Randolph street for about 20 years and Mrs. Williams' many friends in the trade wish her every success in the new location. There are 20 trade concerns mostly wholesale florists in the building she is leaving compared to six in the one now occupied.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. never experienced such a brisk Easter demand for American Beauty roses as this year according to O. Johnson, who adds that the fancier grades averaged $50 per 100, which price has prevailed since the Christmas holidays. George Kaspar, his right-hand storeman, claims that the daily receipts of American Beauty roses during the two weeks before Easter was about 2000 per day.

The Fleischman Floral Co. had a magnificent showing of plants at its East Jackson boulevard store including fancy specimens of rhododendrons and azaleas. Ed. Mallinson and the regular force were assisted by J. F. Eagleston, Dick Parker and several others during the rush.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association handled a large supply of stock for Easter including roses and cleaned up nicely in practically all lines. The shipping trade was surprisingly brisk and the city demand never was so lively the day before Easter.

Philip J. Schupp has no complaint to make in regard to J. A. Budlong's Easter trade which was exceedingly good considering existing conditions and the general shortage of lilies. Roswell Schupp is serving on the jury for the first time this week.

George Reinberg is in good crop with roses but just missed Easter by a few days like a couple of the other growers, who experienced great difficulty in obtaining coal during the extreme shortage last winter.

The Chicago Florist, 35 East Adams street, reports that his Easter sales were better than those of 1917 with a particularly heavy run on sweet peas and violets.

Shiller had a most satisfactory Easter trade at both the west and north stores, and, while it has been too early to compare figures with last year, the indications are that the total sales will be fully as good, if not better. Plants, as usual, had the call and it was surprising how many orders there were for corsages, which kept the entire force on the jump at all times to keep pace with the demand. George Asmus was particularly well pleased over the heavy call for corsage work, which has been extremely quiet all season.

Wietor Bros. have booked several large orders for young rose stock the past week, which is now ready for delivery and leads one to believe that many of the growers are going to stay in business for another season even though the past year has been a most discouraging one. Rooted carnation cuttings are also moving nicely.

The George Wittbold Co. reports a very good Easter, with a satisfactory cleanup in all lines. The total sales were encouraging, notwithstanding the limited advertising that this firm did this year, and if their better class of customers had returned from the winter resorts in time this Easter would probably have been a record-breaker.

C. Frauenfelder, 3343 West Madison street, had a heavy run on plants, and cleaned up completely, as usual, in all lines. Corsages were in brisk demand and helped considerably to make the total sales compare favorably with those of 1917. Miss Edna Frauenfelder is now bookkeeper at this establishment.

Peter Reinberg is cutting from a good crop of Champ Weiland roses which are moving well at good prices considering the present market conditions. This house reports that it never had such a heavy call for yellow roses at any Easter as it did this year.

H. N. Bruns featured plants on a large scale at his West Madison street store, and had a heavy run on lilies and hyacinths. Trade in general was good and, as usual, he had a large cut of choice lily of the valley, which sold out early at high prices.

The Bohannon Floral Co. made a beautiful showing of plants at its East Monroe street store all during Easter week and seemed to have its share of business.

Rudolph Virus, 5324 Leland avenue, left April 3 for Portland, Me., with other national army men to join Uncle Sam's coast defenders.

L. Hockner, of the Peter Reinberg force, will open the carnival season with his concessions at East St. Louis this month.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports spring bulbs and general plant stock moving well.

C. O. Wilcox, of the W. W. Barnard Co., is back from a northern business trip.

EASTER BUSINESS GREATEST EVER KNOWN.

Retailers and wholesalers are unanimous in their reports that 1918 Easter's business was the greatest in this city's history. The weather was ideal, all that could be hoped for during the entire week preceding Easter, and business continued until a late hour Sunday afternoon. Easter lilies were in the lead everywhere, and the prices obtained for them were much higher than in other years. Medium sized plants in all varieties were the rule, although there were many fine, large specimens of azaleas, rhododendrons, fine lilac, hydrangeas, deutzias and rambler roses. There was a slight increase in the prices of bulbous stock, including hyacinths, freesias, tulips, jonquils, etc. Cyclamens were conspicuous by their absence. Some fine English primrose plants sold very well, and combination baskets and hampers of blooming plants met with much favor. Corsage work was very heavy, most of the florists' forces working all night for Easter delivery.

NOTES.

"The volume of business was immense" is the report from the W. J. & M. S. Vesey greenhouses. Easter lilies were all sold out here, and bulbous stock went fine. Roses were entirely sold out, and hundreds of orders were refused. A large number of Cattleya Schroderae and C. Trianae and cypripediums were cut for the Easter trade.

"Dutch gardens", lilac plants and rambler roses were featured at the Flick Floral Co. Novelties of Easter Greetings were offered and took very well with the public. Plants and cut flowers were in very heavy demand for this holiday, the volume of business being almost double that of last Easter.

John H. Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co., said: "I am satisfied that there has been a very great increase in this Easter's business over last years'. Prices for plants and cut flowers here were better than last year, although the medium class of trade was more in evidence this holiday.

Handsome azaleas, the largest ever seen in this locality, were displayed in the A. J. Lanternier store. This firm had large baskets and hampers of tulips, which they featured in both the single and double varieties. Mammoth hydrangeas and rambler rose plants were completely sold out.

The Freese Floral Co. reports business increased half again as much as last Easter. This firm had a wealth of large plants, and prices showed an increase over last year. Corsage work was a leader in the trade, with violets in the heaviest demand.

The New Haven Floral Co. did an immense Easter trade. They were all sold out on plants, carnations, and sweet peas, while the roses were just about equal to the heavy demand made upon them.

Comincavish, the Florist, on Spy Run, reports an increase in this Easter's business. His Easter lilies were all sold out. Corsage work was good here, although lilies and jonquils were the leaders.

Although the supply of Easter lilies was much greater this Easter than last year, at Edgar Wenninghoff's store they were entirely sold out. Plant baskets were a speciality here.

F. J. Knecht & Co., wholesale florists, had an unprecedentedly large cut of roses, notably Russell, Shawyer and Ophelia. A splendid crop of carnations went very well here also.

W. D. Bitner, of East Dewald street, sold all the Easter lilies he could get. Prices were good here, roses and carnations selling fine.

EASTER DEMAND CLEANS MARKET.

He was a wise man who, looking ahead, could read the Easter market this season. We feel safe in saying that at least nine out of ten were agreeably surprised in the demand, which took everything in sight. The fact that prices on the average were 25 per cent higher appeared only to accentuate the buying. Cut Easter lilies reached the extreme high price of $20 per hundred for the last thousand or two, the bulk of the stock going for $15. As one dealer put it, "$20 is a good price, but nobody benefits, as there are none to sell," which was the condition after Friday noon, with the exception of a few on Saturday that were opened with extreme heat and the additional 24 hours. This market was never before so bare of the Easter lily. Roses were also scarce; there were more white than any other color. American Beauties brought $7.50 per dozen for specials, and not enough of them at that. Good Ophelia commanded $15 to $20, as did also Russell, and even higher figures for the specials. Sweet peas, which had been so plentiful, were only in fair supply and jumped to as high as $2.50 to $3 for the specials. There was a good demand for violets, both single and double. Locals were not very plentiful, most of the stock coming from New York. There was a good supply of white lilac and also lily of the valley. On these the price was normal. Carnations were offered freely, particularly white, which lagged considerably behind the colored. Prices advanced 25 to 33 per cent. Exceptionally fine larkspur was seen and sold well. Good snapdragons were also a feature. Calla lilies were a quantity flower; $25 a hundred was the price for the first selection. Many were used in place of Easter lilies. Daffodils had their inning and the quality was fine. They were very popular and sold in large quantities. Cattleyas were seen in all the stocks, and found ready buyers. It was their first good demand since Christmas. Southern asparagus was much in evidence. The stock now coming to this market is very fine. It looks as if the greenhouse space now given to asparagus will have to take on something else. The wholesalers to a man were delighted with the snap and life of the buying demand. One dealer said: "There was no dickering; if the price was not right, well you do not have to take it. There is not enough to go around anyhow; out-of-town buyers will give more for it." "This will teach these retailers who bear the market by holding off until the last minute a lesson. I hope a lot of them got stuck and had to pay two prices week late. It certainly is hard lines to come so close, and then fail. Those who were able to deliver pots of lilies on Friday or Saturday, with half the flowers open, could easily get 15 cents per bud and flower. Rambler roses were unusually well flowered. Hydrangeas were also good, although another week in the greenhouse would have helped many of them. The bulbous stock was not up to the mark, particularly the hyacinths, which appear to have suffered from the exceptionally hard winter. The left-over azaleas were in very good shape, as were also nursery grown stock of amona and Hinodigiri, demonstrating that these and other late varieties would make excellent material for Easter forcing.

CLUB MEETING.

The feature of the April meeting of the Florists' Club was the illustrated lecture of Professor J. C. Saunders, state zoologist, who enumerated and showed on the screen the great numbers of insect pests which had been imported from foreign countries causing many millions of dollars in damage. All known remedies were described. His plan of killing all palm scale in greenhouses was a revelation to many and will be described in detail in these columns in the near future. He was given a rising vote of thanks for his intensely interesting lecture.

WITH THE WHOLESALERS.

The Leo Niessen Co. handled an immense quantity of cut flowers; white lilac, cattleyas, violets, sweet peas, carnations, roses, lily of the valley, and Easter and calla lilies were all quantity stocks, but in none was there any surplus, the cleanup on Saturday taking everything salable. Leo Niessen, stopping for a moment, said: "There is too much business at these holiday seasons; with our experienced force of over 50 employes, we are taxed to the utmost to handle it."

Manager Liggitt, of the S. S. Pennock Co.'s plant department, found a continuous demand for all well flowered Easter plants. Everything in all lines was sold, and thousands of pots of Easter lilies could have been handled had they been obtainable. "I tell you," said Mr. Liggitt, "too many of the trade have gotten cold feet; there is a big demand for the right kind of stock and it would sell on sight if the growers would only produce it."

The Joseph Heacock Co. had a very good supply of roses, particularly Killarneys. A shipment of something over a thousand specials, Hadley, Ophelia and others, was smashed up in the depot just after being loaded on a truck, which getting too close to the edge of the platform was struck by an engine and the boxes demolished. More orders than they could fill, showed the extent of the Easter demand.

Edward Reid said: "We will clean up on everything. Retailers who waited until the last day, thinking to bear the market, lost out this year. Easter lilies ran out on Friday. In fact, it was hard for us to take care of our regulars, so there was little left for the occasional and generally last-minute buyers." Thirty-five thousand double violets and 15,000 lily of the valley were features of the stock.

"We had an exceptionally fine cut of roses, which were in eager demand at good prices," said Manager Miller of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Calla lilies, sweet peas and carnations were also features. This has been the best Easter this firm has ever experienced.

Plenty of roses and a splendid market for them, and in fact everything else, was the situation at Eugene Bernheimer's. A very good Easter indeed is reported.

At the Berger Brothers' market, a splendid business was the report: "We could handle more stock in all lines, particularly Easter lilies, if we could only get them."

EASTER TRADE REPORTS.

A very satisfactory Easter business is the report from all branches of the trade. Comparatively little stock was left over, there being a general clean up both in plants and cut flowers. Various members of the trade voiced their experiences as follows:

Jos. Heacock Co.—"More demand than flowers; we could have sold much more. Our March business was the greatest in the history of the company."

London Flower Shop—"Trade very satisfactory. All our fancy novelties and plants sold well. Also a good business in cut flowers."

The retailers were equally well satisfied. George Craig said: "A very good Easter; we cleaned out much better than I expected."

Manager Liggitt of the S. S. Pennock Co.'s plant department handled more plants than ever, particularly medium priced stock.

John Habermehl—"Our plant and basket trade was tremendous. We took a chance, had the stock and sold it."

Robert Crawford, Jr.—"All sold out, except for a few ramblers. I call it a successful Easter."

NORMAL START FINISHES STRONG.

Business in the wholesale cut flower district during the early days of the past week was not above normal, but it had a good finish. The light supply of pot lilies and other good plants was favorable to the cut flower dealers; and, further, the supply of cut roses, for such a holiday as Easter, was light and prices soared. The following is a summary: Special American Beauties, $9 per dozen; such special roses as Ophelia, Mock, Stanley and Killarney Queen, $25 to $35 per 100; Russell, special, $60 per 100; Hadley, special, at the rate of $75 per 100; cattleyas, $1 to $1.25 per flower, wholesale rates; gardenias, $8 and $9 per dozen. We know of $12 per dozen being asked for gardenias at wholesale, but are not certain that it was paid. Carnations ran from $3 to $5 per 100, with $6 to $8 for very fancy stock. Cut lilies were 20 cents per flower; lily of the valley, $8 and $10 per 100. Sweet peas, Spencers, special, $3 per 100; yellow daisies, $2 to $2.50 per 100; violets, $1 to $1.25 per 100. A rather unusual feature for Easter was the slow movement in white carnations; they were plentiful, and the taste of buyers seemed to be more favorable to pink and red. Snapdragons were almost unsalable. Callas started well, but were slow at the finish.

April 1.—Business is light today, so is the supply of stock, but as the weather is clear and warm doubtless there will be a good supply before the last of the week. In the wholesale district it is generally agreed that Easter business was excellent, better than it has been for a number of years. Notwithstanding forebodings, there was enough stock to supply the demand; in fact, there were shipments of roses that arrived almost too late to catch the best of the Easter trade. Reports from all of the five boroughs of Greater New York, and from neighboring cities and towns, are to the effect that business was everywhere good.

NOTES.

J. S. Fenrich, 51 West 23th street, had a fine stock of roses from the Duckham-Pierson Co.'s range, Chat-ham, N. J., and many other good features.

William Mackie, 105 West 28th street, had a fine stock of Spencer sweet peas, which sold well. He was also well supplied with carnations.

The steamship, Nieuw Amsterdam, of the Holland-America Line, sailed from an American port March 28, carrying more than 2,000 passengers, many of whom were officers and sailors of the Dutch ships that were recently seized by our government. The Nieuw Amsterdam has had a varied career. She was held up for a long time last fall and was in Halifax harbor at the time of the great explosion. On her last trip to this country she brought a cargo of plants and gladiolus bulbs.

David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th street, have a large store, and it is always well filled with plants for the Easter trade. They had an exceptionally fine stock of lilies that were grown by A. L. Miller, of Jamaica; good azaleas, grown by Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., and many other plants. A feature not common in retail stores was a large stock of wallflower plants in 8 and 10 inch pots and they were well flowered and attractive.

The Astoria Florist (M. L. Vlachos), 2188 Broadway, had an exceptionally fine stock of plants. At the beginning of business, both his main floor and basement, the latter also being well fitted up as a store, were filled with plants. Noteworthy were genistas grown to standards and of exceptionally large size, Hiawatha and Perkins roses, lilies, azaleas and tulips in pans.

M. Goldstein, who has been three years with Meyer, 1062 Madison avenue, recently underwent an operation at the New York hospital, which was necessary before he could be accepted in the aviation branch of the army. Before he started for camp, Meyer and the staff presented him with a complete outfit and a gold wrist watch.

A leading and noteworthy feature at the store of Malandre Brothers, Broadway and 72nd street, was a collection of large acacias that are cultivated by the growers of this country. These tall and stately plants, well flowered, are an attraction in any situation. Many other good features were noticed at this store.

In our report of the flower show, mention was made of the exhibit of camellia blooms by W. R. Coe, of Oyster Bay, N. Y. His home and conservatory were destroyed by fire March 27, and almost all of his rare plants met destruction. He is a son-in-law of the late H. H. Rogers, of the Standard Oil Company.

The Cadieux Company, 1003 Madison avenue, had for Easter an exceptionally fine stock of pink rambler roses and many other good plants. A pleasing feature of this store is their Japanese room, where they have on exhibition a fine collection of bronze vases and other Japanese novelties.

Meyer, 1062 Madison avenue, carried a fine stock of standard and climbing roses, hydrangeas and other plants. Many baskets of plants, handsomely decorated with pussy willows and ribbon, were noted. A side line of Cupids

The 1st of May Thrift Stamp Day In The U. S. A.

The Active Co-operation of Every Reader of
The American Florist

Is Urgently Requested To Make It a Success

May 1st, 1918, will be observed throughout the United States as Thrift Stamp Day! On that day retail stores everywhere in every line of business will ask customers to take part of their change in Thrift Stamps! It will be patriotic for every man, woman and child to accept at least one Thrift Stamp as change on every purchase made that day—and to make as many purchases as possible on May 1st.

Here is a big, practical way of getting millions of Thrift Stamps into the hands of the people of the United States, and of insuring the success of the Government's War Savings Stamps campaign. Thrift Stamp Day will help everyone. It will prove a tremendous boost to business. On May 1st, 1918, the nation should do the biggest total retail business of any single day in our history! The beneficial habit of Thrift will be sown broadcast among the citizens of the U. S. A.! Most important of all, Uncle Sam will be furnished with the sinews of War and Victory!

American business must go "over the top" at once in a quick drive to make Thrift Stamp Day an overwhelming success. You wholesalers, you jobbers, you salesmen, must talk Thrift Stamp Day among your trade, arouse the enthusiasm of the retailers, the storekeepers, the clerks behind the counters. Uncle Sam needs your help. A practical plan has been prepared showing how each one of you can "do your bit" to make Thrift Stamp Day a red letter day in American business annals. Write for this plan today without fail. Remember, in helping Uncle Sam you are helping business and helping yourselves. Address Mr. W. Ward Smith, National War Savings Committee, 51 Chambers St., New York City.

NATIONAL WAR SAVINGS COMMITTEE

and dolls, cleverly arranged by Mrs. Meyer, attracted much attention.

At the meeting of the Florists' club, which will be held next Monday night, W. H. Elliott, of Boston, Mass., will deliver an address on "Greenhouse Business in Wartime," and Kenneth Gillett, of Southwick, Mass., will have for his subject, "Native Plants."

James G. Carlatas, whose store at the corner of Westchester avenue and the Southern boulevard, is the finest in the Bronx, said that business and prices were as good as last year, and that his only regret was that he did not have more plants.

The Boulevard Floral Co., 2391 Broadway, had a fine stock of lilies, bougainvilleas, azaleas, rhododendrons and other plants. The wife of one of the proprietors and a lady employee are clever decorators of baskets and combinations.

Louis Schmutz, Jr., a well-known grower of Flatbush, Brooklyn, has been very ill with pneumonia. The crisis has been passed and he is now believed to be on the road to recovery.

At Wadley & Smyth's, 491 Fifth avenue, a number of unusually fine standard plants were noticed in geraniums, fuchsias and heliotropes. This firm had an exceptionally fine business.

We noticed no finer stock of azaleas than that of John Manolos, Columbus avenue and 86th street. Lilies, rhododendrons and a variety of other plants were also noteworthy.

A neat and attractive retail store was opened a week before Easter at 26 East 85th street, near Madison avenue. It has been named the Park Florist.

Young & Nugent, 42 West 28th street, had a fine stock of Easter plants and sold all of them. All the dealers in green goods report good business.

The Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, had for Easter a particularly large and fine stock, having many lilies, all of which sold out well.

Malandre Brothers, Broadway and 72nd street, who had an exceptionally fine stock, reported better Easter business than last year.

N. J. Miller, who has a good store and a good family trade at Columbus avenue and 86th street, stated that he had done well.

Many of the retail stores have large plants of marguerite daisies from the range of Madsen & Christensen, Wood Ridge, N. J.

The Drakos Company, which has two stores on Broadway, both near Columbia University, reported an excellent business.

Bougainvilleas from the range of Emil Savoy, Secaucus, N. J., were great Easter attractions in a number of stores.

Pappas Brothers, 2216 Broadway, had a fine and well arranged stock of all seasonable plants.

P. F. McKenney, Fifth avenue and 42nd street, had a very excellent trade.

BROOKLYN RETAILERS.

S. Masur, 256 Fulton street, had a fine stock of bougainvilleas which he said sold better than any other plants. They were in large and small sizes and retailed at from $5 to $20. At the beginning of business, they were attractive features of his show windows.

James Conlon, 46 Smith street, had good business. He said that his chief regret was that he did not buy more lilies when he had a chance. The growers were sold out of lilies a week before Easter.

Mrs. Weir, manager of James Weir, Inc., 324 Fulton street, said that their business had been good and buying was active when we called. They carried a good variety of plants.

Joseph F. McCall, who has succeeded the late M. T. Keenan, at 406 Myrtle avenue, said he had good business and sold out well.

Joseph Trepel, who has seven stores here, had fine business and sold an immense quantity of stock.

Hugo Jahn, 710 Nostrand avenue, had a large stock of plants and cut flowers and sold out well.

N. Scoffes, 501 Nostrand avenue, said he had excellent Easter business.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

VISITED CHICAGO: Ralph M. Ward, New York; H. W. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill.

J. C. VAUGHAN and wife expect to return from Florida to Chicago this week.

THE Argentine has a wheat acreage of 17,864,412 for the season of 1917-18, against 16,088,967 in 1916-17.

FRENCH BULB growers are very anxious as to whether our government will prohibit importations of their stock.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade April 3 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.

At least seven carloads of Japan lily bulbs have been frozen enroute and rejected on arrival at New York during the past three months.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The rainfall of 12 inches in this section, up to March 21, with prospects on that day for more, means millions to the state.

FLORAL PARK, N. Y.—John A. Hoberg, who was foreman for E. S. Miller, at Wading River, has been engaged by John Lewis Childs as farm manager.

CAPITOLA, CALIF.—The Brown Bulb Ranch reports this season's freesia sales exceed those of last year. Tulips, also a specialty of this firm, have done well this season.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are keeping much better, with prices about the same as last week, $3.00 to $3.25 for colors and $4.50 for whites in 10 to 20 bushel lots.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—R. H. Shumway reports order filling 20 days behind, with 35,000 orders in hand. H. W. Buckbee reports business bountiful, but stock hard to find.

It is generally conceded that the mail orders for seeds for this season reached their apex before March 10, the decline in number and volume having been steady since that date.

SEEDSMEN who have been carrying funds in hand to the credit of German seed concerns have been ordered to turn said funds over to the United States government custodian of alien property and many have already complied.

TOLEDO, O.—March clover, cash, was unchanged April 1, at $20.10, closing at the same price as on March 30. Receipts were 300 bags, shipments, 147. Timothy lost its earlier gains; old quoted at $3.67; new, $3.70; April, $3.70; September, $4.35.

MIAMI, FLA.—Truckers in southern Florida who were unable to ship green beans in time last year saved their seed and realized good prices or saved money this year. Encouraged by this, some have bought seed beans to grow seed, while seedsmen locally have given out their surplus stocks to truckers to grow seed beans on shares.

THE Albert Dickinson Co. recently issued an interesting little booklet on farm seeds to which the Country Grain Shipper refers as "The Seed Wheat Gospel According to St. Albert."

THE War Trade Board announces negotiations completed between United States and Japanese shipbuilders for the purchase of 12 Japanese ships of approximately 100,000 tons deadweight capacity.

HERBERT CHASE, president of the Chase & Rupp Produce Co., Delta, Colo., says that business is about at an end for this year. His firm has had fair trade, which speaks well for that territory, many produce men having had hard work to make both ends meet. Present work includes the cleaning and shipping of beans, which will last through April. Mr. Chase is seedsman for his county, looking after the providing of seed for farmers who otherwise would be unable to plant.

Seed and Nursery Stock Exempt.

The director general has issued an order, No. C. S. 1 A, March 25, exempting seeds and nursery stock, under certain conditions, from embargoes, and directing that no embargoes shall be made by the carriers except and until expressly authorized by the director general. On March 19, 1918, all the regional directors were instructed to give special attention to the movement of less than carlot shipments of seeds and nursery stock.

CURTIS NYE SMITH.

Beans Fairly Steady.

Much of the best stock has been bought for army and navy use and remaining supplies show a considerable percentage of weather damage. Growers are still receiving $12.00 per 100 pounds bulk for pea, medium and Yellow Eye at country elevators. Michigan Navys were quoted $12.50@12.95 per 100 pounds f. o. b. Grand Rapids, compared with $13.50 per 100 pounds three weeks ago. Large distributing markets were fairly steady. New York pea beans ranged to jobbers $13.50@14.00, California whites $13.75@14.25, Michigan navys $13.50@14.00 and Colorado Pintos $9.15@10.25 per 100 pounds sacked.—Market News, March 28.

Seed Plant Taken by Government.

The large Nungesser-Dickinson Seed Co.'s establishment, at Twelfth and Hudson streets, Hoboken, N. J., has been taken over by the government at a price said to be approximately $900,000. The plant is one of the largest in Hoboken, and is the most extensive of its kind along the entire Atlantic seaboard. It is not thought that there will be any change in management or in the conduct of affairs at the plant. Its machinery and products will most likely be lined up to help the government in its programme of increased food crops, in which seeds play the biggest part. The Nungesser-Dickinson Co. is prepared to help make effective the slogan that "Food will win the war."

Potato Markets Unsettled.

While potatoes made sharp recovery from recent low points in some potato producing sections, not all advances have been maintained and some primary markets, especially the western, have sagged to new low points. Shippers paid growers for No. 1 Whites, bulk trackside, at Presque Isle, Me., $1.21@1.36 per 100 pounds, closing at the top 40 cents above the low point two weeks ago. Rochester, N. Y., quoted $1.00@1.18; Grand Rapids, Mich., held about steady at 80 cents; Waupaca, Wis., quoted 65@70 cents, advancing 10@15 cents; Greeley, Colo., was weak at 65 cents; Idaho Falls, Idaho, lost 25 cents, quoting mostly 60 cents; Portland, Ore., declined to 75 cents. F. o. b. sales, usual terms, No. 1 sacked White stock ranged $1.50@1.65 and bulk $1.45 at Rochester, N. Y., and $1.22@1.35 at Grand Rapids, Mich. Shipping markets were generally unsettled and buyers inclined to hold off. Large supplies were offered for sale, but car shortage kept shipments down to within the recent range of 2,700 to 3,100 cars per week. Total movement was 2,978 cars, including Minnesota 551, Maine, 440, Wisconsin, 419, Colorado, 327 cars. The large city markets, after recovering somewhat, have followed an uneven trend with a lower general jobbing range of $1.25@2.00 per 100 pounds for No. 1 sacked white stock. Price fell to $1.25 in St. Louis and held near $2.00 in New York, the range being highest in the east and south and lowest in the southwest and northwest. Best sacked round white stock ranged $1.90@2.00 in New York and in Boston, $1.50@1.70 in Baltimore, and southern markets ranged $1.40@1.75. Carlots of whites, sacked, fell back to $1.00@1.10 in Chicago. Minneapolis and St. Paul, Colorado whites ranged $1.50@1.70 sacked in southwestern markets and inferior carlots of Colorado McClures sacked fell to 60 cents per 100 pounds in Kansas City. Wisconsin and Michigan sacked stock ruled generally $1.35@1.60. Carlots of Minnesota Red River Ohios sold in Kansas City at $1.75 per 100 pounds sacked.—Market News, March 28.

Import Embargo.

A special Washington dispatch published in the Journal of Commerce, March 23, has the following, in part:

"Constituting the first step in the direction of a radical curtailment of imports, the War Trade Board has promulgated a list of restricted imports of 82 commodities falling into the 'less essential' category. The saving in tonnage which will be effected under the new order is estimated officially at 1,500,000 deadweight before October next, which means several hundred thousand tons of ships will be freed for other service. This first list is to be followed gradually by five or six others, but in cases where doubt exists of the wisdom of embargo, or where important interests are affected, hearings will be held by the board before action is determined upon.

"With the primary motive to release tonnage for urgent war needs, it is planned to extend the ban with minimum inconvenience of the people, of interference with industry or business, and with a maximum of consideration for the interests of allies and neutrals. All shipments leaving foreign ports prior to April 15 are permitted to come forward for the purpose of subjecting contracts to as little interference as possible. As this is an important matter, it should be understood that under certain conditions return cargoes from the other side of the Atlantic may be permitted.

"The prohibition set up is absolute for ocean-borne traffic, except that imports are permitted unless specifically ruled against as a return cargo from Europe. This is explained by the fact that, owing to the heavy movement of materials eastward across the Atlantic, there is more available cargo space on the return voyage. As it is essential to keep ships moving to Europe as rapidly as possible, the board will take into consideration as a matter of prime importance the possible delay in loading the return cargo in granting licenses for imports from Europe.

"Included in 'List No. 1' are the following: Agricultural implements, all acids, all salts of soda (except nitrate of soda and cyanide of soda), manure salts, manufactures of vegetable fibers and textile grasses (except jute, assumed to include raffia), plants, trees, shrubs and vines, beans and lentils from Europe only, dried peas either in their natural state or prepared or preserved, including all from Europe.

"It should be borne in mind by importers that the publication of the list in no wise relieves them of the necessity of applying for license to import articles not on the list, as all commodities require an import license except such as are now permitted to be imported under general licenses."

The semi-monthly report of the United States department of agriculture issued March 23 shows the condition of truck crops on March 15, based on the reports of a large number of correspondents throughout the southern growing sections: Cabbage, 72; celery, 66; onions, 75; early Irish potatoes, 85; tomatoes, 74; snap beans, 81; cucumbers, 80; lettuce, 69; green peas, 73; strawberries, 81.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 2.—Mushrooms, home-grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per carton; lettuce, box, 25 to 30 cents; radishes, 35 to 60 cents per dozen bunches; celery, $2.00 to $2.25 per box; tomatoes, per 6 baskets, $3.50 to $5.00; cucumbers, per box, $2.75 to $4.00.

New York, April 1.—Celery, per crate, $1.25 to $2.00; cucumbers, $1.25 to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, 60 cents to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.50 to $5.00.

Florida Soil and Climate.

E. Stanley Brown, proprietor of The Dahlia Farm, East Moriches, N. Y., who has spent his winters at Miami, Fla., for a number of years, writes interestingly of that section in a recent communication, the difference in growing conditions between the east and the west coast being remarkable. The soil on the west coast and in the central part of the state, he reports, is splendidly adapted to truck gardening, as is evidenced by the immense acreage devoted to celery, cabbage and onions, while at Plant City it is said that 200,000 quarts of strawberries were being shipped daily during the last week of March. The soil seems to be of a heavy clay nature, and runs in spots or selected areas. The east coast, from Jacksonville south, is inclined to be more sandy, with a gradual inclination to rock as one goes deeper. In Dade county it is rock on the surface, and in excavations this formation is noted as deep as 20 feet. The east coast has the advantage in climate, taking Miami for example, there being no fogs or damp atmosphere at night, while the balmy breezes from the ocean prove cool and refreshing.

Vegetables Under Glass.

When planting tomatoes, either in solid beds or in benches, bear in mind that it is doubtful if anything is gained by reducing the spacing below 24 inches each way. Tomatoes, being a fruit-bearing plant, require ample supplies of phosphate; hence, to a liberal supply of manure add bone-meal to balance up the plant food.

Fumigation by tobacco smoke is very dangerous to tomatoes, and also to radishes. Greenfly on lettuce can be controlled by spraying with nicotine. Double the ordinary formula, spray in the evening when the outside air is quiet, and shut down your ventilation for several hours, or all night. If well done, every fly will be killed, whether you hit him or not, as the air will act as a carrier. This method permits local applications without fumigating the whole house or range.

Those who wish to try cucumbers should go slowly to start plants, as 30 days are about all that are needed to produce good plants in 60°, and less than that is not good for this plant. Where whitefly bothers cucumbers and tomatoes, it is also well to know that no tobacco spray or fumigant is a control. Cyanide of potassium fumigation is the present remedy.

Where cauliflower is forced, no lack of water should be permitted. This crop is extremely sensitive to dryness—even for a few hours. When sunshine follows a dark spell, and the foliage is soft and wilts during the noon hours, sprinkle several times, either with the mechanical line or use the hose. Cauliflower is a seashore plant and enjoys a frequent "dip."

For producing cabbage plants for outdoor use, select the coolest spot, as the seedlings are easily ruined by moisture, heat and plant food. Just as soon as the seedlings are erect, withhold water entirely. This is true also of tomato and lettuce seedlings—grow them dry, and let them hunt for food and moisture. Thus strong plants with good roots are grown, such as can resist outdoor reverses.

When testing seeds for vitality, always try them in a proper temperature and in sandy soil or pure sand. Such subjects as corn, beans, cucumbers, melons, tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, etc., should not be expected to show up a true stand in a temperature below 60°.

Hamamelis Mollis.

The history of this beautiful witch hazel, which was awarded the R. H. S. first class certificate March 12, 1918, is interesting. The species was discovered and introduced in 1879 by Charles Maries when travelling in China on behalf of James Veitch & Sons. Plants were grown in the Coombe Wood nursery of the firm for 20 years or so without attracting particular attention. Eventually the late George Nicholson, of Kew, brought the shrub prominently into notice, and there was soon a considerable demand for Hamamelis mollis, as the beauty of the older kinds of Asiatic witch hazel had by that time led to their being extensively planted. Though all the species are beautiful, H. mollis is generally regarded as the finest. It is remarkable that a large number of winter or very early spring flowers are yellow. For example, besides this hamamelis we have barberries, forsythias, Jasminum nudiflorum, the winter aconite, narcissi and crocuses, all with yellow blossoms.—W. T. in London Gardeners' Chronicle.

BOSTON CONFERENCE, APRIL 18.

The next gardeners' conference under the auspices of the National Association of Gardeners will be held in Boston, Thursday afternoon, April 18. The programme is being worked out by the local committee and will be announced shortly.

At the request of the Nassau County, N. Y., Horticultural Society, attention is again directed to the following resolution introduced by it:

"A member of a horticultural society removing to another locality, and being desirous of associating himself with the horticultural society in the locality to which he has gone, should become eligible to full membership therein if he is in good standing, without the payment of dues to the end of the fiscal year, and vice versa. In other words he would simply be transferred from one society to another without any extra monetary charge whatsoever."

The following societies adopted this resolution at the time it was submitted and it is now operative between them:

Nassau County, N. Y., Horticultural Society.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Horticultural Society.

Southampton, N. Y., Horticultural Society.

Dutchess County, N. Y., Horticultural Society.

Tuxedo, N. Y., Horticultural Society.
North Westchester, N. Y., Agri. and Hort. Society.

Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society.

Morris County, N. J., Hort. Society.

EASTER BUSINESS WONDERFUL.

Easter week dawned bright and clear, and from Monday morning to Easter Sunday night the sun did not cease shining. This kind of weather, considering the unusually early Easter, was what florists had been praying for and the result of it was that blooming plants that had been a little backward came to full beauty at the psychological moment. Stock of all kinds never looked better, and the business enjoyed was simply wonderful. Bulbous stock, due to the fine weather, was sufficient even for the extraordinary demands. Lilies, however, were inadequate but it was easy to sell other plants. The demand for azaleas was light and the supply was limited. Hydrangeas were plentiful and took the place in favor formerly occupied by the azalea. Tulips were seen in great quantities and were favorites with the buying public. Daffodils and hyacinths ranked next. There were scarcely enough cut flowers to supply the heavy demand occasioned by the fine weather. Sweet peas were much sought after, as were violets, but the stocks were soon exhausted. Carnations were in good supply, as were Killarney and Ophelia roses. American Beauties were hard to get. All in all, this Easter was the best week the trade has ever enjoyed in this city.

NOTES.

The La Salle-Koch Flower department put on one of the biggest and finest Easter flower shows ever seen in this vicinity. The entire auditorium on the eighth floor was devoted to this purpose and it was a beautiful sight. A striking feature was a large bed of daffodils and another of hyacinths. Here too were to be seen the largest flowering hydrangeas in the city. The department did a big business throughout the week.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman, back on the job again after a two weeks' illness, transacted the biggest Easter business of her long and successful career. Her display window was very attractively arranged and the interior of her store was full to the brim with beautiful plants. Large hydrangeas enjoyed special favor at her store.

Schramm Brothers had a magnificent display of blooming plants, taking up two of their largest houses on Cherry street. Tulips, hydrangeas and daffodils were featured in this display and were sold in great quantities.

Harry Heintz was the grower of the splendid specimen hydrangeas that were so much admired in flower shops.

Harry had great success with his plants this Easter, and as a result sold out completely at an early hour.

Krueger Brothers, East Toledo growers, had their new store at Clark and Nevada streets, as well as the two houses destroyed by the blizzard this winter ready for the big Easter rush and sold out completely.

Other florists who report the biggest trade on record are Miss Helen Patten, Helmer Flower Shop, Scottwood, Greenhouses, Max Spanner, Mrs. E. Sander, and Feniger's Flower Shop.

Metz & Bateman made good use of their large basement for a flower show of unusual completeness. The firm reports a tremendous Easter trade.

Koelker Brothers not only enjoyed a fine trade at their St. Clair street store, but also cleaned up a big cut of sweet peas to other florists.

EVERGREEN SPECIALISTS

LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA

Box 404,

Dundee, Illinois

These Prices Are Intended for the Trade Only.

St. Louis Snap.

After growing this wonderful Snap, for the past three years, we have decided to put it on the market, and as a duty to your business you should have some to grow this coming season.

In color it is all that can be desired in a lavender pink. In growth it is no doubt the strongest growing commercial variety ever put on the market. We are now cutting strong spikes from four to six feet long. The heads of blooms are twelve inches long or more. The color does not fade and the spike keeps longer than any Snap we have ever grown. Above all, it is a great winter bloomer. We have cut constantly through the past winter months. Any St. Louis florist will testify to the above—Ask them about Rowe's St. Louis Snap.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

King Greenhouses

Keep Summer With You The Whole Year Round.

On account of their sturdy, special construction, which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty. The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

EASTER TRADE SHOWS INCREASE.

Easter lilies are very scarce and there were not enough of them to supply the demand for the large holiday call. They were also much higher in price than in previous years, retailing at $4 per dozen blooms or 35 cents per bud and flower. Bulbous stock, spring flowers, roses and carnations were plentiful. Sweet peas were excellent and brought good prices. Azaleas and rhododendrons were very scarce, but lilies and deutzias took their place. Baskets and birchbark boxes of growing plants were as popular as ever. Business was very good; in fact greater than last year.

NOTES.

Hugo Teute had planned a bumper crop of lilies, but they failed to materialize on time this year. He had, however, excellent Darwin tulips in pots and a fine cut of carnations.

H. E. Wilson is showing attractive displays of daffodils, pussywillows, etc., in boxes with designs painted in natural colors. Miss Hattie Ellis is the designer.

Edwin C. Kaelber, now in the government service at Washington, visited this city on a furlough during the past week.

J. B. Keller Sons are featuring very attractive baskets of lavender cinerarias and genistas. CHESTER.

EASTER DEMAND AS GOOD AS EVER.

The Easter trade was in full swing, and florists were well satisfied with the volume of business. Lilies were more plentiful than the florists a few weeks ago expected them to be. For a time it looked as though they would be scarce here, and the rumor was persistent that one Council Bluffs, Ia., florist was seeking to corner the market. Apparently, he did not succeed, for all the local florists had great quantities of them and were able to make some excellent special displays. Carnations were a little scarce and sold for $1 a dozen, such as were on hand. There was no indication of retrenchment on the part of the flower-buying public, and the demand was equally as good as ever before. Extra help had to be employed in some of the local shops, and by the middle of the week the stores were crowded. Lilies were in special demand for decorating the churches. A. E. L.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Early Roses.

The rose bed should be pruned and then spaded as early as possible after the ground has opened and if the canes have been buried the covering should be removed and the canes cut back. To properly prune a bed of hybrid perpetual roses is a careful, painstaking piece of work. This work is too often done in a careless, haphazard manner, and by many every variety is cut back alike. To get the best results, a study of the varieties is necessary; for instance, strong growing varieties like General Jacqueminot and Magna Charta can be cut back and the small wood cut out much more severely than Prince Camille de Rohan of Mme. Gabriel Luizet. When pruning it is first necessary to determine whether quantity or quality is the most to be desired. If quantity is wanted, more wood can be left and six to eight eyes left on the canes. If quality is the main object, this must be obtained at the expense of quantity, and the strong canes only retained and these cut to two or three eyes, depending on how the eyes are located. The top eye that is left should be pointed out from the main stem so that when the growths start they will not crowd toward the center. This will allow plenty of room for development and a good circulation of air through the plant. After the bushes are pruned the soil should be spaded good and deep and leveled off.

Bedding Stock.

The general florist will now have his hands full with bedding stock, which should now be spread out and given the necessary room. The geraniums should be spaced, and if any have grown too tall to make shapely plants the tops should be cut back, but at the present day the trade wants a geranium in bloom at bedding time, and very little pinching should be done after the first of April, for it will take from then until the first of June to produce a new branch with a flower. Ageratums, alternantheras, alyssums, heliotropes and like blooming plants should be kept on the move and be given good light positions. Salvia should be kept pinched back until the latter part of the month, which should produce fine, shapely plants. The coleus should be rooted and the top rubbed out as soon as established in the pots. Seedlings should be potted or flatted, the former preferred if a price can be obtained commensurate for the extra labor, but if flatted give them room enough to develop properly. Cannas will now require a warm, light location and plenty of root room. The one great factor in growing good bedding stock is, at this season, to keep the plants moving and never allow them to get a check, for if once severely checked a good plant is an impossibility.

Potting Young Stock.

At this season of the year the plant grower will have thousands of young seedlings to pot or place in flats and as many more to shift from a small pot to a larger size, and it does not seem that any instruction in potting should be necessary, but we chanced not long ago to see a boy potting and wondered if the plants would live and we then saw in the houses many of the plants which had been potted struggling for existence. It seems to be the general idea with the young gardener that the one that can pot the most plants in a given time is the smartest, regardless of how well it is done and how the plants afterward grow. The young man whom we saw would fill the pot full and then make a hole in the soil with his finger, place the seedling in the hole and then press the top soil around the stem. The chances were that the roots of many of these plants were still hanging in an enclosed hole in the center of the pot, for the soil should have been firmed around the roots. That he could handle a large number of plants in a given time was no question, but a much better plant can be grown if the soil is made firm around the roots first and then the top firmed down. The same thing happens in transplanting where the loose soil is thrown around between the plant and the pot and the top then firmed down. A little soil should be first thrown in the bottom of the pot and the plant placed in this, then a little soil around the plant, which should be firmed down, then a little more soil, which can be pressed down from the top. This will take longer, but the plant will live and grow enough better to pay for the extra pains.

Peonies.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the peony beds should be forked over and the manure mulch that was placed on them last fall should be forked or spaded in, but let this be done by a careful man, or at least not by help that knows nothing about this work. The young growths start very early and are very tender, so it is best not to fork too close to the crowns, but loosen up all the soil around the plants. It is also well to leave the stems covered as deep as they have been all winter, for a sharp frost may injure a stem that has been protected through the severe winter and then subjected to sharp cold. But the loosening of the soil to good depth will conserve the moisture and allow the air to get into the soil. If the plants were not mulched with manure in the fall, it is well to spread some old manure, not fresh, on the beds before spading and fork it in.

Although the fall is the best time to transplant peonies, yet if not done and it is desired or necessary to move them, they can be transplanted early in the spring, but this must be done before the growths are above the surface of the ground and as much soil left about the roots as possible. These plants make their young roots in the fall, and if any attempt is made to shake the soil off the roots will be broken doing this. Divisions must therefore be carefully made, so as to disturb the roots as little as possible. The dry roots that are purchased at this time are much better planted in pots or boxes until the roots are formed in the soil and later transplanted to the ground. It cannot be expected that plants of this kind will produce any flowers this year, for it will only be possible to get them established in their new location the first season.

Flowers Relieve War Shadows.

Even though we are in a great war, that is no reason for taking all the joy out of life. Every little while an eminent dollar-a-year or stay-at-home patriot rises in his place and asserts that "Flowers are not a necessity." A great poet once wrote:

"Hold thou the good; define it well:
For fear divine Philosophy
Should push beyond her mark and be Procureess to the Lords of Hell."

Therefore we hold that anything that is altogether good, and with no taint of evil, is necessary. We see soldiers by the thousands; we read, think and dream of war; therefore, more than ever, we occasionally need flowers and other beautiful and uplifting gifts to temporarily take our minds from the sadness and wickedness of the world. Remember, there is a time to rejoice as well as a time to mourn. If we mourn continually we are getting in the shadow of the madhouse.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

It is but just a month until Mothers' day comes again. The thousands and thousands of young men who have gone from home to fight for their country should give the celebration this year an added significance. Their thoughts will be of home and mother, and their mothers will certainly have them constantly in mind. It is none too soon to begin to feature the day. At first, just a good sized card with "Mothers' Day, May 12, the second Sunday in May," should be displayed in both window and store.

It is now window box time; push the sale of these gay window ornaments. Many orders can be received if the proper energy is put into hunt-

COAL FACTS.

At the April meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club well known coal experts predicted a shortage of coal the coming winter and gave substantial reasons for it.

The coal men further said it is comparatively easy to get coal now and advised florists to put in their supplies of the best grade obtainable without delay.

In addition it was emphasized that good coal takes no more storage space than the poorer grades and that the good coal lasts longer.

The government is not likely to seize coal in storage as long as there is any on track.

ing up possible openings. To be successful, however, one must have enthusiasm for the idea, believe in it, be prepared to talk to anyone interested, or even indifferent people, in such a convincing manner that they will see how much better the house will look, the pleasure they will get out of the flowers, and the satisfaction it will be to them to help in making the "city beautiful."

Flowers will be cheaper now, and special sales will be in order to help keep up the interest in the store; $1.00 boxes, or tumbler baskets at $1.00 to $1.50, can be featured in the window and sold in quantity at a very good margin. Aside from the immediate profit, there is also an advertising value that follows such display. Many persons will speak to one another of the window, or of the baskets or boxes as wonderful bargains in flowers. It is sure to attract and draw business from people who have much more to spend, but are on the lookout for the full worth of their money. If possible, secure regular orders for week-end delivery of such articles, and thus use up regular stock that might go to waste. Pans of English daisies, pansies or forget-me-nots are good at this time. Do not be afraid to run a quantity as a special. A block together makes a good show that draws attention, while just a few are hardly noticed. Trim the pans up with paper—they will look much more inviting.

Always be prepared for funeral orders, the great mainstay of the business. Many an order has been missed because it could not be turned out at once. Cycas or magnolia wreaths, finished in themselves, or ready with a few minutes work with cut flowers to look much more elaborate, are lasting and should be on hand at all times. A well made wreath or two of galax are always good ornaments for the refrigerator or flower case, and bring in many a dollar that would not otherwise be landed. Be on the job when a committee calls who have charge of selection of funeral pieces. They have likely been elsewhere, but it is up to you, however, to land the order and it can be done if you show in your preparedness that you make this work a specialty. Tact in finding out how much they have to spend is of assistance.

Mothers' Day.

Plants and flowers have at all times an elevating and refining influence. With their beautiful and great variety of form, color and delightful fragrance, they present the highest type of beauty. All sentiments of love and adoration are associated with flowers as being the most appropriate and beautiful of the gifts of Nature.

When Miss Anna Jarvis resolved to devote one day each year, the second Sunday in May, to the adoration and memory of her mother, who had passed away, flowers were at once associated with this observance; and, as the white carnation was her mother's favorite flower, she placed a vase filled with them by her portrait and also wore some in her honor.

The sentiment, the adoration and love of mother, which is inherent in the hearts of all, has from the first been glad of the opportunity offered to use flowers to give expression to this feeling, in gifts of plants and favorite blossoms to the living mother, also to be worn in her honor, or that of the dear one who has passed away.

It is an old story—how quickly the beautiful custom became popular and spread to every part of the country, until now it is one of the recognized annual floral events, of great importance to the trade. The greatest observance of the day, particularly in connection with the use of flowers, has been in the communities where there exists the greatest co-operation of the trade to encourage the use of flowers in the observance of the day. It is this co-operation, this getting together, of the trade to arouse the sentiment for the proper observance of the day, that is of the greatest importance.

The possibilities of this day are great; as before mentioned, in some localities it has become a great factor, but in others its influence is scarcely felt, the difference being in the lethargy of the trade. The love of mother is just as great in Philadelphia as in Cleveland, but the sale of flowers for this occasion in the Ohio city, with one third the population of the Quaker City, is more than four times as great, solely because the florists of Cleveland are alive to the opportunity. They believe in the day, are enthusiastic, they see its possibilities, and work (both individually with their talents and together with their money) to mold public opinion through the news and advertising columns of the public press.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson's publicity campaign, which has been so successful, has been financed by the Cleveland Florists' Club, which spends over than nothing, but is still a very feeble attempt at publicity. There should be an efficient display of everything pertaining in any way to mother love. All the art stores carry pictures of mothers with children. Whistler's pic-ers' day last year, contained a number of photographs of handsome, elderly, motherly looking women, which he had been able to secure. These, together with a large etching of Whistler's mother, appropriate window cards and a decorative setting of plants and flowers, in which there were no carnations, attracted great attention.

"Flowers for May 12, Mothers' Day." "Honor Your Mother or Her Memory With Flowers." These are good window cards. Use the cards and the literature of the national publicity committee of the S. A. F. Help them in this campaign, which is solely for your benefit. All the work done is a labor of love. No one profits, except as it comes over his own counter. Put their plans to work as you would a new employee. Add a contribution to your next salary list and send it to Secretary John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York. It will work, not only one week, but pull for you all the year.

Mothers' Day Window Display.

Holm & Olson, prominent St. Paul, Minn., florists, call attention to what should be a capital idea for stimulating Mothers' day business by members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery by the use of appropriate window displays a short time before the day and specially featuring the occasion. A further suggestion in connection with the plan is that the F. T. D., and perhaps the publicity committee of the S. A. F., be asked to offer cash prizes as an incentive so that not only members of the F. T. D. but all florists in all sections of the country would do their best in what would be a wonderful advertisement for the trade in general, and prize winning displays and others possessing originality could be published in the trade press, in order that the St. Paul florist could get new ideas from his brother craftsman in New York, and even Boston might get a few pointers from a window display in Denver.

CRIB OF SWEETHEART ROSES.

$2,500 in this work during the year, and receives 10 times the publicity ordinarily obtained from such expenditure. In an educational campaign of this kind, the use of flowers for this or that occasion is encouraged until the increased demand is felt by the whole trade.

AGGRESSIVE METHODS.

The greatest benefit, however, comes to those who, by their individual efforts, original ideas in window display, great variety of stock, improved service and aggressive business methods, are the best equipped and most ready for the demand. It is this individual action and efficiency that counts. If everyone in the trade would take it upon themselves to exploit the day, the results would be wonderful. So many, however, do nothing to encourage or make new business, being satisfied to take what comes along. Some even go so far as to discourage the movement, saying: "Why advertise the day and make a demand for white carnations so that I have to pay three prices for them? It only makes trouble for me with my customers, and hurts my business."

The white carnation feature should always be kept in the background. This selection of color in white or bright flowers for mother, living or passed away, is a great mistake. Please your mother or honor her memory with her favorite flower, or with any—for all are beautiful and appropriate. Plants, "gifts that will grow," are just as appropriate as flowers and often more acceptable.

It is of the greatest importance that the day be featured long in advance. To put a few flowers in the window a day or two before, together with a card announcing the day, is better ture of his mother is considered ideal. Hovenden's "Breaking Home Ties" is another of national fame, showing a mother giving her son her last admonitions as he is leaving home. Henry Penn's window, in featuring Moth-

EASTER TRADE.

Additional Reports Most Gratifying.

Since our summary of the Easter demand for 1918, based upon reports received from all parts of the country up to the time of going to press last week, and which were published in part on pages 573-574 of that issue, many expressions supplementing the feeling of satisfaction of the trade in general have been received. Instances where the volume of business this year was not as good as in 1917 are exceptionally rare, and are easily accounted for in nearly every case by a supply inadequate to meet the unusually strong demand. In addition to the condensed reports previously published, the following will doubtless be of interest as evidence of the splendid trade in all sections:

WASHINGTON, D. C.—According to George C. Dahlglish, the Easter demand in this city was about 50 per cent better than a year ago with an increase in the price of bulbous stock, other offerings being about the same as in 1917. The supply of small plants was not equal to the demand and high priced stock did not move any too fast. In cut flowers, the supply was ample except in sweet peas and violets, and everything in the shops sold readily. It was one of the best Easter trades ever experienced in this city, resulting in a general cleanup.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH—D. E. Law experienced a 25 per cent decrease in this year's Easter demand, with prices about the same, except in lilies, which were 10 cents higher per bud and bloom than in former years, even though of poor quality. Rose plants and cinerarias enjoyed a good sale. Tulips and daffodils moved slowly. The supply of cut stock was good. Customers were willing to pay good prices but insisted on quality in proportion. Mediocre stock was refused at any figure; several stores failed to clean up for this reason.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—The Pike's Peak Floral Co., with last year's prices prevailing, had practically the same volume of business as at that time. Excepting lilies, the supply of both pot plants and cut flowers was equal to the demand. In the former, the big call was for lilies and bulbous stock. Carnations, roses, violets and sweet peas were leaders in the cut stock class. Sales were more numerous than last year, but the amounts, individually, were somewhat less.

DAYTONA, FLA.—The Royal Art Floral Co. enjoyed an increase in its Easter business of about 20 per cent, as compared with the corresponding period of 1917. All flowering plants were cleaned out by Saturday night, with lilies, roses and spring flowers most called for. Hydrangeas did not move very fast. In cut stock, there was a shortage of lilies and violets. During the week preceding Easter Sunday this firm filled 138 telegraph and mail orders.

OMAHA, NEB.—Hess & Swoboda had a better Easter trade than a year ago, although there was a shortage of both cut flowers and plants, especially lilies, which were sold out the day before Easter. Roses and medium priced baskets moved well. Snapdragons had a good call at $3 per dozen, and yellow callas sold well as a novelty. Bulbous stock was inferior, compared to other years, due to late arrival and planting. The weather was of the finest.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—At the establishment of N. B. & C. E. Stover Easter sales exceeded those of last year by about one fourth and prices were about 20 per cent better. The plant supply was far short of the demand, and in consequence everything sold well. There were plenty of cut flowers. The weather was all that could be desired, and, with money plentiful among the middle class, a general cleanup is the report from all sources.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Macnair, Florist, reports Easter business for 1918 about 25 per cent better than a year ago with prices much more satisfactory. The supply of both plants and cut flowers was equal to all requirements. In plants, there was small demand for foliage varieties, but bulbous stock moved especially well. Violets and sweet peas led in popularity in their class. The call for roses and carnations was weak.

Iris Tingitana.

Flowers Six Inches in Diameter.

FREDERICKTON, N. B.—J. Bebbington & Son report an increase in the volume of Easter sales of about 25 per cent as compared with last year, with prices very little better on some items, the call being for medium priced stock. More pot plants could have been sold, especially daffodils. In cut flowers, there was a heavy demand for roses and carnations. Money seemed to be plentiful and there was an early cleanup.

BANGOR, ME.—An increase of 10 per cent in the volume of sales, with prices about the same as last year, is reported by Adam Sekenger. In plants, the supply of lilies was ample, but there was a shortage of rambler roses and azaleas. In cut flowers, violets were the only short item; everything else enjoyed about an even sale. High priced rose bushes moved slowly. Lilies had the call.

BRISTOL, TENN.—Fairmount Gardens had an excellent Easter demand with prices and volume of sales better than last year. The supply, both in plants and cut flowers, was not quite equal to requirements. Lilies, geraniums and primulas sold well. Enough cut flowers could not be secured to meet the demand. Prices were excellent, but in plants the call was for medium price offerings.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gude Bros. Co. states Easter trade this year was twice as good as that of 1917, with prices also better. The plant supply was ample, with the exception of lilies, which led the demand, after which everything found ready sale. The cut flower supply was excellent. The quality of the stock was better than a year ago, and there were more satisfied customers.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—A. Whitcomb & Son report Easter prices were slightly better than a year ago, but the volume of business done was 50 per cent greater. Pot plants, with the exception of lilies, were plentiful, and everything in bloom sold well. Cut stock also sold out clean, and more lilies could have been disposed of by them had they been on hand.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—At the establishment of S. A. Anderson, an increase in Easter business over last year of about 20 per cent, with prices 15 to 25 per cent better than a year ago, is the report. The supply of both pot plants and cut flowers was adequate. In the former, medium priced stock was most in demand; in the latter, stocks, calendulas, snapdragons, etc., were popular.

COLUMBUS, O.—With prices ranging about one-third better on stock in general and lilies leading at an advance of 70 per cent, an excellent supply of both pot plants and cut stock moved well, the total sales being about 25 per cent better than a year ago. Sweet peas and violets were favorites and in plants, hyacinths, tulips and the more common varieties sold best.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—Furrow & Co. experienced an Easter trade 25 per cent greater in volume than last year with prices also more satisfactory. Buying started early, many orders being placed two to three weeks in advance. Easter lilies were most called for, but rose bushes met with poor demand. Everything in cut stock sold well.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Clark Bros. report 1918 Easter trade showed an increase of about 25 per cent in money value with prices slightly advanced over last year. With the exception of lily plants, the supply in all lines was ample. Corsage flowers were in exceptionally strong demand. Carnation sales lacked vigor. The weather was ideal for business—the best in many years.

PEORIA, ILL.—With the supply in all lines, except lilies, equal to the demand. R. Juergens reports the Easter trade of 1918 about the same as last year with little difference in prices. In plants, the more expensive varieties were in least demand, while in cut stock there was a most satisfactory sale of tulips, jonquils, lilies, callas and carnations.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Paul E. Lange reports Easter business this year about 30 per cent greater than in 1917. Prices were also better, especially on lilies which advanced about 30 per cent, and led the demand. The supply in general was plentiful. In cut flowers, daffodils were most popular, and also cheapest in price.

CLEVELAND, O.—The J. M. Gasser Co. reports slightly better prices and a greater volume of Easter business as compared with sales in 1917. The supply of plants, especially in the medium sizes, was not quite up to requirements. Large baskets and high-priced plants went slowly. Cut flowers were plentiful and sold well.

NEW YORK—Chas. A. Dards reports prices and volume of Easter business were no better than last year, with a limited call for high priced stock, both in plants and cut flowers. Many society people had cards printed asking their friends not to send plants or flowers, on the ground that it was "not patriotic."

ATLANTIC, IA.—The Atlantic Greenhouses had a 10 per cent better business than in 1917, with prices somewhat advanced. The supply in all lines was good. Blooming plants took the lead, and there were also good sales of cut lilies, carnations and sweet peas. Plant sales were greater than in any previous year.

GREELEY, COLO.—The Gardner Floral Co. reports better prices with about the same volume of Easter business as a year ago. There was a shortage both in plants and cut flowers especially in lilies. Had the supply in this item been adequate, business would have shown an increase of about 40 per cent over 1917.

HAVERHILL, MASS.—While prices were better than a year ago, W. F. Abrams reports the 1918 Easter trade not up to standard. The supply of plants, especially lilies, was not equal to requirements, although the stock of cut flowers was ample. The outlook for the spring trade, however, is very promising.

TAMPA, FLA.—Although prices were a trifle better than a year ago, The Tampa Floral Co. reports sales about on an average. The supply of plants was ample, and the same may be said of cut stock, with the exception of lilies. Lilies, as usual, were the favorites, although all blooming plants sold well.

SAVANNAH, GA.—A greater Easter business by about 10 per cent, with prices about on a par with last year's, is reported by A. C. Oelschig & Sons. With lilies most in demand, there was a shortage in the plant supply. There was a heavy call for corsages, and a generous offering of cut flowers sold well.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Owing to a shortage of lilies and azaleas, even though the price on the former was increased from 25 to 35 per cent over those of a year ago, this year's Easter trade was not quite as good in volume, according to Fred A. Avery. Sweet peas were also a short item.

BERKELEY, CALIF.—With a plentiful supply and prices about as usual, J. A. Carbone's Easter sales showed quite an increase over those of 1917. Fine weather helped business wonderfully. Lilies were most in demand, with roses least salable.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y.—Edward Lorentz reports an excellent trade, with a cleanup in all lines. Business was as good as, if not better than, last year. Much time will now be devoted to gardens.

FARGO, N. D.—The Easter display of Smedley & Co. was one of the finest ever seen in this city. Hundreds of visitors were attracted to the store during the week.

IRIS TINGITANA.

With Acacia Pubescens and Orange King Calendulas in Japanese Basket.

Iris Tingitana.

One of the most beautiful forcing cut flowers introduced in recent years is Iris tingitana, the first flowers of which were offered in the market in the winter of 1916. In effect, it is a glorified Spanish iris, the flowers being much larger and borne on long, stiff stems from 18 to 36 inches in length. The color is a beautiful blue, shading to lilac. Nicholson describes it as lilac purple. A bright yellow spot covers half of the surface of each of the three broad petals. The flowers are five to six inches in diameter and almost the same in depth, are quite lasting, and with their long stems very decorative in basket and vase arrangements. If the stems are well in water and the flowers not subject to drafts they will last for several days. With its beautiful shades of blue and orchid-like formation, it holds a place of its own during January and February, or until in March, when the larkspur, with its long, light blue spikes, makes a formidable competitor.

Extra strong bulbs can be brought in for Christmas, but they must be on hand early and started at once to make the holidays. The percentage of blooms will not be very large in the first batches. The bulbs are treated much the same as the Spanish iris, planted in flats and kept under the benches in a cool house and afterwards moved for forcing into a temperature of 50° to 55° at night. They will not stand frost, as their native habitat is in Tangiers in Northern Africa. They were introduced into Europe in 1873. Good, strong bulbs or corms only should be forced. The best stock comes from France. Holland grown bulbs have not been found as productive as the French. There is but a limited stock of this fine variety, but a number of growers are working it up as fast as possible. There are many varieties of iris, and the favor with which tingitana has been received will no doubt result in the trying of a number, in the hopes of finding others equally as good. The flowers in the accompanying illustration were six inches in diameter.

THE CARNATION.

Care of the Cuttings.

The care of the young plants for next season's planting is one of the very important parts of a carnation grower's work at this time. As soon as the cuttings become rooted, they should be taken from the sand and either potted, boxed or benched, according to the method best suited to the conditions under which the grower has to work. Some growers pot their rooted cuttings into 2½-inch pots, then when they outgrow this size, give them another shift into 3-inch, which carries the young plants along in good shape until it becomes time to plant them out into the field, and when a grower has plenty of bench space at his command, this plan is the best to follow. The plants then have every chance to make good and grow into strong, sturdy, well-branched plants for planting out. Another good plan is to transplant the cuttings from the sand into shallow flats, set the flats on shelves near the light, and then after the young plants have made a good growth, pot them up into 2½-inch pots so as to give them four to five weeks in the pots before it becomes time for transferring them to the field. This will give the roots time enough to form into a ball that will not be pot-bound, but free enough for the roots to start out quickly, directly after planting in the field. To keep the plants in active growth without a check from the time the rooted cuttings are taken from the sand until they are planted into their permanent quarters in the houses, is a very important part of successful carnation culture. Once the plants receive a check and the main stem takes on a hard bark, the shoots do not break away as freely.

Cuttings taken from the sand and transplanted into shallow flats early in the season, and left there until planted in the field, get so matted with roots that when it becomes time to separate the young plants for planting out, it is impossible to do so without damaging a lot of the roots, thereby giving the plants a severe check. The plan of transplanting the rooted cuttings from the sand into shallow beds of soil on the greenhouse bench, is a better plan than putting them in flats, provided the bench is so situated that the young plants get plenty of light and the temperature held to a moderate degree so that there will be no danger of the young plants becoming infested with red spider during the bright warm days of early spring.

The soil best suited for young carnation plants is a fresh loamy soil that does not contain enough manure or vegetable matter to cause the plants to make a rapid, soft growth, and one that has texture enough to hold the root ball together without baking into a solid lump after the plants are transferred to the field. After the cuttings are potted or planted from the sand, it will be necessary to watch them closely for a few days to prevent their wilting down too much. This can be done by laying some paper over them when the sun is shining brightly. After a few days they will stand up all right, and when the indications are for a bright day, they can be given a light spraying about 10 o'clock in the morning. Close attention should be given against extremes of dryness or moisture. The young plants will do very much better when the soil at their roots is held to a moderate degree of moisture than if allowed to get to either extreme. As they become firmly established, an occasional syringing two or three times a week will be beneficial to the growths and keep the young plants clean.

The one very important work in the care of these young carnation plants is the topping back of the growths to enable the plant to grow into sturdy, branchy plants. The habit of the plant and the result of the crop next winter depends so greatly on the care given this work during the time the cutting becomes established—as a young plant early in the spring, throughout its existence in the field, and up to the time as a matured plant, it is allowed to start into bloom in its permanent quarters in the greenhouse bench. I can not urge too strongly the importance of this part of the work.

Commence the topping as soon as the young plant becomes firmly established at the roots and has made top growth enough to allow for a clean cut to be made. This is important, because if the top is not made clean, the center shoots out again and the work has to be done all over. It is well to bear in mind when doing this work that the principal object is to throw the strength of the plant into making side growths. Any further propagating still to be done should be pushed along without delay. Every day it is put off after we get into March makes the chances of a successful stand of cuttings so much less. We may now reasonably expect warmer days, when less steam will be used and a great deal more ventilation have to be given. These conditions will be very much better for the plants in bloom on the benches and the young established plants, but it works just the opposite for the propagation of cuttings. Those put in from now on will have to be more closely shaded and kept from cold currents of air blowing directly on them so as to guard against their wilting. They should also be given more frequent sprayings to aid them in remaining plump and hasten rooting.

Keep a sharp lookout for aphids, and do not allow these pests to get a foothold on any of the plants whatever their stages of growth may be. The only way to do this is to attend to the fumigating regularly.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Hydrangea Otaksa Pruning.

In forcing Hydrangea Otaksa for use in tubs and boxes out-of-doors, is it necessary to cut them back severely when they are brought into the greenhouse in the spring? Last year, when we brought the plants in after having been wintered in the cellar, we cut them back rather severely, but out of 20 plants, did not get more than four or five heads of bloom, although the soil was good; they were well watered and properly cared for, and were given bone meal and manure water. If the plants are not cut back they will be very large, but in any event we would like to have blooms. Can you tell us what to do to bring about this result?

A. D. B.

Iowa.

A. D. B. makes a great mistake in cutting his plants into shape in the spring. Specimen hydrangeas, grown in tubs or vase pots for flowering during the summer, should be pruned and trimmed into any desired shape as soon as their flowering period is over. It is on the new growth, made after this, that the next season's flowers are set. As the wood matures in the fall, water should be withheld, so that the growth is checked and the shoots become firm and well ripened. Care should be taken that they do not get so dry as to shrivel. They can be wintered in a cool shed, cellar or pit. When brought into heat, they should be top dressed; any pruning at this time would mean a flower lost for every shoot taken. After strong growth has started, they can be given any liquid manure solutions required. They will need but little forcing, and are best brought on slowly, so as to make a sturdy, stocky growth clothed with heavy foliage, which supports the large heads of bloom and gives the whole plant a symmetrical appearance.

While the ideal and natural color of Otaksa is pink, it can be made to come a clear blue by mixing in the soil, equal parts of crushed alum and iron filings; about a five-inch potful to a wheelbarrow of earth. To get a good clear color, this mixture must be in every batch of soil used, after and including the first potting.

The newer French sorts are rapidly replacing the Otaksa. Among the conspicuous varieties are: Lillian Mouillere, pink; Mme. Mouillere, large white; Mme. Chautard, a free flowering pink, and Viscount Bitraye, a beautiful shade of pink.

R. C.

Hydrangeas which are grown and flowered in tubs and boxes for use on lawns and other decorative effects out of doors should be pruned or cut back during the summer, immediately after they are through flowering. They then make the wood on which is set the next year's flowers. It is not wise to give stimulants at this time, as these induce a soft, spongy growth. When the plants have matured, it is well to withhold water and keep them on the dry side, so as to thoroughly ripen the flowering shoots. They should not, however, be allowed to go so far as to shrivel. These can be wintered in a cool shed, cellar or cold north house. When brought into a warm house, they can then be top-dressed and, after starting, given any required liquid stimulant. No pruning should be done at this time, however, as to do so would destroy and cut away the flowers which are set in the terminal buds of all the well ripened shoots.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Spring Work.

With the constantly increasing cost of palm stock imported from Europe, and the uncertainty of ocean transportation, it seems probable that the arrivals for the year 1918 will fall far below the usual average, if indeed any are received. And this means that the stock now on hand in this country must necessarily be depended upon to supply the demand for such plants, so in a measure the ultra-protective idea will have an opportunity for demonstration, although the war, rather than legislation, is the high-tariff measure that has brought about such a condition.

Under such conditions, the growers will doubtless make an effort to meet the demands of the market in sizes and quality and, in order to do this, will make an effort to do up the spring work in the palm houses at the proper time to take advantage of a long season of growth. With this in view, the spring overhauling in which are included cleaning, repotting, rearranging and all the details connected therewith, should not be delayed, for by this date practically all the trade species of palms are beginning to grow.

Kentias continue to be the favorites with the trade, and the combination plants composed of three or four plants of various sizes, put together in one tub, are undoubtedly the most satisfactory for the decorator and continue to be the most popular. The comparative scarcity of such material, combined with the greatly increased cost of tubs and labor, compels the grower to do one of two things—either he must increase the price of the plants or else he must reduce the size and quality, and in choosing between two evils it would seem the part of wisdom to stick to quality and to adapt the price to such a standard.

Coal will doubtless continue to increase in price this season, if, indeed, we are able to secure it; and in this climate we cannot grow palms without coal, and, in such a winter as the present one, it has required a mighty good supply to maintain a temperature of 60° in a large palm range. Of course, one may cut a few degrees from this temperature in a range containing well established plants, and thus conserve the coal supply in some degree, and this has been the practice of some growers during the present season, but when kept at 50° at night the stock is very nearly dormant and is liable to lose color, or, in the case of cocos and arecas, may go backward to such a degree that the following summer will not make up for the loss.

There is, however, the one comforting feature now in view, namely, that the winter is drawing to a close and that the sun is gaining in strength daily, with the usual result, that the plants are showing renewed coloring, the roots are moving and young leaves are to be seen in increasing numbers. These influences affect the evaporative capacity of the palms very greatly, and more water, both at the roots and overhead, is needed each day to keep them in condition. Vigorous syringing is also essential in order to discourage the attacks of insects, the high temperature due to sunshine being just the condition that thrips and red spider enjoy.

Day temperatures of 75° to 80° will do no harm to the plants, provided that a moist atmosphere is maintained, but without the latter attending condition much trouble may easily arise from insects and sunburn. This brings us back once more to a reminder of the necessity for shading on the palm houses, this operation being needed on the south side of the houses or on the side nearest to the south, by the middle of February, and on the opposite side by about the first of March or soon after. This does not mean that a heavy shade should be applied at this time, but enough to cover lightly and to protect the plants from defective glass. White lead and gasoline is a good mixture for this purpose, and is easily applied with a spray pump.

In regard to soils for growing the trade species of palms, it may be said that the best foundation for such a compost is rotted sod from a heavy pasture, if such may be obtained, and to this is added various quantities of good stable manure, the latter preferably a mixture of horse and cow manure. If the soil is very heavy, some lighter material may be added for the benefit of the less vigorous rooting subjects, of which the cocos and livistonas are examples. As is natural to soils including much manure, the palm soil will include a good many worms, and it is a good time to remove some of the worms when repotting the plants, giving the benches a good dusting with lime at the same time. A sprinkling of cyanide of sodium solution will also drive out many of the worms from a bench, but the writer is not entirely satisfied that a solution of cyanide of sodium is quite harmless to the plants, and therefore does not recommend it for driving the worms out of the pots.

Palms in general prefer firm potting and, with this in view, the soil should not be too wet at the time of giving a shift, else the water will not penetrate properly afterward. Moderation in watering for the first few weeks after repotting is a safe proposition, but do not carry the moderation too far or some plants may afterward be found too dry for satisfactory progress.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The promotion bureau feels somewhat elated over the manner in which florists throughout the country have co-operated with the bureau service in the effort to direct the publicity secured through the national magazine advertising to their own establishments. Hundreds of electrotyped newspaper advertisements appealing for Easter trade have been sent out, and their use, as evidenced by the clippings received, has been timely, and well planned. These electrotypes featured as nearly as possible the magazine Easter advertisements appearing in the Woman's Home Companion and Literary Digest, which together reach nearly 2,000,000 homes, suggesting flower buying expectancies. The promotion bureau can do a great deal for the many, but it is quite obvious that the individual must, either through direct advertising or newspaper aid, look out for himself if he wants the maximum benefit of this publicity. That is why this electrotype service was instituted—it identifies an establishment with this national publicity, and links up his local effort with the national effort.

"MOVIE" SERVICE.

The bureau has received a good many inquiries for a service of lantern slides for projection in moving picture theaters, and in response to this demand it has produced a set of four, in colors, which feature as nearly as possible the magazine advertisements, and each slide carries the name and address of the florist projecting it. These slides are to be sent out at the price of $2 for the set, postpaid and safe arrival guaranteed. The titles are: "Mothers' Day," "Beautifying the Home," "On Her Birthday," and "The Wedding," and their issue is concurrent with the appearance of the advertisements in the magazines.

GLASS AND TRANSFER SIGNS.

All orders received so far for the glass sign "Say It With Flowers" have been filled, as well as the decalcomanie signs of the same slogan. Orders for decalcomanie signs can now be filled from stock on hand. The manufacturers of all these signs have been seriously handicapped in the fulfillment of orders through conditions now generally prevailing, but the bureau has made the best deliveries possible under the circumstances.

STICKERS IN COLORS.

The bureau has arranged to supply gummed labels, or "stickers," which are miniature reproductions, in colors, of the slogan, "Say It With Flowers." These are for use on boxes, packages, stationery, and in other ways to keep the slogan before the public. They will be available in sizes 2 in., 4 in. and 6 in. long.

THE SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

Probably due to the Easter rush, subscriptions have been rather slow in the last 10 days. The bureau has published in booklet form a list of the subscribers to the publicity campaign fund arranged by states, and it furnishes some interesting statistics. The following is a synopsis:

It is obvious that the local committees in some of the states have done some active work. But why wait for approaches by local organizations? The fund is wide open. Can anyone interested in his own welfare afford to stand aloof?

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Did You Have An Easter Rush?

How many of us, in all sincerity, can fail to realize the importance our publicity campaign has had in stimulating more sales this Easter than ever we had before, in spite of the fact that we are having the greatest world's war ever chronicled? Those of us who have had the far-sightedness to conceive the benefits by tying up locally to our slogan, "Say it with Flowers," must have reaped a full harvest as never before, and all this in a most trying period of depression against so-called luxuries, to have the greatest rush ever known, must feel keenly the benefits obtainable by our publicity movement.

Located as we are here in Boston, on one of the most important corners in our city, it gives me a wonderful opportunity of studying conditions pertaining to our business, and I can see innumerable new faces continually, which proves the necessity of more publicity to create new buyers for sale of more flowers, and am convinced, beyond shadow of doubt, that the more uses made of local advertising to our national campaign will continue to give more new business to those live wires who are optimistic enough to take up with it that their volume of business will accumulate beyond expectation.

As for myself, our Easter was the largest we have ever experienced and must confess that the two most important reasons were: confidence and securing plenty of choicest available stock in anticipation of the biggest Easter, and secondly, buying plenty of advertising space, telling the people of Boston and New England that we had the stock, and securing, thereby, the greatest number of sales, both in volume and customers. This proves that our publicity campaign has been a stimulus, and we believe in taking the same kind of medicine we are handing out to our friends, as evidence of its worth.

What pride and pleasure it must give to those who have contributed to our national campaign fund to feel that in the short two months in which our publicity copy has appeared we have been able to show such wonderful progress as to cause favorable comment the country over. To those who have as yet not responded to our cause, may I add that you are missing something; that something that makes better and bigger men, by contributing to a cause that helps all connected, and getting returns tenfold in the long run.

HENRY PENN, Chairman.

Falling Trade Balance.

Washington, April 1.—America's falling trade balance, while far from the point where imports equal exports, is being studied intently by officials to see if the unfavorable effect on foreign exchange may not be offset and the dollar restored to a parity in those neutral countries where it is worth less than 100 cents. Some of the loss in the exchange rate may be made up by the restriction on imports recently inaugurated by the War Trade Board, and which will be extended by lists of other prohibited articles to be issued soon.

Value of A College Education.

Address by H. B. Dörner, Professor of Floriculture, University of Illinois, delivered at the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, Urbana, March 5-6, 1918.

The question is often asked, "Of what value is a college education to the florist? Would not the young man do better to enter a commercial establishment and so learn the profession more quickly and thoroughly?" There is no doubt that a man, if he has the proper spirit and a liking for his work, can enter this profession at the bottom and gradually work his way up until he is rated as a successful florist. The real question is, would he have been a more successful man, a greater influence in the profession, if he had had a college education? There is no doubt but that he could have reached his goal sooner and easier.

When a student enters the floricultural course he is told that the university cannot send him away, at the end of four years, as a full-fledged florist. The university is not an old-time apprentice school, for it requires that the student become more than the old-time gardener with his knowledge of floriculture and little else. The college graduate must have a broader training, so that he may take his place in the world as a man among men.

The most that the university can do is to give the student a foundation upon which he can build. Whether he becomes a successful florist or not, depends upon the kind of superstructure he places upon this foundation. When the graduate leaves the university he is in a position to begin where the man in the commercial establishment did, but equipped to forge ahead more rapidly.

In what way, then, is the college education to be of value? It may be said that it gives the student a foundation based upon a theoretical knowledge of his subject. Whether this theoretical knowledge is to be of use depends upon other lines of work taken in conjunction with it. It is often said that too much theory is taught. This is not so, if at the same time, the student is taught to apply the theory to practice.

If the theory of the chosen work and its application to practice is all that the student is to get, then there may well be doubt as to the wisdom of a college course. In addition to the professional work, the student should have a broad training in the sciences. This should be for two reasons. First, a knowledge of the sciences is necessary for a full understanding of the theory. If agriculture, and floriculture as merely a branch of it, were to be dissected, it would be found to be nothing more than an application of the so-called fundamental sciences. Floriculture, as an example, may be said to be based primarily upon botany, but a knowledge of chemistry and the other sciences is necessary for the best understanding of the subject. The student very often fails to see the connection between these lines of study and his chosen work, and often the instructor fails to assist him to this knowledge. Second, the study of the sciences teaches the student methods of work and trains him for greater accuracy. Where the value of this training often fails is in the inability of the student to transfer these methods to his professional work.

In addition to his professional and scientific courses, the student also studies what might be called "cultural subjects." These tend to broaden his horizon and to teach him to think and reason clearly. This knowledge applied to his professional work prevents him from going at it blindly; he begins to see why things should be done just so in order to get certain results.

At the end of four years, the graduate has the advantage of the apprentice in a better knowledge of theory and its application and of the sciences upon which the practice of floriculture is based, a broader horizon to make him a much better citizen and the power to think and reason clearly. The young man who has received four years' training in the commercial establishment may have greater knowledge of the practical side of floriculture, but he lacks the other training which would develop him more rapidly. Some of this lack of training on the part of the apprentice may be overcome by judicious reading and studying, but the weariness after a day's labor and the lack of specific direction make it uphill work.

There is no doubt in the mind of the speaker that of two men equally well equipped mentally and physically, the one with the college training will forge 'way ahead of the one who receives his training by the old apprentice method. What has been said concerning the student in floriculture, applies equally well to all other lines of agricultural work. Study other than agricultural subjects, become a leader in your chosen work, and a power in your community.

Flower-Pots in England.

For several years prior to 1914 the garden and flower-pot industry in Great Britain was in a deplorable state owing to the cutting of prices and German commercial invasion, consisting of the organized attempt to "dump" the Teuton surplus stocks in England and, later, to introduce German pot-manufacturing machines. From the outbreak of the war, therefore, until quite recently the supply of such pots has been considerably in excess of the demand, and nearly all manufacturers have accumulated abnormally large stocks; and even in the absence of official restriction on flower growing a diminishing consumption of pots, due in part to lack of growers and the urgency of growing vegetables and fruit, has made but slight inroads on the surplus stocks on hand.

The demand in 1916 was approximately one-fifth of the demand in 1914; the demand in 1917, one-sixth. Manufacturers are therefore turning out about 12 per cent of the unusual pre-war quantity, and it is believed that the present supply would last for some time should further manufacture entirely cease.

Inasmuch as garden and flower-pots are customarily by-products of an earthenware factory in which jars, crocks and pots generally are manufactured, it is difficult to accurately ascertain the total national production of red earthenware flower-pots. A few firms, like Richard Sankey & Son (Ltd.), of Bulwell, Nottingham, are employed solely in the production of these pots and have a yearly output in times of peace of about 28,000,000; but, so far as is known, none of the firms so engaged paid a dividend on ordinary stock either in 1916 or in 1917.—Commerce Reports, April 1, 1918.

Boston.AFTER EASTER SUPPLY SHORT.

Market conditions have changed the past week. Stock picked so close for the holiday trade has shortened up everything in both plant and flower lines. Although prices of cut flowers have dropped, they are cleaned up every day at a fair figure.

NOTES.

The parade introducing the Third Liberty Loan drive helped business a great deal. Quite a few of the large stores closed at noon to allow the men to march. Floats were decorated with palms and ferns and a large number of girls carried bunches of flowers. Some of the stores made special features of their windows. Among the most artistic was Carbone's, where two large American eagles perched high on pedestals with a large painting of George Washington between them, with a large American flag dropped from the ceiling and large plants of pink rhododendrons at the base.

A farewell dinner was given to Joseph Sherman, former shipper at H. M. Robinson & Co., who has joined the navy. Twenty boys in uniform, who came from different camps around Boston, representing the florist trade, entertained the gathering until midnight. Mr. Sherman was surprised with a token that he will always remember.

At Henry Comley's store, business has been very good with a large number of orders arriving for window boxes which he makes a specialty of. He closed Saturday on account of the parade. A service flag is raised over his door with one star for his son, who is at the front with a hospital unit.

Wm. Walke, of Salem, is cutting some very good Hadley Roses; also he is sending to market French hydrangeas, and Tausendschon and Dorothy Perkins rose plants.

From the Thos. Roland greenhouses at Revere, large shipments are daily arriving of Ophelia, Killarney Queen, Ward, George Elgar and a new Pink Ophelia rose.

J. K. Chandler, of Tewksbury, is sending some very good Spanish iris, ranunculus, anemones and wallflowers, which sell readily at a good figure.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report the best Easter trade ever and had a large demand for lily of the valley, orchids and American Beauty roses.

Mann Bros. raised a service flag over their stall in honor of one of their salesmen, Nathan Seigel, who has joined Camp Devens.

Esty Bros. have a fine cut of anemones, irises and sweet peas. They expect in 10 days' time to have ranunculus and ixia.

E. Brigham still continues to pick violets and English primroses and has 10,000 tomato plants ready for market.

Welch Bros. Co. had a good week. The shortage of flowers out of town caused a large demand in shipping.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report good business and are very much pleased with the holiday trade.

Thomas Cox, of Dorchester, is cutting very good smilax, which is in good demand.

S. K. G.

Pittsburgh.HEAVY SUPPLY AND LIGHT DEMAND.

Prices have dropped during the week on account of the large amount of stock received and very little business being done. The weather has been very favorable with plenty of sunshine which gives the war gardeners a good chance to prepare their plots for vegetables. There are very few vacant lots that are not being worked in this manner and early vegetable plants should be in demand. The seed stores have been rushed getting out orders and many have disposed of their supply already. Bulbous stock of all kinds that should have been in for Easter is now flooding the market along with roses and sweet peas. There are more roses on the market now than there have been at any time this year. Prices range from $2 to $8 per 100. Sweet peas, which are about over, are now coming in large quantities with very little demand. There is not the amount of carnations that is usually expected in glut season, and they are about the only flowers that clean up well each day. American Beauties are also arriving in large quantities, with very little demand. The glut was expected and the drop in prices also. Every retailer had a very good Easter and can stand a slump in business. There is very little going on in society, except for a few small weddings. The landscape men are very busy and several large contracts are being completed.

NOTES.

The retail florists' association held its weekly meeting at the Seventh Avenue hotel and outlined an advertising campaign for Mothers' day. The newspaper ads that have been printed have already shown results.

Shelby Griffith, who conducted a flower store in Monessen, Pa., is in the front line trenches. "Somewhere in France," with the Fifth United States Engineers.

D. W. Ludwig has returned from his visit to Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., where his brother, Edward, is with the ambulance division of the national army.

Oliver Langhans writes from Oregon that he has gained 25 pounds in weight since enlisting in the foresters regiment.

Liberty Bonds.

War is a glutton that lives on lives and riches. There is no limit to the devouring greed of War. As long as there is an unconquered life, or an undevoured dollar, War is hungry. When War attacks a nation there is no choice—every able-bodied man knows that he must fight—now or later. Selective drafts may miss a man here and there for a few months, but if the War goes on, a time comes when every man who can walk and carry a gun must go to the colors and fight for the very life of his country, his family, himself.

When War attacks a nation there is no choice—every dollar is subject to the call of mobilization. Some of the dollars escape for a time and stay in their safe investment places earning profits for their owners. But if the war goes on long enough, every dollar must come out and enlist under the colors. In time of War, when the very life and death of a nation are being decided on bloody fields, money has no choice between courage and cowardice. Every dollar must fight or be classed as traitor and put in the outlaw list.

Remember these things. The nation has a right to take absolutely every dollar of property in the United States for the life and death War against tyranny, autocracy, slavery and foreign aggression and vassalage. But the nation does not intend to exercise that final and desperate right. No! The government says: "The nation is fighting for its life. Lend us your money. We will give you Liberty Bonds, secured by all the wealth and sovereign taxing power, bearing 4½ per cent interest, and protected by a good sinking fund, with tax exemptions to make the loan better. Avoid the extreme necessity. Invest in all the Liberty Bonds you can."

Official Bulletin Saves Correspondence.

Owing to the enormous increase of government war work, the governmental departments at Washington are being flooded with letters of inquiry on every conceivable subject concerning the war, and it has been found a physical impossibility for the clerks, though they number an army in themselves now, to give many of these letters proper attention and reply. There is published daily at Washington, under authority of and by direction of the President, a government newspaper—The Official United States Bulletin. This newspaper prints every day all of the more important rulings, decisions, regulations, proclamations, orders, etc., as they are promulgated by the several departments and the many special committees and agencies now in operation at the national capital. This official journal is posted daily in every postoffice in the United States, more than 56,000 in number, and may also be found on file at all libraries, boards of trade and chambers of commerce, the offices of mayors, governors and other federal officials. By consulting these files most questions will be found readily answered; there will be little necessity for letter writing; the unnecessary congestion of the mails will be appreciably relieved; the railroads will be called upon to move fewer correspondence sacks, and the mass of business that is piling up in the government departments will be eased considerably. Hundreds of clerks will be able to give their time to essentially important war work, and fundamentally patriotic service will have been performed by the public.

QUINCY, ILL.—The Gentemann Floral Co. supplied many handsome decorations used at the recent automobile show.

GLADIOLUS MYETLE spikes received in Chicago from California this week show unusually large size and vigor, quite unlike the almost miniature type familiar to eastern growers.

THE Mayflower, or trailing arbutus, has been adopted by the school children of Massachusetts as the official state flower in a contest conducted by the board of education of the commonwealth. The water lily was second and the daisy third.

CANCELLATION of all contracts for coal outstanding April 1, when the new zone system of distribution becomes effective, is under consideration by the fuel administration. This would eliminate all high price contract coal and place the country's entire production under control of the fuel administration. Most contracts now in existence will expire with the beginning of the new coal year, April 1.

COMPETITION CLOSING TIME EXTENDED.

The time of closing the competition in the award for the Florists' Telegraph Delivery emblem has been extended to May 1, 1918.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club having decided not to hold a flower show this fall, the annual exhibition and meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America has been transferred to New York, and will be held in conjunction with the American Institute of the City of New York, November 6-8.

CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

Personal.

Frederic W. Taylor, who formerly resided in Denver, Colo., has now located his home at Los Angeles, Calif. Mr. Taylor is engaged on an irrigation project at Tucson, Ariz. His eldest son is a lieutenant at American Lake, and a son-in-law is a naval surgeon stationed at Guam in the Philippines.

Peter Bisset, plant introducer of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., stopped off at Chicago, April, 7-8, en route to the Pacific coast, where he will inspect the bulb and other crops of the department.

Embargo on Horticultural Imports.

JAPANESE STOCKS SHUT OUT.

Referring to the list of restricted importations printed on page 605 of THE AMERICAN FLORIST of April 6, we are advised Item 61 is intended to cover all horticultural products, plants, trees, shrubs, vines and bulbs. Applications for license to import the articles appearing on the list will not be granted except under the following circumstances:

"When coming by rail from Mexico or Canada, when the goods in question originated in those countries, or in others from which such goods are being licensed for import."

"When coming as a return cargo from European points, and then only (a) when coming from a convenient port, (b) when loaded without delay, and (c) when the importation from Europe is not specifically prohibited in said list."

It will thus be seen that every shipment must be licensed and that the license itself does not insure the coming forward of the goods, except under the above difficult conditions.

A telegram from William F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, brings the following additional information:

"All bulbs, plants and roots are included in embargo except European countries where they may ship under special permit. Nothing from Japan."

It will be seen from this that no bulbs, shrubs, trees or plants will come forward from Japan.

The Late Joseph Heacock.

PHILADELPHIA FLORISTS' TESTIMONIAL.

A special meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia was held March 19, on the call of President Adolph Farenwald to take action on the passing away of Joseph Heacock at which a committee was appointed and presented the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Florists' Club of Philadelphia hereby expresses its deep sense of loss in the death of Joseph Heacock, whose long and faithful service in every phase of the club's activity, social and executive, has always been highly conspicuous and deeply appreciated by all the members, and

Resolved, That we hereby put on record the universal feeling of the horticultural world in general for his high character, sterling business integrity and genial helpful disposition for every progressive movement. He was outspoken, honest and fearless, but with malice in his heart towards none, and we all delighted in his well doing and success, and feel deeply that in losing him we have lost a friend indeed, and further be it

Resolved, That this testimonial to his memory be duly enshrined in the annals of the club and that we all hereby bind ourselves to keep same everlastingly green and fragrant in our hearts.

Detroit Convention Garden.

The principal reason for selecting the convention city for our national society two years in advance is to gain the time necessary to prepare and plant the convention garden and to give the hardy plant exhibits two seasons' growth before the convention. Detroit, our 1919 convention city, offers great inducements for a successful convention garden. Arrangements have been made with the fair grounds authorities for the necessary grounds next to the convention and trade exhibition buildings, and the garden will be under the competent management and supervision of Wm. Dilger, former superintendent of Belle Isle park. In order to enable the committee and management to prepare plans and grounds, it is necessary for us to know how many growers will avail themselves of the opportunity to place exhibits in this garden.

The price of space rental will be governed by the total space taken, and will not exceed 10 cents per square foot for bedding plants to be planted in the spring of 1919 and five cents per square foot for hardy plants, trees, shrubs, evergreens, perennials, etc., to be planted this spring and fall. The rental price may be less, and will be established by the executive board of the society at its next meeting.

The committee on convention garden, consisting of Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, and Clarence L. Brock, Houston, Tex., requests that all contemplating making an exhibit in the garden kindly furnish, as soon as possible, information regarding the character of the exhibit, approximate amount of space required, etc., in order that such information may be compiled and a plan prepared and sent to all applicants, giving further detail information as to space available, conditions and price. Prompt action on the part of exhibitors will facilitate the work of the committee and assure success in the undertaking.

INCONVENIENCES of the past winter due to loss of time and scarcity of fuel will soon be forgotten in the one great game of floating, over-successfully, the Third Liberty Loan.

Gardeners' Service Bureau.

We beg to call attention to the accompanying announcement of the National Association of Gardeners, which appeared in the March number of the Journal of the International Garden Club. The work of the Service Bureau of this association, it should be clearly understood, is educational as well as serviceable. It does not confine its energies merely to procuring positions for members who may apply for them or bringing to the attention to those who may require such, men efficiently qualified for the position, but it is also one of the aims of the association, through the systematic organization of the Service Bureau, to weed out of the profession, the interlopers who pass under the guise of gardeners without the proper knowledge to fit them for the position.

The purpose of the announcement is to secure the co-operation of country estate owners in the work the National Association of Gardeners is undertaking. A number of estate owners have already enrolled in the association as sustaining members since at the last convention it was decided to create this class of membership.

As stated in the announcement, the Service Bureau makes no charge for its service, being maintained entirely at the expense of the association. Those desirous of availing themselves of such service may apply to M. C. Ebel, secretary, National Association of Gardeners, Madison, N. J.

St. Louis.

MODERATE BUSINESS FOLLOWS EASTER.

The market was crowded with stock of all kinds the past week. Business was only fair, which left a lot of flowers to be sold at cleanup prices. Roses are coming in fine; in fact, better than they have for some time. The next few weeks should show big crops of them in this vicinity. Russell, the Killarneys and Opheila are the leaders. Carnations have not let up cropping for some weeks, but with a continuance of the warm weather we have been having, they will start to get poor. Sweet peas are coming in plentifully, but, despite the heavy cut, move fairly well at fair prices. Darwin tulips are in strong supply and have a poor call. Jonquils are nearing the end of their season. Lilies and rubrums have a fair demand. Greens, with the exception of string smilax, are equal to requirements.

NOTES.

The joint publicity committee held its semi-monthly meeting last week and the secretary made his report of expenditures for Easter publicity. A programme of advertising was also laid out for advertising the next month, including Mothers' day. The committee also reported having disposed of 20 sets of window signs reading "Say It With Flowers." Many of the florists bought these signs direct from the national committee. Another feature of advertising brought up was the continual advertising of birthday flowers. It was felt that this was one of the biggest fields they could work in for a continuous business the year round.

The April meeting of the florists' club will be held at the Missouri Botanical Garden. This should be quite interesting, in view of the fact that the garden's bulbous display is at its best just now. They have also arranged a special show of all seasonal plants.

The landscape gardeners have ideal weather to go ahead with their work. Planting no doubt will start strong this month on account Easter being so early. The plantsmen are getting in shape to take care of the rush.

A large bank opening the day after Easter used up an enormous lot of stock, both cut and plants. Conspicuous among the outlay were the large number of rhododendron and St. Louis snapdragons. J. J. W.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

FUNERAL WORK HEAVY.

The cool, dark weather of the past week has not affected the demand, as there has been a considerable quantity of funeral work, which has kept all the store forces busy. There have been few dances after Easter, contrary to the usual custom, and the corsages in demand for these have been few and far between. The demand for flowering plants and cut flowers, particularly bulbous stock for hospitals, has been unusually large. Pot plants have been decidedly scarce since Easter, particularly in the medium sizes.

Of Interest to Country Estate Owners

The National Association of Gardeners takes this opportunity to introduce its Service Bureau to the owners of country estates and to place it at their disposal when requiring thoroughly competent gardeners—in the capacities of superintendents, head gardeners or assistant gardeners—thoroughly qualified in every particular to assume the responsibilities the positions call for.

The Association seeks the cooperation of every country estate owner in its endeavor to establish a reliable source to which they can apply with every confidence to secure the services of gardeners truly efficient in their profession.

This Bureau is maintained entirely at the expense of the association and makes no charge to the employer it may serve, or to the gardener it may benefit.

Those desiring to avail themselves of the services of this Bureau may apply to—

M. C. EBEL, SECRETARY

National Association of Gardeners

MADISON, N. J.

NOTES.

There were a number of very striking window decorations April 6, the day of the Liberty Loan celebration. Many of the florists' windows were patriotic in color and scheme. The Freese Floral Co. had a very attractive window.

Most of the downtown retailers, and a number of the wholesalers, donated flowers to the "All-Girl Revue," a Red Cross benefit. The flowers were sold at the theater between acts.

Private Kurt Jaenicke, of the 138th Infantry, died two weeks ago at Fort Sill, Okla. He was a son of Park Superintendent Adolph Jaenicke, and was but 23 years of age.

The Flick Floral Co. is displaying some handsome lilac plants and baby ramblers. Funeral work has been very heavy at this store since Easter.

A. T. Hey, representative of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, called on the craft here last week. H. K.

NO LULL AFTER EASTER RUSH.

The quiet period usually following Easter failed to develop this year, as nearly every florist had a good trade, but chiefly in funeral work. There is a good supply of nearly every seasonable flower and an excess of roses and sweet peas, the bulk of the latter two items being disposed of chiefly by the special sales at low prices, but thousands sold at the attractive prices they were offered at. Bulbous flowers were hard to move, and the sale of these were out of proportion to the immense stock to be seen in all the stores and the quality most excellent, due largely to the cool weather prevailing throughout the week.

NOTES.

Echos of the Easter trade discloses a fatigued body of florists who never before were pushed so nearly to the point of exhaustion in their efforts to satisfy the big demand that everyone enjoyed, and yet probably never before was the public so satisfactorily served and the Easter stock, as big as it was, so completely sold out and at prices that all hold were quite remunerative to both growers and retailers.

J. F. Sullivan is now located in his new store, 361 Woodward avenue. Here a greenhouse 20x80 feet is an attractive feature. A capacious garage at the rear of the greenhouse affords facilities for the delivery machines and admirably completes the equipment of the place for handling the maximum of business that can be reasonably hoped for.

J. F. S.

PLANTS LEAD EASTER CLEANUP.

The early spring has started things moving with a rush for the florists, and those who do shrubbery and similar planting are pushed to the limit. The prospects for the spring season are good with a fair supply of stock to draw from. March probably broke all records for the month, and Easter all records for the day. Although cut flowers sold clean, it surely was a plant Easter. Lilies, as usual, led and were cleaned up by Saturday morning. Made up baskets of plants sold better than ever, while roses, hydrangeas, primulas and even geraniums cleaned up close. About the only items left were extra large hydrangeas and some fine azaleas, but they were worth their price for their show effect. Bulbous stock was light in supply and moved slowly in the plant section but cleaned up good in cut flowers. A close scrutiny of prices might show a little scaling upwards compared with previous Easters, although nothing was quoted at really high figures, except possibly lily of the valley, which cuts little figure nowadays.

NOTES.

F. Kuechenmeister has sold his residence, built only a few years ago, and is erecting another one on lots adjacent to his greenhouse salesrooms. His sons, Walter and Emil, who are members of a battery at Camp Doniphan, have returned to camp after a short visit home.

W. H. Culp & Co. declared that an emergency existed Easter Saturday and borrowed Ralph Culp from the automobile business to take charge of the delivery room. Ralph and his chief assistant got one hour of sleep Saturday night.

Chas. P. Mueller struck it just right with his lily crop and they were good ones too. He has added a Ford truck to help out the Reo in the operating department. He has a total of six cars in the service now.

C. A. Rose reports a fine Easter business and has about all he can do in the vegetable plant trade as a side line.

C.

Rochester, N. Y.

BUSINESS UNUSUALLY SATISFACTORY.

Trade has been quite brisk since Easter, with a big call for funeral work. The supply has been large, especially in bulbous stock, and heavy receipts of sweet peas both in the orchid and common varieties. Lilies are scarce, but callas are very good and the supply large. Carnations are not in very heavy supply and the grade is nothing extra. Blooming plants are now a minus quantity.

NOTES.

Henry P. Neun is cutting excellent stocks and wallflowers. He also has some Tausendschon roses. Trade here is reported good.

Salter Bros. are making a special feature of baskets filled with growing gardenias; others are filled with Cineraria stellata.

C. W. Curtis is still cutting large quantities of Empress daffodils of excellent quality.

George Boucher is featuring excellent white lilac and orchid sweet peas.

Chester Ament did a big business at Easter at his Armory store.

George Kramer is away on his usual spring vacation.

Flint, Mich.

D. P. Smith, who many years ago, acquired about 30 acres north of the city, is now inside the city limits and values so increased that he was induced to plot and sell all but about eight acres on which are his greenhouses of 25,000 square feet of glass. He reports that assorted plants sold better than cut flowers at Easter and all through the week, ending with a great rush on Saturday when everyone had all he could do to handle the trade. Prices were about equal to those of a year ago and no salable plant was left when the business ended Sunday. Cut flowers were also in great demand and the supply of these was about equal to the call. Many fine lilies are grown here, but were not in bloom in time for the great event, due to the late arrival of the bulbs last fall. Fuel the past winter was obtained from mines about three miles from the city, but the output was meager and barely sufficient to meet the urgent requirements of the local users.

Easter business here was the best ever experienced. Lilies were in great demand and the supply limited. Some of them were shipped in from Saginaw, Mich. This city is making rapid strides commercially the last few years, due to the auto industries now located here and all doing an immense business.

J. F. S.

Providence, R. I.

Stock has been good the past week and is still very plentiful. Roses have been short on this market for some time but are now coming in quantity and the demand is equal to the supply. There are very few cut lilies of either kind. Sweet peas are good and are meeting a ready sale. The trade is now getting ready for the Memorial day business.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Charles De Shields, son-in-law of Adolph Gude, who recently narrowly escaped death in a fall of an aeroplane, has been commissioned a lieutenant in the aviation service.

SOUTH BEND, IND.—R. E. Williams, of Williams & Company, is confined to the Epworth hospital, where he is recovering from blood poisoning as a result of a scratch from a rose thorn shortly before Easter. His firm enjoyed a splendid Easter trade, with the total sales comparing most favorably with those of 1917.

STOCK IS VERY PLENTIFUL.

Stock of all kinds is very plentiful and obtainable in large quantities at low prices. Carnations are seen in big supply at all the stores but the receipts do not appear to be quite as heavy as they were last week. American Beauty roses are more numerous and are selling at lower prices than they have at any other time this season, which is due more to the general market conditions than to an oversupply. Roses in general are in exceptionally heavy supply and are to be had at very reasonable prices. Some particularly fine stock in this line is to be had, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Champ Weiland, Ophelia, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. George Shawyer, Milady, White Killarney, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty and Richmond. The miniature roses, Nesbit, Cecile Brunner, Baby Doll and George Elgar, are included in the daily offerings and are to be had in large quantities. Orchids, gardenias and lily of the valley are plentiful, and there is an oversupply of lilies and callas. Snapdragons are quite a factor in the market and are having a good call at fair prices. Sweet peas are seen in quantity, but are moving well at good figures, especially in the fancier grades. White and yellow daisies, candytuft, pansies, gypsophilas, freesias, mignonette, calendulas, Spanish iris, narcissi, gladioli, stocks, violets, tulips, jonquils, daffodils, lilacs, lupines and other miscellaneous seasonable stock offer the buyer a large variety to select from. Greens are plentiful with the exception of smilax and Mexican ivy. Business has been somewhat quiet since Easter, but the demand is slowly improving and a change for the better may be looked for before the week is over.

pect when the report is read at their next meeting to be held at the Hotel Sherman, Thursday, April 18, at six o'clock. Get busy, everybody. Subscribe now, and buy as many as you possibly can.

Allie Zech reports that Zech & Mann's sales for March were the greatest since 1905, when the firm started in business. This house was particularly strong on lilies, roses and sweet peas all Easter week, which is largely responsible for the splendid showing made, although much credit is due to the hustling young manager and his entire force, who worked like beavers all through the big rush.

Phil Schupp, manager of the J. A. Budlong store, believes in taking time by the forelock and is buying coal now for next season's use. His firm was pretty well fixed last season and helped out several growers in their vicinity during the extreme shortage, which saved them from freezing out until relief was secured from other quarters.

Peter Reinberg is in heavy crop with roses, which are selling nicely, considering the general market conditions, and clean up well each day. Mr. Reinberg, who is president of the county board, is one of the many florists who are helping dispose of the Third Liberty Loan bonds, but his campaign is outside of the trade.

Percy Jones, Inc., reports that its Easter trade was exceptionally brisk, and that the total sales for March were the largest in the history of the firm. Manager Van Gelder is enthusiastic over the showing made and is confident that business the remainder of the season will compare most favorably with that of other years.

C. L. Washburn says that the out-of-town demand is good at Bassett & Washburn's store, but that the city call for stock is not what it should be. This firm is offering a regular supply of gladioli, among which are noted particularly fine Mrs. Frances King and Pendleton.

Lieutenant F. W. Hæger and Carl Ness, formerly with the A. L. Randall Co. and Ed. Goldenstein, recently with Vaughan's Seed Store, now with the National army at Rockford, were home on a visit, April 6.

Eric Johnson, manager of the A. L. Randall Co.'s, cut flower department, has no complaint to make in regard to business, their March and early April sales comparing most favorably with those of 1917.

CHICAGO

For Your Supply of CUT FLOWERS

 Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

The war-gardens bureau of the state council of defense has worked out a plan whereby a complete record will be kept of the backyard and vacant lot war gardens cultivated in this city this summer; the name of the owners, location of the gardens, sizes of the gardens and the kind of vegetables raised. Each person raising a garden this summer is asked to register at the offices of the state council of defense, 120 West Adams street, and later to report the amount of vegetables harvested. In this manner a complete record of the amount and value of war-garden products raised here this year will be available at the close of the season. Among the inducements offered the city gardener to have his garden registered this season are that an official poster issued to him and placed over his garden will act as a protection against the work of vandals, as the garden then comes under the protection of the council of defense, and that all those registering their gardens will be given the privilege of sharing in the distribution of garden plants to be given out by the gardens bureau. The Chicago Florists' Club, through its president, F. Lautenschlager and O. J. Friedman, chairman of the garden committee, has offered to the council of defense gardens bureau more than 500,000 tomato, cabbage and other vegetable plants for free distribution to registered gardeners. These plants will be ready for distribution in a few days.

E. W. McLellan, of San Francisco, Calif., who attended the last meeting of the florists' club at the Bismarck hotel, Thursday evening, April 4, received the wrong overcoat when he presented his check which he did not notice until after he left, consequently someone in the trade must have his. He will gladly exchange the coat he received for his own and is anxious to do so as early as possible for he intends to start back west in a few days. The party who received his coat by mistake can exchange same by calling at Bassett & Washburn's store, 178 North Wabash avenue.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. report that the out-of-town demand for stock is surprisingly good this week and that large quantities of all seasonable flowers are being shipped out each day. Miss Nettle Parker, secretary of this firm, who lives at Joliet, is from another Illinois town that has already overbought its share of the Third Liberty Bonds.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s employees will go over the top strong in the Third Liberty Loan campaign for it took August Poehlmann some little time on April 9 to take all their applications for bonds at the store and there is no question but what the boys at the greenhouses will do their bit.

Wieter Bros. are starting to cut roses quite heavily and the shipments include particularly fine Sunburst and Ophelia. Carnations are selling better this week and the shipments are cleaning up more quickly than heretofore.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Bismarck hotel, April 4, President Lautenschlager in the chair. A large attendance was attracted by the announcement that the all-important coal question would be fully discussed by coal experts. Seated at the head of the table with the officers of the club were George F. Stahmer, president of the Fort Dearborn Coal Co.; R. E. Moore, of C. M. Moderwell & Co., and E. W. McLellan, of San Francisco, Calif. C. L. Washburn introduced the coal matter by stating that the growers are now facing the problem of planting for next season's supply of cut flowers and should have early and definite information as to the amount of coal the fuel administration will permit them to use. To that end, he suggested that the club request its coal committee to communicate as early as possible with Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, with a view to obtaining the desired information, and on the motion of M. Barker a resolution was adopted accordingly.

Mr. Stahmer, in discussing the coal situation, said that under existing conditions a fall or winter shortage is inevitable, but that it is comparatively easy to secure good coal at the present time in any reasonable quantity, and advised the growers to put in their supplies at once, protecting it against the weather.

Mr. Moore called attention to the faulty methods of many greenhouse-men in the storing and use of coal, and claimed much saving could be effected by greater care and better workmanship and equipment. He urged the growers to buy good coal, rather than inferior grades, the former occupying no more space than the poorer types of coal, while it lasts longer and is the cheapest in the end. He recommended Indiana No. 4, Franklin County and Williamson County as good coals for the growers of this territory.

Mr. Washburn told of keeping a considerable quantity of coal in the open, fully exposed to the weather, all through the summer last year without serious loss.

Chairman Waters, of the good-of-the-club committee, here interposed, and an interesting discussion was adjourned for the fine dancing and musical delights of the "Garden of the Allies," the latest of the versatile Tim's many clever productions and one which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience.

GOOD SUPPLY MOVES BRISKLY.

Business following the big Easter rush has held up unusually well, and while stock has been plentiful it has been well cleaned up from day to day. Carnations slowed up somewhat, due to the tight cutting for Easter, but roses hold about the same and bulbous stock is plentiful in all varieties and is used in large quantities in the day's work. Sweet peas are none too numerous, but lilies work in well. Pot plants are in more limited supply than for many months, and the demand is quite brisk. Hospital orders and funeral work have been strong factors during the past week. A visit to the growing establishments in this vicinity shows active preparations for the spring trade.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes says he is more than satisfied with his Easter business and

A. F. Barbe is cutting excellent carnations and Ophelia roses. He is carrying a good spring stock to meet his usual demand.

H. Kusik & Co. report stock scarce at times, as both local and out-of-town demand is strong.

A. Mohr reports his spring stock in good shape, with orders arriving well in advance.

MARKET SUFFERS FROM OVERSUPPLY.

By way of contrast, the business of Easter week as compared with that of the week just closed, was like a bright sunny day, followed by a pitch-dark night. To begin with, there were at least twice as many flowers thrown on the market as were received for Easter week. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, in fact, all the varied stocks were offered in any quantity. There was, of course, not one fourth the demand of the holiday week, with the inevitable result that prices slumped until no reasonable or unreasonable offer was refused. In all the wholesale houses, the telephones were kept going overtime soliciting business. Even the out-of-town customers were called or wired and made alluring offers in the effort to keep the stock moving. The weather, while cool, was bright, and this together with the low prices, induced the street men to stock up, especially on Friday and Saturday, when they carted the accumulations of the week away by the wagon load, at clean-up prices. The quality of almost everything is all that could be desired. If the demand could only be equally speeded up with production, what a wonderful business this would be.

NOTES.

Those fellows that have not yet given to the S. A. F. publicity fund should come across; the larger their contribution, and the quicker they get it working, the sooner will come the desired results. This movement is being very poorly supported by the rank and file in this city. A few have come forward handsomely. Why should not everyone chip in according to their means? It is the personal interest of the individual that is going to make this movement a success. His money invested, the campaign as planned carried out and personally supported, the literature well distributed, and window cards and signs working all the time are bound to bring good individual results. The brightest minds in the business have given their time, talents and money to this movement, entirely without remuneration. Let everybody join in and help create this additional demand, that is to stimulate the whole trade, and particularly their own individual business.

The parcels post department of the postoffice at Washington is much interested in the use that is being made of the facilities of this service by shippers of cut flowers. The difficulties and inefficiency of the express companies' deliveries the past year, finally induced a trial of the parcels post service. This, when goods were properly packed, marked and delivered to the depot to make desired trains, was found to be almost ideal, as special delivery packages for even the third zone, 600 miles the way Carl Cortis of the Jas. Heacock Co., sums up the situation.

The light wooden packing boxes for cutflowers are running short, and both box and lumber men are not anxious to make contracts for the future as it is very difficult now to get cars for transporting this class of lumber, which is or was at one time considered waste.

Robert Craig, the week after Easter said pointing to a block of 500 good looking Easter lilies just coming into flower: "This is all we failed to make out of 20,000 plants. All were sold at good prices; in fact, we cleaned out of everything in flowering plants.

Stuart Miller, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, found it hard work to move their large stock, but had quite a few good shipping orders. Good work with the telephone also helped out. Choice and medium roses are a feature here.

John Andre, Doylestown, who is well known as a successful rose grower, is also in the coal business. He has recently installed a machine which cleans and sorts coal and places the same in sacks faster than three men can load it on the trucks.

"There are many more flowers than are required for the demand, since Easter," quotes Edward Reid. "I look for better business next week."

Eugene Bernheimer finds it difficult to handle his large stock of roses, the bottom seeming to have dropped out of everything.

SHARP DECLINE FOLLOWS EASTER.

A sharp decline in the volume of business and in prices always follows a great holiday trade, and the past week was no exception. The Easter business made a fairly good cleanup on cut flowers, and on the morning of April 1 the supply was light. Prices held up for a short time, but soon dropped. By the latter part of the week, the best special American Beauty roses were down to the rate of $40 per 100 and inferior stock was selling much cheaper. The general run of special tea roses dropped to $10 and $12 and carnations to $2.50 and $3 with a few fancies at $4 and $5. As was to be expected, cut lilies were slaughtered. Although the nights were cool there was clear sunshine throughout the week, consequently the lilies that were not in flower for Easter kept coming in and by April 6 the best could be bought for 6 to 8 cents per flower. Lily of the valley and violets also dropped. Violets are unlikely to be much of a factor for the remainder of this season. Orchids and gardenias are not particularly plentiful but there are enough to supply the light demand, and as a matter of course, there are no Easter prices. In tulips, narcissi, sweet peas, yellow daisies, snapdragons, stocks, pansies and various other flowers, there is a liberal supply at unsteady prices, though long stem Spencer sweet peas sell well. We look for business to be quiet throughout this month on account of the Liberty Bond campaign; but considering what is at stake we do not believe that there will be any fault-finding; there certainly should be none.

April 8.—It is practically impossible to fix a price on the majority of stocks today as there is a great supply and a light demand. Roses are particularly plentiful and our quotations elsewhere are what the bulk of the stock sells for—if it sells when fresh. Stock that is carried over cannot be quoted, as it usually goes, at such a time as this, at the buyer's price. Lilies, sweet peas and various other stocks are in about the same condition as roses. A few Ulrich Brunner are arriving and have started at fair figures, but it is impossible to guess what the prices will be when a larger supply arrives. We are cutting out violets as they are no longer factors in the market.

NOTES.

Reed & Keller, who are always inventing something new, have new features. One may be called a nest of wire wreaths, of which 100 will take less space in shipping or storage than 25 of the old kind. They are also manufacturing models, in four sizes of the noted battle "tanks." On top, a large vase for flowers is inserted, and the entire outfit can be handsomely decorated.

The Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, does not let up on fine window decorations, even when business gets a little slow. We recently noticed a fine window display of tall and finely flowered acacias, flanked with large ferns, and a foreground of many baskets and vases of all the popular spring flowers.

At the store of Wm. H. Long, 412 Columbus avenue, we found business quite active in April. He has had long experience as a retailer and is an expert designer and decorator. Mrs. Long has the happy combination of a business and artistic temperament, so valuable in the florist business.

Mrs. K. Kopp, formerly of 1766 Broadway, Brooklyn, has taken a much larger store at the corner of Broadway and Marion street, Brooklyn, for her retail business. Robert H. Smith, well known in the wholesale district, is her manager and buyer.

George Hildebrand of John Young & Co. is serving on the jury in the criminal court, general sessions, where Judge McIntyre presides, but he gets a glimpse of the store occasionally.

W. H. Elliott of Boston cancelled his engagement to speak at the club meeting, April 8, on account of death in his family. The address of Kenneth Gillett was also postponed.

Sergeant Robert Burnett of Company L 113 Infantry, Camp McClellan, Ala., has been in the city on a 10 days' leave, visiting his father, George Burnett, the seedsman.

Nicholas G. Pappas & Co., 112 West 28th street, are now receiving a good stock of Ulrich Brunner roses.

New York Florists' Club.

The club met in its rooms on the night of April 8, President Schenck in the chair. Routine business was quickly disposed of and a short recess was taken. On reconvening, President Schenck made a stirring Liberty Bond address, which, so to speak, set the ball rolling.

President Frank Traendly, of the Wholesalers' Protective Association, announced that a meeting of that body had been held in the afternoon at which the combined subscriptions of the members amounted to $22,500, as follows: The Kervan Co., $5,000; P. F. Kessler, $2,500; P. J. Smith, $2,000; H. E. Froment, $2,000; Joseph J. Levy, $2,000; Traendly & Schenck, $2,000; Herman Komitsch, $2,000; J. S. Fenrich, $1,000; Myer Othille, $1,000; W. P. Ford, $1,000; Wm. Kessler, $1,000; A florist (secured by F. H. Traendly), $1,000; John I. Raynor, $500; Paul Meconi, $500; A. H. Langjahr, $500; Maurice Glass, $200; Frank Millang, $100. In addition to these, P. W. Popp and John Canning each subscribed for $100 bonds at the meeting.

A motion for a subscription from the club of $5,000 was carried by a unanimous vote. Individual subscriptions at the meeting swelled the total amount by florists and allied traders to $42,000. A number of individual subscriptions follow: Lord & Burnham Co., $5,000; Joseph A. Manda, $1,000; A. T. Bunyard $1,000; Kervan Co. employees, $1,000; Max Schling, $500; Alfred Van Praag, $500; Roman J. Irvin, $200; Peter Gerlaid, $200; Harry Ramen, $100; John Scheepers, $500; A. H. Schneider, $500; Emil Schloss, $500; Chas. Schwake, $300; G. M. Koppel, $200; Henry Dierks, $200; S. G. Milosv, $100; E. Baumwater, $100; W. F. Leary, $50; Jos. Fasseda, $50.

President Totty, of the S. A. F., was present and ably supported the enthusiastic movement. He had previously subscribed $1,000 in his home city of Madison, N. J. He wishes to appeal to the florists of the whole country to buy bonds—till they feel it. A number of solicitors were appointed who will, in the interest of the bonds, visit every florist in Greater New York. The names of the committee of the club having this in charge will be found elsewhere.

A detailed report of the flower show committee could not be given at this meeting, but it was stated that the receipts were $29,500 and the expenses $11,000, the $1,000 donated the Red Cross not included. When premiums and expenses are paid, there will be a profit. Arthur Herrington, who superintended the show, addressed the club, saying in part that if the show had been supported as well as it was last year, it would have been more successful. This year, both exhibits and the sale of trade tickets fell off. Mr. Herrington called particular attention to the commendable efforts of President Schenck in securing exhibits from the department of parks and John Scheepers, in securing the exhibits of Col. W. B. Thompson. President Totty thought the show compared favorably with former shows. Max Schling said that the retail florists missed a great opportunity to advertise their business. A. T. Bunyard said that the show should have had better support from the retailers. Both Messrs. Bun-yard and Schling were exhibitors. Frank H. Traendly, John Scheepers and Vice-president Popp gave their views relating to the show.

The club's dinner committee reported a small deficit on the banquet held at the Hotel McAlpin at the time of the show.

Secretary Young announced the death of J. Harrison Dick, editor of the Exchange. A. T. De La Mare, A. Herrington and President Totty were appointed a committee to prepare suitable resolutions. President Totty paid tribute to Mr. Dick's fine character in a feeling manner and said his untimely death was a great loss to the club. Arthur Herrington spoke of his acquaintance with Mr. Dick.

J. Ebb Weir & Son, Jamesport, N. Y., exhibited a vase of white snapdragon seedlings. Emil Fardel, Great Neck, N. Y., staged a vase of seedling freesias.

Chairman Kesler and his staff of the house committee furnished refreshments. A. F. F.

N. Y. Florists' Liberty Loan Committee.

A meeting of the above named committee was held at the office of Secretary Young of the S. A. F., April 4. There were present President Schenck of the club, chairman; Frank H. Traendly, A. L. Miller, President Theopine of the Greek-American Florists' Association, Ferdinand Fleischman, A. T. De La Mare, A. T. Bunyard and Secretary Young. Messrs. Parker and Sims, of the Equitable Life Insurance Association, were present and addressed the committee, detailing what was expected of the New York florists in their section of the trade committee for the work of the third Liberty Loan campaign.

Headquarters have been established at the offices of the Lord & Burnham Co., in the 42nd street building, and T. B. DeForest, of that firm, will act as honorary secretary of the committee. Arrangements were made for a special meeting of the florists of Greater New York, and for prominent speakers to state the importance of the situation, and to successfully launch the drive.

May we be permitted to add a few lines in support of this vital movement.

We, the florists, are a part of this nation, and whether native or foreign born, it has impartially sheltered and protected us. Our nation, with others, is engaged in the greatest war that has ever ravaged this earth. We are sending thousands—it may be millions—of our best young men to do battle on a foreign soil; not to acquire territory or transient glory, but to preserve the sacred rights handed down to us by the fathers. We must not lose this war. We cannot lose it, if our brave men on the battle lines and our brave women, ministering to the sick and wounded behind the lines, are supported by a patriotism that rises above

The 1st of May Thrift Stamp Day In The U. S. A.

The Active Co-operation of Every Reader of
The American Florist

Is Urgently Requested To Make It a Success

May 1st, 1918, will be observed throughout the United States as Thrift Stamp Day! On that day retail stores everywhere in every line of business will ask customers to take part of their change in Thrift Stamps! It will be patriotic for every man, woman and child to accept at least one Thrift Stamp as change on every purchase made that day—and to make as many purchases as possible on May 1st.

Here is a big, practical way of getting millions of Thrift Stamps into the hands of the people of the United States, and of insuring the success of the Government's War Savings Stamps campaign. Thrift Stamp Day will help everyone. It will prove a tremendous boost to business. On May 1st, 1918, the nation should do the biggest total retail business of any single day in our history! The beneficial habit of Thrift will be sown broadcast among the citizens of the U. S. A.! Most important of all, Uncle Sam will be furnished with the sinews of War and Victory!

American business must go "over the top" at once in a quick drive to make Thrift Stamp Day an overwhelming success. You wholesalers, you jobbers, you salesmen, must talk Thrift Stamp Day among your trade, arouse the enthusiasm of the retailers, the storekeepers, the clerks behind the counters. Uncle Sam needs your help. A practical plan has been prepared showing how each one of you can "do your bit" to make Thrift Stamp Day a red letter day in American business annals. Write for this plan today without fail. Remember, in helping Uncle Sam you are helping business and helping yourselves. Address Mr. W. Ward Smith, National War Savings Committee, 51 Chambers St., New York City.

all selfish considerations and a liberality that will be the glory of future generations.

We have not a doubt that the florists of New York will subscribe their share to the third Liberty Loan and to others that may follow. A. F. F.

EASTER TRADE HOLDS ITS OWN.

Easter business this year was very good. There may have been no increase in the total amount, but there was a marked increase of sales, in both cut blooms and plants, with considerably more work and expense in delivery, but this was made easy by exceptionally fine weather and good roads. Nearly all plants in bloom were rather far advanced, showed the effects of hard forcing, and when brought into the store from the greenhouses, soon opened wide their buds, and the flowers faded. Lilies were sold out early Saturday but a few places open on Sunday showed them again. Bulbous plants were plentiful, especially tulips of good quality. Hydrangeas were good and rather high in price. There were few other things shown. Pot grown roses were scarce and a few genistas, acacias and Primula obconica on hand moved quickly. Made up baskets sold very well up to $5, but moved slowly much above that figure. Cut flowers threatened to be very scarce but, owing to the fine weather came in quite plentiful, the wholesale price being rather high and did not allow of much profit. Funeral work to a certain extent interfered with the Easter business.

NOTES.

There is about the usual outlook for spring trade. Bedding plants are grown to perfection, the seedsmen are busier than ever, and the landscape gardeners, after a very long and hard winter, are getting ready, and there are many inquiries for nursery stock.

The Montreal Horticultural Association and the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club will assist the Khaki League again this year in the planting and cultivating of plots of land for returned soldiers.

Mrs. Hill has taken charge of Geo. Hopton's store. Mr. Hopton will devote his whole time to the increased trade at his greenhouses.

Miss Cairns will open a new store nearer the busy part of St. Catherine street, vacating her old stand.

The Hill Floral Co. has taken over the store of S. D. Bains, who went out of business.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

PEA planting this season is much in advance of last year's, six weeks earlier in the west.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district this week are selling at $3.50 for colors and $4.00 for whites, in small lots to dealers.

ELSEWHERE in this issue, will be found, an item of vital interest to seedsmen who handle imported stocks, especially bulbs.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The A. J. Brown Seed Co., is putting out an acreage in excess of 10,000 of both garden and food beans.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade April 10 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A fire which recently caused a loss of several million dollars completely destroyed the establishment of the Missouri Seed Co., the loss being placed at $250,000.

MIAMI, FLA.—Samuel L. Allen, senior member of the firm of S. L. Allen & Co., manufacturers of agricultural implements, Philadelphia, Pa., died here recently in his seventy-seventh year.

FLORAL PARK, N. Y.—John Lewis Childs, Inc., reports heavy demand during March. Advertising returns were not up to the usual mark, there being fewer requests for catalogues than ever before.

D. I. BUSHNELL, of St. Louis, Mo., though suffering from a bad cold the past three weeks, has been able to attend to unusually heavy business, handicapped by many government restrictions.

HONEOYE FALLS, N. Y.—Fire of supposed incendiary origin, April 5, destroyed five buildings of the W. H. Osborne Company's canning plant, including $20,000 worth of seed peas and seed corn valued at $10,000, the total loss being $100,000.

TOLEDO, O.—March clover, cash, was unchanged April 6, at $20.20, closing at the same price as on the previous day. Receipts were 9 bags, shipments, 577. Timothy was unchanged; old quoted at $3.67; new, $3.70; April, $3.70; September, $4.17, and October, $4.05.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—Recent visitors included J. C. Vaughan and wife, Chicago, returning north from Miami, and W. B. Hayt, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y. Mr. Hayt, the Johnny Applesseed of the southern seed trade, according to his annual custom, at this season, is starting in at this lower edge of the Atlantic coast and following the development of the open season for shad as it moves northward; just now the St. John's river run is on the tables here, but Mr. Hayt allows that the Potomac river run excels most catches and is alternating here with pompano.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The rainfall for the season to April 5 was 13.43 inches; last season, 14.59 inches.

LEM W. BOWEN, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., plans to remain at Miami, Fla., until about April 15.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., A. T. Ferrell of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., W. H. Small of W. H. Small & Co., Evansville, Ind.

TORONTO, ONT.—Steele, Briggs Seed Co., Ltd., report that the trade has been fully up to expectations. The demand for vegetable and field seeds has been good, but there has been a slight falling off in the flower section.

LACROSSE, WIS.—The John A. Salzer Seed Co. reports that all garden and field seeds are moving in greater proportion than ever before. The large force, working day and night, is taxed to its utmost to keep up with orders.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—John B. Davis has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife whose death occurred March 31. Services were held in St. Joseph's church the following Monday morning, after which the remains were taken to the train and conveyed to her old home in Picton, Ont., where the funeral was held April 3.

Catalogues Requested.

Consul General W. Henry Robertson reports from Buenos Ayres, Argentina, that numerous inquiries have been made for flower and garden seeds and nursery stock, and suggests that American exporters in this line send their catalogues for the file of the consulate general.

Western Seedsmen's Association.

The annual meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association will be held at the Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, Mo., April 20. As this promises to be the biggest and most interesting meeting in the history of the association, it is hoped that every member will make a special effort to be represented.

H. P. WEBSTER, Sec'y.

New York Seed Trade.

Business continues exceptionally active in the seed trade district. Frank Woodruff of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, states that there are plenty of seed potatoes at the average price of $5 per barrel. George Campbell, office manager for this firm, who has been with them for 15 years, has been ill for the past four weeks, but is now reported as improving.

Patrick O'Mara, of Peter Henderson & Co., said April 5, that they were having a remarkable business which our own observations confirm. In their spring catalogue, they made an appeal for early orders, and the response was prompt. As far back as February, they were nearly swamped with orders, but worked through and are yet going strong. One noteworthy feature at this store is, that they employ a great number of men and women, and have been able to fill their orders without any night work.

Alfred J. Rickards, son of W. J. Rickards, Jr., who has been three years with J. M. Thorburn & Co., has donned the khaki and is now stationed at Newport News, Va.

James McHutchison of McHutchison & Co. is home again after an extended southern and western trip.

A. F. F.

Snow's Crop Report.

Snow's crop report for April 1 makes the condition of winter wheat 79.3, against an official return of the same figure last December, and an April condition last year of 63.4. The average decline between December 1 and April 1 for the last 10 years has been 5.7 points. This season there has been a very marked improvement in all the territory east of the Missouri river, but a sharp loss of prospect in Nebraska and Oklahoma since December 1 and a small decline in Kansas and Texas, which offsets the good improvement elsewhere. Since these local returns were made widespread and fairly satisfactory rains have been experienced in the southwest, so that the actual prospect at this date is now undoubtedly better than these conditional figures would indicate. The acreage of winter-killed is the smallest reported in many years. Based upon previous experience, the present report may be safely taken as indicating a crop possibility of at least 565,000,000 bushels, against a harvest last year of 418,000,000. The season is much earlier than normal and oat seeding under almost perfect weather and soil conditions has been largely completed as far north as northern central Illinois and central Iowa. Because of labor shortage, farmers have taken advantage of the opportunity to seed a crop which requires no labor for cultivation and the acreage, therefore, shows a material increase over that of last year. The crop is reported as up with a good stand as far north as southern Illinois and central Missouri.

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., find the vegetable seed business much stronger than the phenomenal demand of 1917. It is the impression, however, that on account of the experience of last year and the largely advertised scarcity of seed, customers are buying earlier and the busy period will be over sooner than last season. Although some seeds are scarce, there is a good general stock on hand or en route, poor transportation delaying the incoming supply to a great extent. A car load of California bush and pole limas, which was shipped January 7 and arrived April 3, was a life saver.

A greater demand than last season and scarcity in nearly all lines is reported by the Stokes Seed Co. Western onion sets have arrived in bad condition, being so long on the way that they have sprouted. Several carloads for various houses in this city have been refused on this account. Local stocks suffered from the several spells of below zero weather, which badly damaged the outside layers and tops of crated stock while in storage. Frozen sets have to be handled very carefully and thawed out gradually, and even then, there is bound to be loss.

The Robert Buist Co. has been fairly swamped with business, so much so that for the last three weeks in March, they had to close the doors two days each week, and finally from Monday until Saturday the past week, so as to have the entire force available to put up orders. Railroad congestion caused much of the trouble, deliveries of seeds to them being months behind. Much good business had to be turned down. Stocks are coming in faster now, and things look brighter.

Exceptionally busy in all departments, is the condition with the Henry F. Michell Co. All the regular force are now working every night trying to keep up with the orders. A new edition of the catalogue, which was 15,000 larger than last year, has been found necessary. Some stocks are running low, but as yet they have been able to fill all orders.

I. N. Simon & Son have found their new location a very advantageous move. Both the wholesale and retail departments are doing a splendid business. Transportation difficulties have added to the expense as orders have to be made in several shipments as the goods arrive.

General average prices are 50 per cent greater than the high mark of last season. Parsnip is very scarce as is New Zealand spinach. Onion and beet have greatly advanced in price. In fact, vegetable seeds were never as scarce or high in price as at this time. K.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—It is understood that R. H. Shumway, the veteran seedsman, will pay a United States tax for 1917 in excess of $30,000.

THE sweet potato weevil, a most dangerous enemy to the sweet potato, is responsible for the complete abandonment of some Florida fields.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—A shipment of nearly 50,000 ladybirds from California are being used to combat the aphid on truck crops in this vicinity.

THE first cars of new onions of a crop estimated at 7,000 cars or more were reported ready to move March 28, according to Market News. Shortage of cars complicates the movement.

ATLANTA, GA.—D. A. Russell, director of school gardens in this city, reports that it is expected that not less than $100,000 worth of vegetables will be grown by the children this season.

FOLLOWING protests from growers in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, the food administration has announced that the law gives no authority for the army and navy to place a price of $21 per ton on tomatoes grown in Virginia for canning purposes.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 9.—Mushrooms, home-grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per carton; lettuce, box, 17 to 20 cents; radishes, 35 to 60 cents per dozen bunches; celery, $2.00 to $2.25 per box; tomatoes, per 6 baskets, $2.00 to $4.00; cucumbers, per box, $2.00 to $2.75.

New York, April 8.—Celery, per crate, $1 to $2; cucumbers, $1.25 to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, 40 cents to $1.80 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports of market conditions by the United States department of agriculture for the period April 2-8, indicate that old potatoes still present a weak feeling both at primary markets and consuming centers. Northern growers showed a tendency to cling to prices of the previous week in spite of a discouraging demand. The movement of Texas Bermuda onions has started with 62 cars reported to April 8. Some fear is felt as to the result of competition with a plentiful supply of old stock which is moving slowly. Old yellow stock in northern markets is weak at a range of from 50 cents to $1. Old cabbage remains fairly steady. Prices to growers in western New York narrowed to $10-$12 from the former wide range of $10-$16, while sales by shippers at Rochester ended a trifle weaker at $20-$22 per ton, f. o. b. New stock in producing sections ranged fairly steady. From Florida, the movement of new stock was 519 cars. Prices of tomatoes in Florida shipping sections have settled to $2.50 per fancy crate with a weak range of $3-$4.25 at consuming centers. Practically all southern vegetables showed weak tendencies.

Cucumber Plants.

It is often desirable to carry part of the glass area in lettuce as long as possible. There is more money in lettuce during April and May than at any other time, because at this time we can raise a crop in one-half, or even one-third, of the time required in midwinter, and very often the price is fully as good. Very little or no heat is required. We have had growers tell us that if it were not for this last crop their entire lettuce campaign would be a failure financially.

To follow this last crop of lettuce, the cucumber is much better suited than tomatoes. Cucumbers are more rapid in development and the market generally stands longer in our favor than with tomatoes. To raise good cucumber plants requires only 30 days. Would advise growers to start with a brisk heat; if a warm house is not obtainable, make a hot bed. You can also make a manure heated hot bed right in the greenhouse. If grown in pots, plunge the pots in coal ashes, sawdust or sand—but not in soil as if your plants should root through into rich soil they resent moving. Inverted sods, 4x4 inches, make a very good start for cucumbers. Place these, grass down, upon the manure, and with a knife dig a hole and plant three or four seeds in each square. Towards the end we move or lift these sods a little to see that no plants root away from home.

Cucumber seedlings may be started in flats and later potted up, but it requires a good operator to succeed that way. In flats, the soil should be rather poor and shallow, not over one inch deep. This will cause the seedlings to come short-rooted and a little hungry, in which condition they transplant much easier than if given ample depth and good soil. Cucumbers resent a check of any kind, either in temperature, moisture or nourishment, hence, be good to them. Anything below 60° in temperature is unfavorable, and a little above 65° is best. Therefore, do not combine lettuce and cucumbers. Better grow the lettuce alone and the cucumber plants elsewhere, and when the lettuce is cut, turn the heat on and push the cucumbers.

A soil for cucumbers should contain plenty of humus. If short, we can add fresh manure without injury. In fact, they like to roam with their roots in coarse material. And always to balance the manure we should use bone meal or acid phosphate. Lime is another ingredient that is essential. If added in quantity, it is better given in the form of raw, pulverized limestone. If used while growing, air slaked or hydrate lime can be used in small quantities.

MARKETMAN.

GALENA, ILL.—In commemoration of the close of the first year of the war, Miss Cecilia Vandervate, arranged one of the most original and artistic displays in the window of the Vandervate Flower Shop ever seen in this city and which has received generous commendation both for beauty and cleverness of the design.

An Early-Flowering Hawthorn.

The first hawthorn to bloom in the arboretum every year is Crataegus nigra, a native of southeastern Europe.
The arboretum specimen is a shapely tree from 15 to 18 feet high, with a broad compact head and a well-formed trunk covered with pale scaly bark.
The leaves are broad, deeply lobed, covered below with soft hairs, and grayish green in color. The flowers are hardly more than half an inch in diameter, with 20 stamens, and anthers faintly tinged with rose, and are borne in small compact clusters. As the flowers fade the petals turn rose color. As a flowering tree Crataegus nigra is less beautiful than many of the American thorns, but the black and lustrous fruit is unusual in color among thorn trees. The color of the fruit and the earliness of the flowers make this an interesting addition, however, to the list of small trees with showy flowers which can be successfully cultivated in Massachusetts.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin,
June 9, 1917.

Albany.

EASTER TRADE WAS GOOD.

The reports on Easter business in this city are good. The dealers say that the demand was fully up to last year—the war apparently made no difference in the volume of sales. The great call was for plants from 50 cents to $3 each. The dealers did not have a large enough supply to fill the needs along these lines. There was a good call for corsages, and violets and sweet peas sold well. Violets brought from $2 to $3 a hundred. The supply of cut flowers was on the whole plentiful.
Azaleas were in demand but very few of them were to be had.

At the April meeting of the florists' club President Earl Shaw announced his resignation to take effect at once.
Mr. Shaw, who has been superintendent for George C. Hawley, president of the Dobler Brewing Company of this city, has accepted a position as superintendent of a private place near New York City. He will take up his new duties on April 20. The election of a successor was left over until the May meeting. Mr. Shaw is a graduate of Cornell University where he studied under Prof. E. A. White of the department of floriculture.

Nashville, Tenn.

POST-LENTON BUSINESS EXCELLENT.

The trade following Easter has kept up splendidly and the daily cut of flowers has been large. There are plenty of roses and carnations, and many lilies that missed Easter have come in. In reviewing the Easter trade, everyone expressed the most perfect satisfaction and said the sales passed their most sanguine expectations and far beyond any thing in their experience.

NOTES.

Following a plan of a syndicate of stores over the country, the branch in this city put on sale 3,000 rose plants of 55 varieties, 500 shrubs of 11 varieties and 1,000 plumosus and Boston ferns. The Cartner-Knott store did the same thing last year and sold all plants at nine cents, but this year raised the price to 12½ and 15 cents.
The sale was an immense success, and by Saturday night there were less than 300 plants of any kind left.

The holding of the state meeting of the Women's National Council of Defense in this city called for a lot of flowers, at both the luncheon and at the evening session. Dr. Anna Shaw spoke. Beautiful tributes were sent the speaker and the singer, Christine Miller Clemens, and the stage was elaborately decorated in spiraeas, irises and red carnations, while the bouquets were of lilies and American Beauty roses.

The death of one of the jubilee singers, who died in Los Angeles, and was brought to this city, called for a tremendous supply of funeral flowers.

Windsor, Ont.

The florists here enjoyed a record-breaking Easter demand that gave no indications of war conditions that have been associated with business for nearly four years. All classes of people bought plants and flowers with an avidity never before experienced by those in the trade here. Chas. R.
Tuson's store, with a conservatory attached, was ablaze with a display of seasonable plants throughout the week that attracted throngs of buyers, and Saturday night found the place nearly deplete of stock with hundreds of orders to fill. At the Windsor Flower Shop, a fine array of plants was maintained throughout the week, consisting of fine lilies, especially fine azaleas and bulbous plants in various sizes.

A big stock of cyclamens was a conspicuous item in the splendid display.
Of these, the lighter shades found ready sales as a popular priced flowering plant. Miss Lucretia Bamford, manager of the place, reports the best trade ever experienced and with prices fully equal to those realized across the river in Detroit, where she got her first experience in the florist business.

There is a fast developing trade in
F. T. D. orders throughout the Dominion and the States. Much of the stock of both plants and flowers used here comes from London and Toronto, Ont.

LARGEST GROWERS IN AMERICA

These Prices Are Intended for the Trade Only.

St. Louis Snap.

After growing this wonderful Snap, for the past three years, we have decided to put it on the market, and as a duty to your business you should have some to grow this coming season.

In color it is all that can be desired in a lavender pink. In growth it is no doubt the strongest growing commercial variety ever put on the market. We are now cutting strong spikes from four to six feet long. The heads of blooms are twelve inches long or more. The color does not fade and the spike keeps longer than any Snap we have ever grown. Above all, it is a great winter bloomer. We have cut constantly through the past winter months. Any St. Louis florist will testify to the above—Ask them about Rowe's St. Louis Snap.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.

of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, published weekly at Chicago, Ill., for March 29, 1918.

State of Illinois, County of Cook.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Michael Barker, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the editor and business manager of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, (and if a daily paper, the circulation, etc.) of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Publisher, American Florist Company, 440 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

Editor and Business Manager—Michael Barker, 440 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or, if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock.) Estate of E. Asmus, W. Hoboken, N. J.; M. Barker, 440 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.; W. Atlee Burpee Estate, 485 N. Fifth St., Philadelphia, Pa.; John Burton, Willow Grove Ave., Chestnut Hill, Pa.; J. D. Carmody, Evansville, Ind.; W. W. Coles, Maple Hill Rose Farms, Kokomo, Ind.; Robt. Craig, 49th and Market Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.; J. B. Deamud, 1055 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; James Dean, Freeport, L. I., N. Y.; Emresia J. Dickey, care of Byron Reed Co., 212 S. 17th St., Omaha, Neb.; Wm. Falconer, Allegheny Cemetery, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Maggie Harris, 55th St. and Springfield Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Sarah Lonsdale, Lompoc, Calif.; Mrs. Catherine Mathison, Waltham, Mass.; John N. May, Summit, N. J.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Blanche L. Sailer, care of Randolph Sailer, 929 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; Estate of Louise Schiller, 2207 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.; H. A. Siebrecht, New Rochelle, N. Y.; W. J. Stewart, 147 Summer St., Boston, Mass.; J. C. Vaughan, 31 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.; Annie G. Whitnall, 4001 Harvard Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif.; C. B. Whitnall, 026 Locust St., Milwaukee, Wis.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 percent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.)

There are no bonds, mortgages or other securities outstanding against THE AMERICAN FLORIST.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY.

Michael Barker, Sec'y.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 29th day of March, 1918.

R. C. MEREDITH, Notary Public.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Asters.

The early and midseason asters should be planted out as early as the season will allow. If the plants are hardened off for two or three weeks in a cold frame and gradually given night air as soon as safe, they will endure the outside temperature much better than those carried directly from the warm greenhouse. The land should be prepared at once, and while asters will grow on almost any piece of ground, success or failure depends much on the proper preparation of the soil. Land that was manured last fall and plowed is by far the best, and all that will be required in the spring is a shallow plowing or disking and then leveling. It is well not to level off too large a tract at once, for heavy rains occur at this season which pack the soil down hard. Before planting, give the young plants a thorough watering, and if in boxes or the bench cut through the rows with a knife a day before planting. Lay the field out in rows from 25 to 20 inches apart, giving the branching varieties the greater distance, with a wider space every fifth or sixth row to provide a walk when cutting the flowers, and set the plants from 12 to 18 inches apart. Plant with a trowel, for the plants set in a dibbled hole will not take hold as quickly, and with the early asters the slight difference in time taken in planting is more than made up in the early blooming; the dibble packs the soil around the plant and the roots do not grow into it as freely, and the roots are also contracted in the small hole made by the dibble. As soon as the field is planted, if possible, give the plants a good watering and then cultivate lightly with a wheel hoe to loosen up the soil.

Rambler Roses.

The rambler roses for Memorial day will demand constant attention, for at this season of the year aphids and red spider increase very rapidly if the conditions are propitious. It is far better to keep these insects down by proper culture than to be obliged to resort to measures to kill them. Give the plants all the ventilation possible, but drafts will often cause mildew on the soft foliage, so these must be guarded against especially, and low ventilation, such as open doors with the wind drawing through the houses. Syringe thoroughly on bright days. There is no better prevention for red spider than a good syringing that will reach the under side of the leaves, which will quickly break up the colonies of spiders that gather there. If the plants require fumigation, it should be light, for often the young foliage is very tender and heavy fumigation with smoke quickly burns it. Where the pots are full of roots a watering with liquid manure or a mulch of sheep manure mixed with sifted soil will be found very beneficial and will add a lustre to the foliage and deepen the color of the flowers.

Primulas.

For plants of both P. sinensis and obconica, for blooming next spring, May is the best time to sow the seed, which germinates very readily at this time, but if this is delayed until June it will often be found quite difficult to get the seed to start well; and as the young seedlings grow very slowly they will require constant attention during the warm weather, for a few hours' sun when they are dry will cause the loss of all the plants. The soil should be sifted in a fine sieve, as the seed are very small, and they should not be covered with the soil, but sown thinly on the soil when loose and then pressed flat with a board. Watering should be done with a very fine rose on the can, so as not to wash the seeds or soil. At this season of the year the seed will germinate readily in almost any greenhouse, but it is well to cover the seed pan or box with glass to prevent too rapid evaporation, and until the plants begin to make growth keep the pots well shaded. Many growers wrap a piece of paraffine paper around the glass that is placed on the seed pan. This allows plenty of light to germinate the seed and will prevent the direct rays of the sun from burning up the young seedlings when they start to grow. As these young plants grow very slowly, some soils will often become caked or scaly, and if this occurs the top should be carefully broken up to allow the air to enter. As soon as three or four leaves are formed, pot in 2½-inch pots, not too deeply, but yet deep enough to have them stand erect. They should then be placed in a cool house, and much of the success of their culture depends upon the care and watering in their early growth. They are a moisture-loving plant and should never become dry, yet they are easily overwatered and will not make a good growth if continually kept soaked; frequent and light waterings are the best. A lightly shaded frame with the pots plunged in the soil and the sash lifted at top and bottom for free circulation of air is the best location for summer culture.

Pansies.

The sale of pansy plants will soon be at its height, and there is nothing that the florist or grower sells upon which more time is wasted than in selecting a small order of pansies if the customer is shown a frame of a few thousand plants. The better way is to have boxes or baskets holding a dozen plants all made up for the customer. It is not necessary to put up more than will be required for one or two days' sale, but as fast as sold keep the stock replenished. There are many patrons who will be well satisfied with a good selection already placed in a basket who will take an hour of a salesman's time in making their choice out of a frame. Any late seedlings should be planted in the frames at once, and these will make fine plants for late May or early June planting when the older plants are either sold or have become too large for bedding purposes.

Liberty Loan Not Call to Sacrifice.

BY PROF. EUGENE DAVENPORT.

All war means loss. There is no way for anybody to profit in time of war except by means that are either disloyal or piratical. This war calls for sacrifice. Some will sacrifice their hands and arms, others their feet and legs, still others their eyes, and more than 10,000,000 of men, women and children already have sacrificed their lives in the great struggle to determine whether Liberty shall perish from the earth. Every loyal man, woman and child will be willing to sacrifice all that he or she has to give. From this country only the soldier will be called upon to sacrifice life or limb, but everybody is called upon to sacrifice in food, in clothing, in comfort, and in property.

The Liberty bond is not a call to sacrifice. It is a financial investment at a rate higher than is afforded in many lines of business. The investment is as safe as the government itself. I wish sometimes that the Liberty bond were a call to sacrifice, for if we lose the war it will be through the failure of our civil population to learn the lesson of sacrifice. Will the bonds be lost if we lose the war? Possibly, and so will the title to our homes. If we lose the war, the deed to the farmer's home is not worth the paper it is written on. Therefore, economize to get funds for Liberty bonds. Then shall we win the war. In no other way can it be done. How much are we who do not fight willing to sacrifice? How much will we earn and save in order to win the war?

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Features for Mothers' Day.

Keep the date, Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 12, prominently displayed in the store and window. Comparatively few people, even yet, comprehend the significance of the day or take part in its observance.

On May 1, fill a window with "plants that mother will like"—choice, medium priced ferns, palms, rubbers, pandanus, etc., some in jardinieres. Such a display will be sure to attract attention and orders will likely be received in advance.

Later on, pans of self-colored pansies, all blue, all yellow, all white, or of forget-me-nots, lobelias, English primulas, etc., will add variety, and are generally quick sellers.

The American's Creed.

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

The above, by William Tyler Page, Friendship Heights, Md., a descendant of President John Tyler, was selected from several thousand and awarded a prize of $1,000 offered by the City of Baltimore in the national citizens' creed contest.

A very attractive window, costing but little, may be made with empty cut flower boxes of various sizes, tied up, some with, and others without, address tags. Several can be shown filled, with the lids off. Others empty, are decorated on the outside with a few flowers and green. Tastefully arranged with plants as a background, and a neat card, "Special Boxes of Flowers for Mothers' Day," such a window will be found to have good advertising value.

Mothers' day will never come into its own until it becomes the custom at this time to visit the cemetery and lay flowers on the graves of the parents who have passed away. Every encouragement should be given this feature, which, if it becomes general, will make this the greatest floral day of the year. Florists who cater to a cemetery trade, already find a good demand for wreaths and sprays for Mothers' day.

While there is an insistent call for white carnations, their sale should be discouraged as much as possible. They should not be featured or displayed in any way. Your mother's favorite flower or plant, or, "We are selling a good many of these which are very attractive," referring to something in stock, will have its effect with many buyers. The point to make is, that all flowers are beautiful and appropriate, each a favorite with some one.

As it is now the custom to hold Mothers' day services in all the churches and Sunday schools, there is a demand for palms for decorating, which is worth looking after. In many cases, each child is given a flower to wear or take home to mother. At the first celebration, Miss Jarvis had given to her, all the white carnations she thought she would need by the Leo Niessen Co. of Philadelphia, who had so many on hand they did not know what to do with them. They have since had a great return from this "bread thrown upon the water."

Dull Days in the Store.

Dull days will come sometimes several together when least expected. The capable manager will see, however, in these, an opportunity to get the various departments of the business brought up to the highest efficiency. As the principal demand in most stores is for funeral flowers, the stock of made-up magnolia and oak leaf wreaths and other designs will receive first attention. A good assortment is always to be carried, ready for decoration when the call comes. Mossed designs have a way of running low and valuable time in preparing them is lost on busy days. The man in charge here now has time to replenish his stock.

Dusting the stock of accessories, baskets, vases, jardinieres, flower bowls, etc., and rearranging them is a good job for an idle hour or two. Such work, however, should not be done in the middle or shopping hours of the day, for at that time the store must always look its best.

The cellar or basement very likely needs cleaning up. To keep order here is just as important as in the store. There should be bins or shelves for the various stocks stored. Wire designs should have their racks and be kept in place so that it can be seen at a glance if any of the various sizes are running low.

A waste paper press is an economic piece of machinery that will pay for itself over and over again, in the course of a year. Half the rubbish that gathers about the shop is paper; if this waste is put into the press every day or two, it keeps the floor clean and gradually becomes salable bales which turn in quite a little sum in the course of the year.

Old accounts can be looked up in these slow periods; in fact, every opportunity should be taken to keep accounts from getting behind. It is very important in collecting, if the money is not paid in full or in part, to get a promise when a payment or the balance may be looked for. Then be sure to be on the job at that time; it is the only way to clean up old accounts.

A good job for a dull day is to look over the orders for a year or two back, for a period embodying the next month or two. One may probably find several names there, that are not now so often seen on the books, and inquiries as to the reason are put on foot. Decorations, which then made busy days are seen, and some annual events that were being missed, are looked after. Keeping a lookout ahead for possible business is always in order; in fact, the successful man has coming events in mind at all times. Anniversaries of a great many occasions, occur during all seasons of the year. Much business springs from the floral decorations for these events. "Every day is somebody's birthday." Just a list of one's customers kept, as it is learned from the sending of flowers, is productive of much good business. Birthday circulars sent out a day or two ahead of these events, can be kept going all the year round.

When dull days find one with a good stock of flowers likely to go to waste, there is an opportunity to make them do missionary duty in winning new customers, by sending small, nicely arranged boxes of choice stock with literature and complements of the firm.

To be always and everlastingly on the job is the only sure road to success. The man who says: "Oh well, you cannot expect much just now" generally gets about what he expects. In the game of ten pins, "strikes," like the rushes in business, count up fast, but it is the man who consistently makes his "spares" that wins out. So it is with business. There must be something doing all the time, and he that contrives to keep up the interest by being ready for the various opportunities throughout the year, or as General Foch has recently said: "When you cannot find an opening, make one," will not experience many dull days.

Stand by the Flowers.

Never tolerate for a moment statements that reflect in any manner on the use of flowers—that it is disloyal to wear flowers during war times; that they are an extravagance not to be thought of; that all money spent for flowers should go to the Red Cross, etc.; that flowerbeds are to be planted to vegetables, even the lawns to be turned into potato fields.

First find out if the agitator ever bought flowers or knows anything about them. Some people never attend concerts because they do not care for, or have never made a study of music. Concerts or music are a waste of energy and money as far as they are concerned, as is art to those who care nothing for paintings and sculpture. Opinions on these subjects from such people are mere vaporings, very likely not at all consistent with their mode of living. There are, however, a number of people, lovers of flowers, who on account of this propaganda, have come to feel that they are doing a patriotic duty in depriving themselves of flowers or the pleasure of sending them to their friends.

The extent and importance of the business, and the great uplifting influence which the use of plants and flowers has had on the people of this nation; how flowers, more than anything else, are most appropriate to carry messages of love, congratulation, or condolence; how they cheer and enliven the sick room and have become through custom so interwoven in the social life that it is impossible to do without them, are facts which must be enlarged on whenever adverse criticism appears.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Spring Care.

The chrysanthemum requires considerable attention at this time, the most important parts of the work in this connection being the working along of the young plants and the propagation of enough stock to fill the need of the plantings for the coming season. The month of April may be called the most particular time for propagating the cuttings of a majority of the varieties for bench planting, but the grower's whole attention cannot be entirely given over to this part of the work. The early propagated stock of the exhibition and early flowering varieties now in pots must not be neglected. These should be shifted along as they need it. To get the finest blooms in their proper season, it is necessary to plant the early varieties into their permanent quarters sometime during the month of May, the earlier in the month the better. This gives them a long season to make growth and allows for the buds to be taken early in August.

Those who grow a miscellaneous lot of plants for Memorial day, and cannot devote any space to planting before June 1, can keep their plants in a good growing condition by shifting them up into 4-inch pots, then allow an inch or two of space between the pots. This will carry the plants over all right until the Memorial day rush is past, but it is better to do the potting before May 1, if possible, so that the plants can become well established by June 1, in time for planting. If the plants are now strong and healthy in 2¼ or 2½-inch pots, they can be potted direct into 4-inch. When this is done, a little extra care in the watering is necessary to prevent the soil from souring before the roots take hold thoroughly well.

Chrysanthemum plants while in the early stages of their young growth in the pots, do not require a very rich soil. A live, fresh soil is essential to keep them in active growth, but a very rich soil has a tendency to promote a soft, long-jointed growth, which is a detriment to their well-being. Every care possible should be given by the means of careful watering, attending closely to the ventilation, maintaining a cool temperature, as well as keeping them free of insects, so as in every way to encourage a short-jointed sturdy growth.

PROPAGATING.

The stock stools at this time of the year are in active growth and quickly throw up an abundance of cuttings. Advantage of this ought to be taken now, and every cutting that is wanted for the planting requirements made and put into the sand without further delay. Plants from cuttings taken now, form the bulk of the stock used for planting in the benches during June and July. It will take them all the time from now until they are needed for planting to make strong, well-established plants; it therefore becomes necessary to get all the cuttings intended for planting this season into the sand as soon as possible, and any grower that has the room, will do well to put in any surplus cuttings he may have, especially of the standard commercial varieties, for the indications are that more chrysanthemums will be grown this year, and there is sure to be a demand for young plants when planting time comes.

of six to eight long stem sprays. Some growers allow the plants to carry more than this number, but the more sprays the plants are allowed to develop, the more bench space must be allowed each plant. A very large number of pompons are grown from lished plants by this time. Strong plants in 4 or 5-inch pots can now be shifted into 6-inch. This size will carry them along until the first of June, when they can be given their final shift into 8 or 9-inch. For this potting they require a live, rich, soil made up of one part of well-rotted manure to three parts of good sod loam, to which can be added some coarse bone, soot and lime, according to the nature of the soil being used, but unless a grower has had experience in growing exhibition chrysanthemums in pots, it is safest to go a little slow at the start and be content with good blooms rather than go to the extreme of trying for extra fancy stock. Also, unless a grower is prepared for disappointment as well as good results, it is best to leave the growing of pot plants by the single stem method for exhibition cut bloom purposes to the expert and stick to the bench culture. There is no doubt, but that in the hands of a skilled grower, chrysanthemum blooms can be grown very much larger in pots than on the bench, but it entails considerably more trouble and takes time to learn how. New beginners who wish to try their hand at pot culture must make up their mind to pay the closest attention to the plants from start to finish, otherwise their efforts are bound to result in failure. HEATING ECONOMY RECORD BROKEN.

Boilers Supplying Vacuum System at Range of Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake, Ill.

Cuttings put in the sand now will need more shade and more frequent sprayings to keep them from wilting than those that were propagated during February and March. As long as the cuttings can be kept plump, they will root easily, but if allowed to wilt badly, rooting is much more difficult. As the cuttings become sufficiently rooted, pot them up before the roots have a chance to get hard and wirey, which they will quickly do if left in the sand very long at this time of the year when plant growth is so rapid.

It is best, when mapping out the season's planting, to arrange to work each section by itself as much as possible from start to finish. Work the early varieties along in a batch by themselves, separate from the mid-season sorts, and the same rule to apply between the mid-season and late varieties, and the pompons and singles to be kept entirely separate from any of the other types. By following this plan it is much easier to treat each section as it should be.

POMPON VARIETIES.

The pompons were good sellers last season and will be this year, having become extremely popular, but there is a tendency of the growers to plant too many of a color so near alike that flower at the same time that the buyers get tired of them. Much better returns will result by dividing the colors more evenly over the season so that there will not be such an abundance of yellow at one time, then pink, and then bronze, but supply enough of the different colors to make a variety. Cuttings of the pompons put in the sand now and topped two or three times during the growing season can be grown into large plants late struck cuttings, which are allowed to come up to a single spray and make nice stock for basket work where short stems can be used.

Heating Economy Record Broken.

Despite the unprecedented scarcity of fuel during the past winter, it is especially interesting to note what is believed to be a record for economy in heating at the range of Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake, Ill., well-known as a rose grower to the trade of Chicago and vicinity, who during the past year heated his entire establishment at a total cost of $.0482 per square foot of ground, this figure covering a full 12 months supply of coal, for as is well known roses require warmth during the entire year. This exceedingly low cost is all the more remarkable when it is taken into consideration that the weather during the past winter has been the most severe in many years, and that the heating expense of many other growers was more than double the above figure. It should be added, that in figuring the area of ground covered, the service building, 35x100 feet, as well as a small lean-to were not included.

The Schramm range consists of four iron-frame houses, Foley construction, each 40x225 feet, having a ground area of 36,000 square feet, devoted to Russell and Milady, Kyle & Foerster, the well-known Chicago wholesalers, say that these roses, grown by Mr. Schramm, are among the finest they have ever handled.

The range is heated by a vacuum system, the steam being produced at about 50 pounds at the boilers and supplied to the low pressure main at from two to five pounds through a pressure reducing valve. The low pressure main is run overhead along the center cross walk, the return main also running overhead alongside of the supply main to the vacuum pumps, which keep the system free of water of condensation and air, delivering the water to the boiler feed pumps and discharging the air into the atmosphere. All of the exhaust steam from the pumps is used again in the heating system after the oil has been extracted. The boilers and pumps are arranged in duplicate against the possibilities of a breakdown, and the pressure reducing valve as well as the various pump governors are bypassed, thus providing against any emergency. The accompanying illustrations will show the general arrangement of the apparatus in the boiler room. Mr. Schramm's residence is also heated from the same plant.

That this low unit cost is apt to stand as a record for some time to come, will be realized when the high prices florists in general had to pay for coal of an inferior quality is considered. Mr. Schramm's experience in this respect was certainly no more favorable than that of hundreds of others, for he paid an average price of $6 per ton for various kinds of Illinois coal, far inferior in quality to the fuel he is accustomed to using.

It may be mentioned that Mr. Schramm's heating equipment, which was designed and installed by the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, is similar to that used in large office buildings, hotels or any other plant designed for efficiency. A trip to Mr. Schramm's place is well worth anyone's while, as he not only has a model heating plant, but one of the most up-to-date ranges of glass in the United States.

Does College Education Pay?

Paper by Carl Reust, student in floriculture, University of Illinois, read at the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, Urbana, March 5-6, 1918.

Personally, I believe that I am expressing the consensus of opinion of college graduates when I sum up my answer to the above question by saying:

First, a college education teaches us that we know but little, and even after that four years of work, there is still much to learn.

Second, a college education gives us an appreciation of the finer things of life—art, music, literature and nature.

Third, a college education teaches us the fundamentals of science and the application of scientific principles to our chosen occupation.

Fourth, a college education brings to us a conception of our relations to our fellow men. It gives us confidence in ourselves, so that we can take the initiative; but it also teaches how to live with others, so that we can obey as well as command.

More specifically, we feel that we receive a training which will make us better florists. Not only will the work of the florist be of greater interest to us, but, because of this interest in the work, we will continue to study and grow and become more proficient. The florists' business is the result of a gradual development during 20 years. A working knowledge of the business may be acquired either by experience or by serving an apprenticeship. Either method is long and expensive. The wholesale florist grows highly specialized crops; the retail florist must be able to grow a large variety of plants and flowers. He must be able to make designs, corsage bouquets and plan decorations. Besides this, a knowledge of landscaping is often required.

To make a long story short, the student is to learn in four years what 20 years' experience has taught others. Four years of college work cannot teach us all these things, but it does teach us very much of that which florists have learned in 20 years' experience.

A university education will enable us to become better florists for another reason. In college we learn the principles underlying the various phases of our business. These phases may be classed into two groups: First, the production of plants. Second, the selling of the plants. In order to produce flowers and plants of high quality, it is necessary to know something about the reproduction or propagation of plants, things or factors affecting the growth of plants, spraying and fumigation and plant breeding.

PROPAGATION.

Plants may be reproduced first of all by seeds. We are taught that in order to germinate, seeds require heat, moisture and oxygen. And we are taught why these three things are necessary. In our laboratories we observe the effect of heat upon seeds in a wet and in a dry condition and immediately realize why it is necessary to store seeds in a dry, cool place.

Cutting is another means of propagation. We learn that we can cut down the evaporation, first, by trimming down the leaf surface, and, second, by increasing the humidity. Grafting is a means of propagation much used for roses. Our knowledge of the structure of the stem tells us it is necessary to get the outer portions of the stem together, for that is the zone of growth.

GROWTH.

Growth of plants is influenced by five factors: Water, light, fertility of the soil, air, and heat. Water is needed, for if a plant is in a wilted condition, no growth can take place. It is also a solvent for food materials contained in the soil. Light has two main effects upon plant growth; the presence of light retards plant growth, its absence causes an elongation of the stem. Heat has a similar effect; a high temperature produces a rapid soft growth, while a low temperature causes a slow and sturdy growth.

FERTILIZERS AND VENTILATION.

Fertilizers of different kinds produce different effects. For example, one rich in nitrogen causes a rapid growth. Phosphorus, in some cases, increases the yield of blooms.

Fresh air is needed to supply carbon-dioxide. Two other reasons for ventilation are the control of temperature and humidity.

DISEASES.

We may be able to furnish the right conditions for growth and yet partially fail. At certain times it becomes necessary to combat diseases and insects. A knowledge of the life history of a disease or an insect will enable one to fight it more successfully. In order to use fungicides and insecticides intelligently, it is well to know how they affect the plant as well as the insect.

If a person intends to do plant breeding, it is well to know the structure of the flower, the purpose of the pollen and a few simple laws governing the inheritance of character.

Besides being able to produce good plants, one must be able to sell them. During your four years in the university we meet many people and have a good chance to study human nature.

This enables one to talk to and treat people as they demand.

One more advantage may be mentioned, and that is, one learns to read intelligently the literature pertaining to plant growing, and can thus profit by the experiences of others.

John Thorpe Embleton, Patriot.

We present herewith a portrait of John Thorpe Embleton, great grandson of the late John Thorpe, first president of the Society of American Florists, elected at the Cincinnati convention in 1885 and re-elected in 1886. Little John lays undisputed claim to belonging to a patriotic family, his father having three brothers, two brothers-in-law and five nephews at the front "somewhere over there," and another brother will leave next month.

Credit Based on War Conditions.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

There are notices being sent out from wholesale houses in some growing centers that credit will not be extended, in some cases, longer than 10 days; or a notice sent on the 15th must be paid by the 25th, and a notice on the 1st must be paid by the 10th. In reply to this attitude on the part of these wholesalers, I will take this occasion to express my views.

The credit system in America has been based on payment in 30 days or the 1st of the following month. Now, a large majority of the retail florists sell to a class of trade that will not be pushed, and it is not practical or possible in some cases for the florists to pay bills twice a month and be able to collect only once a month. According to this rule, the only florists who survive will be the wealthy ones, who are comparatively few, or those who sell for cash only, who are fewer still.

I have noticed a tendency on the part of some wholesalers to take advantage of the present war conditions and the fact that practically all stock raised can readily be disposed of, and are making this felt by the customers who have been trading with them for years and paying their bills regularly, many times submitting to losses and inconveniences without complaint, realizing that the shipper has troubles, also, during these times of labor shortage, scarcity of coal, etc.

If the wholesalers have been losing money on bad accounts, why not weed out the bad accounts by closing them at once and not let them run at all? Or, if they cannot afford to do a credit business, go into it on a cash basis only? "Credit" is until the 1st of the month—less time is a "nuisance." These war conditions may not last for all time, and it is my prediction that there will be a good many wholesalers who will be needing business after it is over, and a good deal of explanation will then be forthcoming.

I do not presume to think that there will be a change of policy on account of my opinion, but I feel that as president of the Texas State Association of Florists I should make this protest in behalf of the reliable retail florists of this state, whether any notice is given my protest or not. But it may, in its small way, help to stop the tendency of some wholesale concerns to combine in the effort to force severe terms on reliable retail florists.

The immense increase in the growing facilities of the west and southwest has been very largely due to the fact that the large growers were taking advantage of almost a monopoly and shipping pickled and forced stock during the holidays and rush seasons, and such moves as these may be only blessings in disguise. For, rather than submit, many will turn their establishments more to cut flower growing and become more independent of the wholesaler.

Notices from some florists have come to Baker Bros. Co., of which I am a member, as to our order, which has been standing with them for several years without a break. This is my answer to such: "You may continue our order until the time you consider it necessary to ship us C. O. D., at which time please stop shipments and notify us, so that we may order else where."

I would like to hear from some other retailers, or wholesaler either, as to their opinion on this matter.

W. J. BAKER,
President Texas Florists' Assn.

Plant Pests and Diseases.

The lecture of Prof. J. C. Saunders, state zoologist of Pennsylvania, given before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia at its April meeting was full of valuable information in reference to insect pests and methods for their destruction. The numerous colored pictures thrown on the screen showed so many worms, insects, scale and fungous diseases dangerous to plant life that it appeared wonderful that anything that grew in the earth survived.

Prof. Saunders stated that 80 per cent of the insects and diseases which had caused the most damage in this country had been imported before the rigid inspection of the department of agriculture now in force had been inaugurated. The San Jose scale and the gypsy and tussock moth, chestnut blight and citrus canker were cited, the gypsy moth having cost the state of Massachusetts over $14,000,000, and it was even now only being held in check and is not entirely eradicated. The professor stated that the reason foreign pests increased so rapidly here was that the insects that devoured and kept them in check abroad were—unfortunately—not imported with them. In some instances they had been collected and brought over and were doing excellent work in certain sections in preventing any increase.

The poplar canker is fast spreading on the Lombardy poplar; the only remedy is to cut down and burn. The white pine blister is another fungoid disease that is contagious, and is carried by the barberry, currants and gooseberries. A Japanese flower beetle which is very destructive to flowers is imported in the grub stage in the soil about plants of iris.

The European mole cricket, a very destructive insect, comes in the earth around plants. The European earwig, which attacks the foliage of dahlias, is another bad pest. The white grub which is so injurious to young roses in the houses or out of doors is nearly always to be found in an old pasture where there is good sod. To plant in such a field, when first turned over, invites disaster, as one grub to the square foot of surface is about the average.

The cutworm group, of which there are hundreds of species, are most destructive. They work at night, the eggs being laid by the owl moth, which flies at night; they hide during the day. A sure cure is to cover the ground, just before plants are set out, with a thin scattering of poisoned bran mash. This is made with 25 pounds of bran and one-half pound of Paris green. This should be thoroughly mixed dry, then wet with water, and one quart of syrup to sweeten. Mix into a crumbly mass that will scatter well. The juice of four lemons should be added, which keeps off the birds. This rids the ground effectually of cutworms. Carbon bisulphide put in the holes of the borers found in dahlias will kill them.

GREENHOUSE INSECTS.

The chrysanthemum leaf mite is held in check with "Black Leaf 40," one part to 200 parts of water, and soap, which makes it mix and stick better. Smoking the houses twice a week with nicotine is also a good preventative. The red spider, it was stated, is not an insect, as it has only four legs, while all insects have six. Powdered sulphur is the best remedy for the spider, but the finest grain should be used, that which would pass through a 200-mesh being most effective. Dry sulphur does not hurt plants; in fact, sulphur has been found to be a good fertilizer.

The cyaniding of palms, which was said to be sure death to scale, was a very interesting topic. A tight and dark compartment, with the door to fit tightly like that of a refrigerator, is necessary. One 4x4x6½ feet in height contains about 100 cubic feet of space. Plants can be packed here closely together. For this space one-quarter ounce of cyanide in water is sufficient. Palms, rubbers, cycas, etc., will stand this treatment without damage. The foliage must be dry, and if treated during the day the plants should be placed in the dark for a couple of hours before being gassed, when they will close their pores, which prevents any absorption of the gas. In a day or two afterward a good, sharp hosing will remove all the dead scale. If a whole house is being treated, it should be commenced at one end and continued through, the cleaned plants being placed together as fast as the work is completed. After this treatment the plants should be absolutely clean, and if other plants containing scale are not placed with them they should remain so.

Sow bugs are products of wooden tables. Concrete and cinders are generally free of them. They will collect under carrots cut up and hollowed out and can then be destroyed. Arsenic and sugar will also often tempt them.

Financial History.

The credit of the United States was so high and unquestionable that in 1900, two years after the war with Spain, two per cent bonds were offered at par and oversubscribed. This is a financial performance no other nation has ever equaled. United States four per cent bonds in 1888 sold as high as 130 and in 1901 brought 139½ in the open market.

The United States has never defaulted in any of its obligations. Not one of its bondholders has ever lost a cent of principal or interest except those who have voluntarily taken losses by selling their bonds in a period of temporary price depression. One hundred cents on the dollar, principal and interest, has the United States always paid.

Back of the approximated $250,000,000,000 of national resources stands the rugged honesty of America. Liberty Loan bonds are the safest security in the world.

National Publicity for Flowers.

President C. H. Totty has appointed S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y., to fill the vacancy on the publicity committee occasioned through the death of Joseph Heacock.

The promotion bureau has sent out another broadside featuring the direct aid publicity service provided by means of newspaper cuts, glass signs, transfer signs, lantern slides for use in the "movies," the booklet "Say It With Flowers" and stickers for use on envelopes, boxes, etc. All orders for newspaper electrotypes are filled the same day as received, so that anyone requiring the electrotype featuring the Mothers' day advertisement may by ordering immediately be assured of receiving it in ample time for use.

From the newspaper clippings reaching the promotion bureau from various sources it is evident that the newspaper electrotype for Easter was largely used, thus linking up splendidly with the campaign advertisements in the Woman's Home Companion and the Literary Digest, which together go into nearly 2,000,000 homes of the better class. Reports from florists received from many sections of the country indicate that the good influence of the campaign advertising was felt in the Easter business, and the committees are being congratulated upon the general excellence of their work. "Keep it up" is the general recommendation of the trade, and with the help very reasonably expected, it will be kept up. But the fund must be kept up too. The ammunition must be in the treasury—not merely on paper. Every dollar is judiciously expended on the object for which it is subscribed, and there is use for twice as much as is already recorded, and more.

The promotion bureau has published a list of the names of all subscribers to the campaign fund, with the amounts of their subscriptions. Any florist who has not already subscribed should write for a copy and see what his neighbor is doing—perhaps the observation may lead to his determination of the amount he would like to subscribe. The amounts are purely voluntary—there is no dictation, no criticism. It is a matter of what one can afford, or what one's business will stand; and, as has been pointed out before, a subscription is really an investment, and should be considered as such.

It should be borne in mind that it is not the purpose of the publicity campaign to merely boom business for "special days." While special days are, of course, featured, the prime object of the movement is to increase the daily demand for flowers, to make their use general rather than exceptional, and a necessity in the home.

Many wholesale houses have ordered small stocks of the glass signs, which they will distribute in their different sections at the regular cost—$1.50 each. Every retail florist in the land should display at least one sign in his window. Its appeal "Say It With Flowers" will become the stronger the more it is used. Many millions of people every day will be attracted by the message thus generally conveyed, and its good effect will be so large as to be incalculable. The design of the slogan is readily connected with its counterpart in the magazine advertisements, so that its purpose is instantly brought to mind.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Cottage Gardens Nurs. Increase Capital.

The Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., Eureka, Calif., Charles Willis Ward, president, make the announcement that owing to the great demand caused by the war blocking importations from European countries, it has become necessary to add to the facilities in the way of additional buildings and installing proper equipment for handling an increased propagation of stock in order to prepare for a large future demand for the firm's products and have decided to place upon the market paid-up treasury stock of a par value of $85,000, which will be offered to florists and nurserymen of America.

In a prospectus which accompanies the announcement, the holdings of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries include the Eden Nurseries of 66 acres, the Cottage Gardens bulb farms of 520 acres and the Cottage Gardens Jersey farms with an area of 232 acres, the combined annual output being given as $515,000. The sale of products commenced October 1, 1917, and for October, November and December are said to be approximately $30,000. Sales for the present winter it is estimated will be between $50,000 and $60,000; for the winter of 1918-1919, about $150,000, and for the following year it is figured the total sales will reach between $250,000 and $300,000. The value of all land and improvements at cost with depreciation written off, is stated to be $323,455.76; personal property, including all goods in course of manufacture, cattle, tools and machinery, $388,157; total assets, $711,612.76.

The officers of the concern are Charles Willis Ward, president; Wm. De Graaff, vice-president; E. C. Kraft, secretary-treasurer; W. B. Clark, sales manager. As announced in our issue of April 6, page 577, the well-known horticultural supply house of McHutchison & Co., New York, will be selling agents for all territory east of the Rocky mountains, while De Graaff Bros., one of the prominent firms of bulb growers, with headquarters at Leiden, Holland, will act as agents in that country.

Coal Distribution by Zones.

The United States Fuel Administration, in co-operation with the Director General of Railroads, has announced a zone system to govern distribution of bituminous coal during the year beginning April 1, 1918. Heretofore coal has been distributed practically without regard to distance between mine and consumer. Under the zone system, coal will be distributed to consuming territory under restrictions that will avoid as far as possible waste of transportation facilities but, nevertheless, consistent with the maintenance of the greatest possible production and proper coal supply to all users.

The fuel and railroad administrations have therefore been confronted with the responsibility of deciding whether they shall knowingly be parties to this waste of transportation which, if not so wasted, could be used to carry on the war, and after conferences with producers, jobbers and consumers and with traffic and operating officials of the railroads, zones have been established so that coal supplies should be nominally derived from mines relatively near, thus insuring more equal distribution of cars to the mines and more steady employment of mine labor. In addition the saving will in transportation alone provide for the possible retention of something like 5,000,000 tons of coal for the eastern states which have heretofore gone west by rail. It will thus be able to eliminate the movement of more than 2,000,000 tons of Pocahontas coal to

Chicago and other western points over a haul of 600 miles. Similar comparison shows that through the movement of 550,000 tons annually from the Kanawha districts to Wisconsin points can be saved about 2,500,000 car miles. On the movement from southeastern Kentucky to Chicago, about 800,000 car miles and 50,000 tons production will be saved.

Heretofore many of the mines in many of the producing districts throughout the country have been unable to keep up their production in the summer months because of the decreased demand for their product. Under the zone system these producing districts have been allotted consuming territory which will demand a large increase in production. Thus coal which has long been available, but not used, will be added to the aggregate supply for the country as a whole. Consumers in these zones must fill their bins during the coming summer and keep these mines running every day of the week if these zones are to avoid serious coal shortage next winter.

The fuel administration will issue permits for the shipment of coal for special purposes to points outside of the zone in which the particular coal desired originates. The zones apply only to bituminous and cannel coals and do not apply to anthracite coal or coke. Embargoes under this zoning plan are effective April 1.

The United States fuel administration, under date of March 22, 1918, has issued Publication No. 21, entitled, "Zone System of the Distribution of Bituminous Coal," which will be supplied upon request and which covers the matter in detail, including limitations imposed under the zone system and showing the producing districts for the various states.

STOCK PLentiful BUT DEMAND LIMITED.

Dull, gloomy weather, and the loan drive on, has slowed up business everywhere. Although flowers are quite plentiful and reasonable, they are moving very slowly. Carnations are quoted at $1.50 to $4 a hundred; roses, $1.50 to $16; iris, $1 to $1.50 a dozen; sweet peas $1 and $1.50 a hundred; Easter lilies $3 to $10. Spring flowers are scarce and command good prices.

NOTES.

Wm. Nicholson, of Framingham, is cutting a good grade of snapdragons, myosotis, gypsophilas, yellow marguerites and a large assortment of fancy carnations. He is also making a specialty of the Godfrey calla.

Trade has been rather quiet at Welch Bros. Co's. store. Although the help seem to be on the jump, and a large number of orders are being shipped, they are small in comparison with other weeks.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report business fair and are entirely satisfied the way orders are arriving considering the condition of the weather and all the war drives that are on.

Harry Quint has just finished remodeling his store on Boylston street and now possesses one of the most attractive places of its kind in the city.

Joseph Dow, buyer for Thomas Galvin, Inc., is ill with a severe cold. His place is being looked after by Gene Sullivan.

H. M. Vose is still cutting large quantities of Golden Spurs, Victoria jonquils and Lorraine and Flamingo tulips.

John J. Fee is still at home with a severe cold. The trade sends best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Albert Hudson, salesman for Wm. Elliott, has been ill and his place has been filled by the latter. S. K. G.

BUSINESS EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS.

The Easter just past came up to expectations in nearly every respect. The stock of flowering plants was very large, and none of the stores had to complain of a lack of seasonable stock. As is usual, roses had first call and sold wonderfully well. Lady Gay, Hiawatha and Dorothy Perkins met with most favor from the public, and great quantities were disposed of. Prices ranged about the same as in former years, but during the afternoon of Easter Sunday there was a tendency among a few of the stores to clean out at lower figures than were first asked. The supply of lilies in pots was very heavy; in fact, they were much more plentiful than was the case last year. Prices varied according to the quality of the stock offered, but good long lilies brought very good prices. A very large number of short-stemmed pots were available and sold well. Azaleas were not very much in evidence, and what few were offered sold in a satisfactory way. Pink Pearl rhododendron plants were in fairly large supply and moved satisfactorily. Various other seasonable Easter plants were to be had and sold in large quantities. The supply of cut flowers was large enough for all demands. A large cut of American Beauties were in and sold in fine shape. Ophelia, Hadley, Radiance and other varieties of standard sorts cleaned up well. Carnations were not in such oversupply and prices stiffened considerably. White varieties sold the best, being chiefly used in church decorations. Orchids were more numerous than for some time past and met with their usual steady sale. There was hardly any lily of the valley, and gardenias were in full supply. Bulbous stock was to be seen everywhere, and fairly good figures were obtained for it. Hyacinths were the best sellers in this class of flowers. From now on it is expected that bulbous stock will not be so plentiful, as Easter disposed of most stock that was being held back. Violets were to be had in large quantities. Fruit blossoms sold well, especially the bright colors, and were largely used in decorations. Never were sweet peas as numerous at this time of the year as was the case this Easter. All the best winter-flowering Spencers could be had in large quantities and cleaned up very good. It is the opinion of the trade that, considering the conditions now prevailing, the Easter trade may be said to be satisfactory in every way. The shipping demand was excellent, and great quantities of cut flowers and flowering plants were shipped out of the city.

NOTES.

P. Vincent Matraia, manager of the Art Floral Co., on Powell street, says his Easter trade ran ahead of last year. He cleaned up everything, and had to use several more motor cars in addition to the two the firm employ in delivering orders. The decorative work of T. W. Williams and P. Rosaia was greatly admired throughout Easter week.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. report the best Easter business in the firm's history. The entire force worked day night for several days preceding Easter to take care of their large trade. As usual, roses in pots had the preference over all other flowering plants, and they disposed of their entire supply.

The California State Floral Society will hold its annual spring flower show April 12. It is not planned to charge any admission fee this year. The usual display of spring flowers will be had, and the public is cordially invited to be guests of the society on that day.

Henry Goertzchain is pleased over the results of his first Easter trade in his new store at Redwood City. The heaviest demand was for pot plants.

The pot plants handled by the MacRorie-McLaren Co. this Easter came in for much favorable comment. The ericas, rhododendrons and azaleas were grand stock. Superintendent McDonald of the company's greenhouses at San Mateo, where all this fine stock was grown, can certainly feel satisfied with the result of his work. He never turned out better stock than this year, and that is saying a great deal. They say the shipping trade was fully up to expectations.

Podesta & Baldocchi made one of the most elaborate displays of pot plants that we have seen for years. Their large store was a perfect bower of beauty, and the heavy business transacted taxed the resources of the firm to the utmost. They found the baby ramblers to sell best in pot plants. In cut flowers, the heaviest call was for American Beauties, Russells and catleyas.

Martin Poss, proprietor of the Floral City Greenhouse, at San Mateo, is now busily engaged in shipping young carnation plants. He grows many thousands of these every year. He says he is enjoying a very excellent spring trade, his only drawback being the scarcity of experienced help. This may also be said to be the case with every commercial establishment in this vicinity.

Hayashi Bros.' nursery supplied a large quantity of the Easter plants used by the florists this year. Their stock was large and varied. The supply of Easter lilies was very large and in just the right size for the buying public. The firm expects to continue to grow only the very best quality of plants the next season, and on a larger scale.

G. Rossi & Co., on Geary street, report the heaviest Easter trade in years. They were prepared for it, and handled an immense quantity of flowers and greens. The trade in pot stock was also large, and all of it was produced at their own nursery. They say the call for fruit blossoms is strong, and shipping keeps up in a satisfactory way.

Eric James, the prominent plant specialist of Elmhurst, is being complimented upon the fine quality of the stock he had to offer the trade this Easter. His perfectly grown specimens of pot roses were a revelation to many. He reports that his trade, both in this city and his shipping business, was the largest yet experienced.

F. C. Jaeger & Son's store presented a fine appearance during Easter week. They featured pot roses largely, and a heavy trade was done, and they are well pleased with the amount of business handled. They are also going to enlarge the scope of the business so as to include landscape engineering in all its branches.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is now sending a fine cut of Russell and American Beauty roses. The quality being received would be difficult to excel. Manager J. A. Axell says the shipping trade of the company this Easter was the heaviest ever experienced, and more cut stock could have handled if obtainable.

Emil Serveau, of Fillmore street, has been quite ill at his home in Redwood City for several weeks past. His son, Albert, who is now manager of the Fillmore street store, is greatly elated over the volume of the Easter trade. He says it was fully 25 per cent greater than last year.

The unexpected frost of last week destroyed many thousands of bedding plants of the H. Nagato nursery. Nagato grows largely of this class of plants for the seed houses, and his loss is a severe one.

Frank Mills, of Palo Alto, says shipping trade was unusually good. Local demand was also ahead of expectations.

OBITUARY.

Henry F. Michell.

The trade of Philadelphia has lost its first soldier member in the death of Henry F. Michell, son of Frederick J. Michell, of the firm of Henry F. Michell Co., who died from drowning while at the French front, April 7. The official telegram to his father read: "Your son, Harry, died from drowning in line of duty, April 7." Mr. Michell was 22 years old and enlisted last July in Company D of the 19th Railway Engineer Corps. He went to France almost immediately. He is supposed to have been fighting with the American engineers that gave the Germans such a battle in the recent drive near St. Quentin, where he might have met his death by drowning as an engineer in bridge building.

Mr. Michell was born in Philadelphia, June 15, 1895. On graduating from the public school he studied scientific agriculture for two years at Pennsylvania State College. Since arriving in France, he wrote frequent letters home. The last his parents heard from him was a letter received March 26 in which he hoped that he would soon be sent "over the top."

Henry F. Michell said of his nephew and namesake that he was a bright, energetic boy of great promise. At his home in Ridley Park, he was a great favorite socially, and at once on news of his death, subscriptions were started to raise a sum for a monument to be erected to his memory in the public square. He was a member of the Florist Club of Philadelphia and several college fraternities. His father and mother, F. J. Michell, Jr., an older brother, Frank, his twin brother, who is awaiting the call to active service, and four sisters, one of whom is married to Leo Niessen, survive him.

Elmer Sigwalt.

Elmer Sigwalt, of Arlington Heights, Ill., died Tuesday morning, April 16, following an illness of four weeks at the age of 40 years. He was born at Long Grove, Ill., and started in the florist business at Arlington Heights about 12 years ago, having a good sized range devoted principally to carnations and chrysanthemums, the output of which was consigned entirely to the Chicago market. Mr. Sigwalt was well-known among the growers and wholesale men who speak very highly of him and are grieved to hear of his sudden death. He was a stockholder of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, member of the Chicago Florists' Club and justicé of the peace in his village. The funeral was held, April 18, from the home with services at the Evangelical church at Arlington Heights and interment at Long Grove cemetery. The trade was well represented at the funeral, especially among the growers and wholesale men and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. He leaves a wife and three children, Virginia, Elmer and Jane.

John Lemke.

John Lemke, well-known grower of violets and pansies, died at his home at Park Ridge, Ill., April 13, from pneumonia after an illness of five weeks. He was 68 years old and started in the growing business in 1889 with his brother, William, who built a range of his own in 1891. He shipped his stock to the Chicago market and was one of the few growers in the vicinity who made a success of violets. He was well thought of and had a host of friends who were either represented in person or by a floral token at the funeral held from the home the following Tuesday with interment at the Town of Main cemetery. He is survived by a wife, a daughter, Mary, two sisters, Deering Lemke and Mrs. Chris Erhardt and two brothers, William and Fred.

Peter Barker.

Peter Barker, for a number of years foreman in the Boston park department, died at his late residence in Jamaica Plain, April 15. He had suffered some time from diabetes and was recovering from a recent attack of pleurisy, when tempted outdoors by the fine weather of Eastern Sunday, he caught a chill which resulted in fatal pneumonia.

Mr. Barker was born at Carrickfergus, near Belfast, Ireland, in 1867 and educated in the national schools of that country. Coming from a family of noted horticulturists, he acquired a practical knowledge of the business under his father at Magheramorne House and came to the United States in 1887, locating at Manchester, N. H. Later, he moved to Boston, where he was employed in various private and commercial places, including the Brighton plant of William H. Elliott. He was a good gardener, popular with his associates and esteemed by his employers for his honesty and devotion to duty. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and active in the work of that body for the welfare of the men at the front and in the camps. He was devoted to his family, Rosita, a girl, 23, and Lawrence, 21 years of age. Mrs. Barker died 18 years ago. Two brothers also survive, James, of Rome, N. Y., and Michael, of Chicago. The funeral services were at St. Thomas' church, April 18.

Mrs. Louise M. Smith.

The announcement of the death of Mrs. Louise M. Smith, wife of the well-known wholesaler of Cleveland, O., and at the time of her demise secretary of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, is received by a wide circle of friends, to whom her amiable disposition endeared her, with profound regret. Mrs. Smith was elected to office in the women's national society at the New York convention in August, 1917, and was also well-known as one of the organizers, and for several years served as president of the Cleveland Women's Florist Club. Surviving are her husband and three sons. The many beautiful floral offerings that covered her last resting place in Lake View cemetery show the high esteem in which she was held, a tribute to her high character, open-heartedness and loyal friendship.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—Fred C. Covill has discontinued business at 610 Pleasant street.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Local florists will be required to pay an increase of 15 per cent in water rates, following a recent ruling of the public service commission.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Samuel Murray reports Easter business slightly below that of last year in volume of sales with prices about the same. Stock in all lines was equal to requirements. Azaleas, hydrangeas and bulbous stock led the demand in pot plants. The street car strike tied up business to a serious extent, although the number of orders was nearly equal to last year. A splendid showing of rhododendrons was a noticeable feature of the fine stock offered patrons of this up-to-date establishment.

PAPER BOX prices have advanced again.

SOME Chicago real estate operators instead of donating ground to war gardeners, who would keep the weeds destroyed, are demanding a rental for small vacant lots to be used for this purpose.

F. T. D. Emblem Competition Closed.

Referring to the announcement extending the closing time of the emblem competition of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery to May 1, mention of which was made in last week's issue, page 630, we are in receipt of the following communication from F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, O., chairman of the emblem committee:

"ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

"Your letter received, acquainting me as chairman of the F. T. D. emblem committee, of the ruling of the postoffice authorities in connection with our action in extending the closing time of the competition to May 1, and in view of this unintentional violation of the law governing such matters the original closing time, March 1, will be adhered to."

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

SPECIAL PRIZES.

A number of special prizes have been offered in special classes, in addition to the regular schedule of the Chrysanthemum Society of America for the annual exhibition and meeting of that organization to be held in conjunction with the American Institute of the City of New York, November 6-8. Among the donors of special prizes are the following, the awards consisting of cash and silver cups: President Wm. W. Vert, Greenwich, Conn.; Chas. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J.; E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; Hitchings & Co., New York; Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago; Stumpp & Walter Co., New York; H. E. Converse, Marion, Mass. The special classes so far announced are 14 in number being designated alphabetically, A to N. Further information regarding the meeting and the schedule may be had by addressing the secretary, Charles W. Johnson, 2242 West 109th street, Chicago.

American Dahlia Society.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

On April 11, the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society held a meeting at the Grand hotel, New York, at which the following were present: President R. Vincent, Jr., George W. Kerr, James Duthie, George S. Stillman, I. S. Hendrickson, P. W. Popp, Mr. Phillips, J. J. Lane, Jos. H. Sperry and J. Austin Shaw. Richard Vincent, Jr., presided, and J. J. Lane was appointed secretary pro tem. In very touching words President Vincent referred to the passing of J. Harrison Dick, who had so efficiently acted as secretary of the society up to the time of his death. A testimonial was read, and it was duly moved that suitable resolutions be transmitted to Mrs. Dick. F. R. Austin, treasurer, reported the current balance, which was found very encouraging. To fill the place of Mr. Dick as secretary for the balance of the term, Jasper R. Lewis, 736 Riverside drive, New York, was elected.

A letter from Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston, Mass., was read offering a prize of $10 for the Boston show. Mr. Phillips also offered $20 for life membership in the society, and P. W. Popp offered a prize of a $5 cut glass vase for a vase of mixed dahlias of any or all types. It was decided to hold another meeting of the executive committee May 16, the second anniversary of the founding of the society.

Third Liberty Loan.

ENLIST YOUR DOLLARS FOR PERIOD OF WAR.

Again the American people have the privilege of lending their money, their savings, to their government for the purpose of making the lives and liberties of every American safe, and of securing the lives and liberties of the gallant nations which fight with us.

These bonds bear 4½ per cent interest. They are exempt from all federal, state and local taxation, except the federal super-income taxes and inheritance taxes. They are due 10 years after their date. They are the safest investment in the world, and they bear a rate of interest adequately and generously remunerative. The money derived from these bonds will be used to supply our soldiers and sailors with the food, clothing, guns, ammunition and other essentials which they must have if they are to win this war; to pay the wages of labor of those who are engaged in manufacturing these essential supplies; to pay for the raw materials and the farm products and the countless other things that enter into the war programme of a great nation.

We must not, we cannot consider the purchase of government bonds as a purely commercial or business transaction. War is not business, although the nation's business now is war. War is the death struggle for the principles and ideals for which a nation fights. Business must be adjusted to war and every ordinary rule of business must be modified, altered or discarded, if necessary, to meet the supreme need of the nation in such a time. National necessity is the supreme law of war, and the first duty of every citizen is to subordinate himself and every interest to that supreme necessity.

To lend one's money on safe security is, at best, a small contribution compared with the sacrifice the dying soldier makes, the sacrifice the widow makes, the sacrifice the mother and father of a dead hero make. Patriotism must at all times be the main-spring of action, not only in the purchase of bonds, but in every other thing the good citizen does in the support of his government in time of war.

W. G. McADOO,

Secretary of the Treasury.

Parcel Post Insurance and Indemnity.

With reference to loss through delay in transit and delivery, or damage to the contents of insured packages containing seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, plants, cut flowers and other perishable articles of florists' stocks, forwarded by parcel post, the following information is contained in a recent communication from the Third Assistant Postmaster General:

"When parcels containing cut flowers, or other perishable articles, are spoiled as the result of a delay of at least 24 hours in transit or delivery, indemnity is paid. Indemnity is also paid in cases of outright damage to the contents of such parcels. Parcels containing articles of a perishable nature should be marked 'Perishable.'"

Supplementing the above the following regulations are embodied in Circular 3 of the post office department: "Indemnity for lost parcels is paid for the actual value within the limit of insurance. No indemnity is payable on account of mere partial damage. However, when an article, or any separate part thereof is so badly damaged as to render it wholly worthless, it is regarded as lost, provided it was packed and indorsed in accordance with postal requirements. No indemnity is paid for labor, workmanship, etc. Claims for indemnity must be filed within six months from date of mailing."

"Parcel post mail (but no other) may be insured against loss, rifling, and irreparable damage. Such mail may be insured at any post office or station thereof, or by rural carriers. The sender must fill out an insurance tag which will be furnished upon request, to be attached to the parcel. Return receipts for insured parcels may be obtained by endorsing the parcels 'Return receipt desired.'"

TRADE GOOD WITH STOCK PLENTIFUL.

Good business characterized the past week, with stock in large supply with the exception of carnations, which seem to be off crop, and prices have advanced in consequence. Lilies are also scarce. Roses are plentiful but clean up well each day, among the offerings being some very fine Killarneys, Ophelia, Shawyer, Russell, Prima Donna, September Morn and Champ Weiland. Bulbous stock is almost over for the season, except a few tulips and daffodils that should have been in for Easter. They are, however, bringing more money than they would at that time. Sweet peas are still seen in large quantities but the quality is very poor and low prices are the rule. Violets are still on the market and the quality is good considering the lateness of the season. Yellow daisies and lily of the valley are offered in limited quantities and move well. There are a few orchids but the demand is light. American Beauty of good quality clean up well daily at fair prices, $5 per dozen being the top figure. Preparations are now being made for a big Mothers' day trade and considerable advertising will be done. The retail florists' association is also pushing the proposition in order to promote more business.

NOTES.

Charles Caylor, chauffeur for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakers-town, his wife, a 12-year old son, and Mrs. Thomas Fiol, wife of a grower for the above firm, and her 7-year-old daughter, were killed in an automobile accident at the Valencia station of the B. & O. railroad, April 13.

Two heavy snowstorms during which three inches of snow fell caused considerable damage to outdoor vegetation.

Charles Voelker, of the Arcadia Flower Shop, leaves April 21 for military training at Rochester, N. Y.

Fred Burki, who has been in California since October, has returned much improved in health.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

FUNERAL WORK HEAVY.

The fore part of last week was exceptionally cold, but the mercury rose and all of the florists report a heavy demand on Saturday and Sunday. Counter trade has been brisk, with a big call for flowers for the hospitals. The landscape departments are opening up in the various florists' establishments, with a demand for shrubs, etc., which is proving to be greater this year than ever. There is a great scarcity of cut flowers, particularly carnations. Roses are fairly plentiful, but could be better. The supply of orchids is not large. Lily of the valley and miniature roses are limited, but the demand for them is not great.

NOTES.

A Liberty loan booth has been placed in the store of the Flick Floral Co., and is attracting many customers to purchase bonds. Miss Marguerite Flick is a member of one of the Liberty loan teams. The Flick Floral Co. has had a big demand for funeral work, and corsage work has been very active here the past week.

A. J. Lanternier had a heavy run on funeral work last week, and the store force worked hard getting out the orders, which consisted of several blankets, wreaths, and large baskets. They are receiving some fine pansy plants from their greenhouses, also a good supply of roses.

A patriotic window demonstration in the interest of the Third Liberty loan was staged here on the night of April 15, and all the retail florists out-did each other in their patriotic and floral window decorations.

The April meeting of the florists' club will be held April 24, at the store of the Flick Floral Co. The subject of advertising for Mothers' day will be discussed at this meeting.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports their landscape department very active. John Doswell has charge of this department, and has been kept busy since the season opened up.

MARKET IS INACTIVE.

The market during the past week was rather inactive, business being somewhat slow. Everybody seems to be busy with the third issue of the Liberty Loan and this has caused business to slow up somewhat. Stock of all kinds has been plentiful, with the exception of extra good quality carnations. Roses are coming in fine, particularly Russell and Ophelia. Sweet peas are coming in heavy supply and hold at fair prices. Darwin tulips are easing up somewhat. Lilies are plentiful. In calendulas, gypsophilas, etc., the market is well supplied. Greens of all kinds are equal to the demand.

CLUB MEETING.

The April meeting of the florists' club was held at the Missouri Botanical Garden with about 40 members present. The club, as an organization, voted to invest some of its funds in bonds of the Third Liberty Loan. It was also voted that the secretary ascertain that all members of the club become bond holders of the third issue so as to enable the club to get a service flag showing 100 per cent bond holders. No one is to be excused for any reason whatsoever. When the secretary is not able to get the necessary data the official headquarters will take the matter up direct with the delinquent member. The club also voted to provide certain entertainment for visitors and their ladies to the coming S. A. F. convention in August and the president was authorized to make the various committee appointments at an early date. A telegram of good wishes was sent to J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., who was reported very sick from blood poisoning. A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, was a visitor at the meeting, and spoke to the members on the coal situation, warning them to get their coal in immediately. He also, in behalf of his business associate, R. Newcomb, who is a member of the club, made a subscription to the Liberty Loan, and also donated $25 to the publicity committee. Messrs. Pring and Lurie of the garden took the members in charge and showed them the various displays. Particularly interesting was amaryllis in bloom at the present time, which collection of about 25 plants is valued at $10,000.

NOTES.

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of one of the oldest members of the florists' club, Robt. Beyer, who for a number of years has been associated with his brother, Charles, in the growing business. He was 59 years old and has been in the business all his life, he and his brother having succeeded their father. Some years ago he used to take a great deal of interest in the florists' bowling club; in fact, was one of their best men, as will be recalled by those who bowled with him at numerous S. A. F. conventions. The trade was well represented at his funeral.

Pierre Schneider, of Webster Groves, Mo., states for next season he is working up a nice stock of wallflowers for winter forcing. His double stocks the past season were very fine, but his plants did not produce enough double flowers. However, he states he grows these novelties more for his own pleasure.

Al Kopf, of Kirkwood, is cutting a fine lot of sweet peas at the present time. His Yarrowa, particularly, are of extra fine quality.

J. J. W.

Providence, R. I.

GOOD BUSINESS IN GENERAL.

Trade during the past week has been good, with floral work in good demand and cut flower sales better than usual. Stock is plentiful, and of good quality. Roses the past week took a decided slump, and prices dropped, although the quality is up to the standard.

NOTES.

Joshua Vose, of East Greenwich, passed away during the past week. He was one of the foremost dahlia growers in this state.

The Outlet Company, a department store, has opened a nursery, seed, and vegetable plant department. H. A. T.

DOVER, O.—Easter trade at the establishment of C. Betscher showed an advance over that of 1917 with no change in prices. The supply of cut flowers was liberal, but many more plants could have been disposed of had they been available as everything good in this line had a brisk sale. Lilies were in very limited supply.

FUNERAL DEMAND ACTIVE.

With most favorable weather conditions prevailing since April 1, the supply in all lines has been very plentiful, and if it were not for the pronounced activity in funeral work, conditions would be pretty bad. At this writing, an epidemic of the gripple is prevailing in our city, and among the older folks, it seems to prove fatal, hence the activity. Most of the growers who specialize in roses are on crop, and this line is more over supplied than any other. While carnations are still very plentiful, business was good enough the past week, so that none had to be jobbed off. Good bulbous stock is becoming scarce, although there is plenty of the inferior grades. Violets for this season are a thing of the past, and sweet peas, of which there are many, are taking their place. Quite a few lilies were on hand, but moved fairly good. Some excellent snapdragons and calendulas were among the week's offerings. Greens were not in oversupply.

NOTES.

Wm. Zimmerman, C. C. Pollworth and Fred H. Holton are again very busy soliciting for the third Liberty Loan. They urge all in the craft to do their bit in order that they can make a good showing and benefit themselves as well.

At the Humboldt avenue greenhouses of the Holton & Hunkel Co. they are busy as bees filling up the benches, which held the Easter supply of pot plants with bedding stock for the spring rush.

Both of the Fritsch boys, who conduct a retail store at 575 National avenue, under the name of Fritsch Bros. are in class 1, and expect to be called to the colors most any time.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is right in crop on roses and carnations at their Wauwatosa plant. Business at the wholesale house was reported very satisfactory the past week.

The theater party for the benefit of the local florists' club takes place April 16-18 at the Merrill. A good many tickets have been disposed of at this writing.

Fred Bliese, proprietor of the Waukesha Floral Co., reports a very fine Easter business. "We had a raft of stock and cleaned up fine," to quote him verbatim.

At the florists' club meeting held April 4, Oscar Galin, who has charge of the decorating department of the A. F. Kellner Co., was admitted to membership.

Benke Bros., of Watertown, Wis., are consigning exceptionally fine orchid flowering sweet peas to Gust Rusch & Co.

The installation of the newly elected city officials takes place April 16. Already quite a few orders are booked for the occasion.

Fred Longren, representing the Burlington Willow-Ware Co., called on the trade the past week. E. O.

Toledo.

FUNERAL WORK HEAVY.

The weather here has been unusually cold and cloudy during the past week, but business has, nevertheless, been holding up very well. The sudden change from warm to cold has caused much sickness; an epidemic of gripple is sweeping over the city, and some deaths have resulted, hence there has been a strong call for bouquets for the sick and a very heavy demand for funeral work. Easter cleaned out the supply of bulbous stock, so there is little to be seen. Gratified by the big Easter trade, florists do not intend to be caught napping on Mothers' day, and are laying plans for a big business. Cut flower stock has been sufficient to meet the demand.

NOTES.

Schramm Brothers are making a strenuous campaign for the sale of seeds, in support of the local war garden commission. They are mailing out an attractive circular, and have an attention-compelling display in their Cherry street windows. Due to the publicity given home gardens by the government and the city, there has arisen an unusually heavy demand for vegetable seeds of all kinds, offering a profitable field to the florist who is wide awake.

S. N. Peck, Superior street florist, has been taking an active interest in the local Third Liberty Loan campaign. He has composed several patriotic poems, of which he gave recitals at ward meetings. Several of these were published in the daily papers.

Henry Miller, carnation specialist, has been sending in some splendid stock during the week, which has been enjoying a brisk sale. He is laying plans to have one of the largest cuts of carnations in his career for Mothers' day.

A. E. Warning has been having a heavy call for funeral work during the past week, and states that his business, despite the war, has been making a nice increase every month.

NO COMPLAINT ON EASTER TRADE.

Easter business among the florists was the best ever. Not a single exception to this report was heard. Some told of too many lilies; others lamented because they did not have more. This was the fault of some trying to "hog things," and for such there should be little pity for their lost flowers. Several failed to get them in for Easter, but they have no great lots or chance for loss through a surplus coming in too late. Good lilies brought a better price than ever before in this market, also some advance in nearly all other flowers, but not as great as the present times of high prices would seem to warrant. With the present advanced cost of everything, the low prices that our florists have been selling at will need to be changed or the glass will have to be used for something else—probably tomatoes. Many fine narcissi were brought in that were grown outside and gave a good supply of showy and cheaper flowers. Some very fine Double Von Sion have been noticed. All kinds of bulbs do so well here that from now to the end of the season, the city will be bright and showy with them. It is evident that a great shortage of good bedding stock will be noticed this spring. Some places have not been so short in many years.

NOTES.

John Hamilton will move his store from 11th street to the public market. The building where he is now located will be razed in the near future, and a modern business block will occupy the site. He reports better business than ever before.

The Hayden-Watson Co. sold more flowers than ever before in the same length of time. Their store "looked like it had been struck out by a cyclone." Everybody was tired, but happy.

Louis Tschunko is bringing in the best carnations that come to this market and he never has enough to go around. His business is mostly that of growing for local wholesale.

The California Florists had a store piled full and the only thing left was some hydrangeas. "Joe" had a smile, but it looked somewhat wearied—too many long strenuous hours.

TRADE IS IMPROVING.

Business was better this week than it has been at any time since Easter and a gradual improvement may be expected from now on. Stock is plentiful and while it is selling better, prices are none too good. Roses are in exceptionally large supply in all the varieties grown for this market and obtainable at very attractive prices particularly, Ophelia, Sunburst, Champ Weiland, Richmond, Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. George Shawyer, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Hearst, Montrose, Tipperary, Double White Killarney and the miniature varieties Cecile Brunner, Elgar, Baby Doll and Nesbit. American Beauty roses are in good demand at fair prices and clean up well right along considering the general market conditions. Carnations are in good supply but are moving better than they have for some time especially in the fancier grades. Sweet peas are reaching the market in large quantities and are in good demand at fair prices. Lilies and callas seem to be in oversupply but the call for them is improving at this writing. Snapdragons are seen in several of the stores in large numbers and are quite a factor in the market. Spanish iris and lupines are in fair supply but appear to be holding their own. Tulips and freesias are not as plentiful and the same holds true for Paper White narcissus. Lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias are selling well and there hardly ever appears to be a surplus. Stocks, lilac, jonquils, calendulas, mignonette, daisies, pansies, anemones, candytuft, gladioli, gypsophila, anemones and other seasonable flowers are included in the many offerings. Greens are in good supply with and Indiana coal therefor. It is our opinion that if there is a coal shortage this fall and coming winter the non-essential plants, among which the florists will undoubtedly be listed, will have difficulty in procuring fuel and it may be that orders will be issued placing them on a 50 per cent. basis. Under the circumstances it is imperative that the florists, in their own interests, should store coal immediately while there is a chance to get it. The mines are in position to ship coal to you now and the railroads are in position to haul it. This may not be the case a few weeks later, or at any other time during the balance of the year. We wish, if possible, to avoid a repetition of the trying experience that you had last winter and our advice and urgent request to you is that you—buy and store immediately as large a percentage of your year's supply as is possible for you to arrange for at this time. We trust we may have your hearty co-operation.

Allan Humason, formerly traveling representative for the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co. and the Raedlein Basket Co., who has been with the national army at Rockford as acting battalion sergeant major at regimental headquarters, has received an honorable discharge on authority granted as a convenience for government purpose. He visited his many friends here April 13, leaving the following day for Hoboken, N. J., to report to the commanding general for appointed duty at headquarters, where he will serve his country as a field clerk.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is in good crop with roses and is supplying its trade with particularly fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell and Killarney Brilliant. The supply department is busy with preparations for Mothers' day and Memorial day which should create a large demand for stock in their line especially wreaths and sprays.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, attended the Elmer Sigwalt funeral at Arlington Heights, April 18. Mr. Sigwalt was a stockholder of the association, whose members extend their heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in this their hour of sorrow.

Gus. Alles, Wieter Bros.' able storeman, celebrated his forty-eighth birthday April 13. He looks as young as ever and is on the job every day at the store, where he has made a host of friends since being connected with this firm, through a great many years.

Zech & Mann are strong on all seasonable stock, particularly fancy roses in all the leading varieties and choice sweet peas. The shipping trade is brisk at this establishment and the city demand is showing considerable improvement.

John Then and Anton Then are doing a very satisfactory business at their new store at 4729 Lincoln avenue opened recently under the name of Then Bros. They are sons of Anton Then, the well-known florist.

Frank Psenicka, son of James Psenicka, who joined the colors several months ago, is now with the regulars at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

J. E. Pollworth is again attending to his duties regularly at Kennicott Bros. Co's. store after being on the sick list for over a week.

The George Wittbold Co. is distributing a useful and interesting 24-page booklet free to customers called "How to Plant and Grow Your Own Vegetable Garden."

Chas. Evert, with A. T. Pyfer & Co., has been notified by his draft board to appear for military service April 26.

Bassett & Washburn's Third Liberty Loan window flag reads 100%, meaning every employe is a subscriber.

Mrs. C. B. Tanner, of Hastings, Neb., has returned home after spending a pleasant visit here with relatives.

Jack Jacobs is again on deck at the E. C. Amling Co. store, after being on the sick list for some time.

A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., is back from a business trip to St. Louis, Mo.

A. C. Kohlbrand, secretary of the Wholesale Cut Flower Association, reports that the subscriptions from the trade to the Third Liberty Bond Loan to date are as follows: April 10, 58 subscriptions, $7,100; April 11, 60 subscriptions, $10,250; April 12, 65 subscriptions, $6,450; April 13, 36 subscriptions, $4,200; April 15, 58 subscriptions, $6,250; April 16, subscriptions amounting to $2,750. The retail trade which comes under the same division as the wholesale florists and growers report about $16,000 worth of bonds to date, making a grand total so far of $53,000.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a great improvement in trade this week, especially in regard to the city demand. The shipping trade is very good at this house with an increased demand for carnations.

Percy Jones, Inc., had an exceptionally good day, April 13, when the city demand was surprisingly brisk. The shipping trade is holding its own at this house.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association will meet at the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, April 18, at six o'clock. Every member is requested to be present.

Michael Barker was called to Boston, Mass., April 15, by the serious illness of his brother, Peter Barker, whose death occurred the same day.

Miss Ludlow, with Vaughan's Seed Store, returned from New York, April 12.

Visitors: Judge Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind.; John G. Heini, Terre Haute, Ind.; Swan Peterson, Rockford.

MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

The market during the past week showed considerable improvement, the supply diminishing and prices better and steadier, resulting in a fairly good cleanup. Many orders for Mothers' day are already coming in. Roses in general are excellent and in good supply and carnations continue plentiful, while the same holds true for sweet peas. Lilies are fairly plentiful and move fairly well. Darwin tulips are now coming in and orchids and lily of the valley may be had. Snapdragons, callas, pansies, poeticus and calendulas are included in the other offerings.

NOTES.

Dan Ruttle, of Latonia, Ky., has given up his store and conducts his business from his range. He now makes deliveries with a new auto truck.

Indiana State Florists.

The monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at the Bliss hotel, Bluffton, April 10. The cold, blustery weather cut down the attendance somewhat, but what the crowd lacked in size was made up in enthusiasm. The project of organizing the Mutual Hail and Wind-storm Insurance Association was discussed at length, and the proposition to employ a solicitor was agreed upon. One new member was admitted and two applications were recorded.

The vegetable plant proposition was discussed, and the majority of the members reported that they were producing from two to three times as many such plants as ever before, while others who had never paid any attention to this branch of the industry stated that they were growing enough to take care of their respective localities. All parts of the state will be supplied with fine, well grown plants.

Following the adjournment of the business session, the visitors were taken to the range of Myers & Co., where they inspected the finest assortment of vegetable plants they had ever seen. One large house was completely filled, while thousands of other plants in various stages of growth were seen in other houses. At this establishment there are at present 20,000 tomato plants in pots and 30,000 in flats, nearly all Bonny Best; 60,000 cabbage plants and 125,000 of onions, in addition to thousands of Mango celery, kohlrabi, cauliflower and eggplants. Carnations, a feature here, were pronounced as fine as those present had ever seen, and the geraniums and other bedding plants showed equally fine form.

From here the party motored to the establishment of H. S. Wiecking, where they found another extra fine lot of plants, both in the vegetable and bedding varieties. This capable grower has more than 100,000 cabbage plants, in addition to thousands of other kinds. The members in attendance at the meeting asserted that those who were not on hand certainly missed a treat by not seeing these splendid showings in the vegetable plant line. D. M.

The Westchester and Fairfield Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Hubbard's hall, Greenwich, Conn., April 12, President P. W. Popp in the chair. The chief feature of the evening was a lecture on "The Future of Horticulture in America," by James Scott, Elmsford, N. Y. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Scott for his excellent lecture. Messrs. Turner, Conine and Foster also spoke on the same subject. Mr. Horn, from New York, described why we are at war, and appealed to all to buy Liberty bonds. The judges made the following awards: Cytisus Andræus from James Stuart, first prize; calceolarias from W. Graham, second; carnations from R. Williamson, third. The following received honorable mention: Lemon tree with fruit, S. Duthrie; Iris hispanica, from F. Legerstrom; Iris Hollandea, from R. Williamson; vase of dahlia blooms from President Popp; collection of vegetables, greenhouse grown, Robert Williamson, first prize; James Stuart, second. The secretary was instructed to write a letter of sympathy to the family of the late Patrick Fairfield. Mr. Fairfield was one of our oldest members, and for 28 years he was gardener on the H. Mallory estate, Byram Shore, Porchester. President Popp celebrated the advent of an addition to his family by treating the members to sandwiches and light refreshments.

JACK CONROY, Cor. Sec'y.

PRINCETON, ILL.—The W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. donated over 5,000 roses and carnations which were used in decorating the automobiles in the parade which escorted selected men who left for training camps recently.

PETERSBURG, VA.—Better prices than usual and a 25 per cent increase in Easter trade, as compared with that of 1917, is reported by W. S. Young. The supply in all lines was short of the call. In plants, lilies, hydrangeas and azaleas were the best sellers. Violets, sweet peas, orchids and roses moved well. The public seemed well satisfied with sweet peas in place of lily of the valley or violets.

BAD WEATHER AND POOR BUSINESS.

The weather the past week has for the most part been very disagreeable; there was no sun from Tuesday until late Saturday, and snow, sleet, hail, rain and very high winds made it an exceedingly bad time either for shoppers or the production of flowers. The launching of the Third Liberty Loan also claimed the attention of all society folks, so that all social functions are off for the time being. The demand all through the week was very light, except on Saturday, when the small shipments received were not enough to half supply the demand. This was most noticeable in carnations, which were very scarce. There were particularly large shipments of roses the early part of the week; in fact, all along the line there was a supply largely in excess of the demand, and the wholesalers were put to it to handle the stock. The quality is fine in snapdragons, irises, stocks and all kinds of bulbous flowers, with especially good Darwin tulips; also calendulas, wallflowers, sweet peas in quantity, but getting rather short stemmed, white and yellow daisies, callas and Easter lilies, the latter mostly short-stemmed stock cut from pots that failed to make Easter. Cattleya Mossiae leads in the orchids and holds well in price. There are still a few violets, but the first warm spell will finish them. Plenty of good asparagus, mostly southern stock, is seen.

INTERESTING ITEMS.

Mark Mills, who believes in doing the best possible for his fellow man consistent with holding his position, so that he can give the most service, says that they have been compelled to raise prices a trifle so as to be able to meet the increased cost of production. Pot roses that sold formerly at $3.60 per dozen now have to bring from $4.50 to $6. Some stocks are about the same, but others where labor, pots, etc., enter into production, are higher. The question of coal is important. Now is the time to lay in the winter's supply, and as coal is cash it means a long outlay of a lot of money before there is any return for it. Flower pots are scarce. The manufacturers are able only to turn out about half their capacity, on account of scarcity of labor. One large manufacturer will not guarantee delivery after May 1. Prices are 25 per cent higher than last season, with a credit of only 30 days. Pecky cypress lumber that used to sell at $27 is now $67 per 1,000 feet. Wooden pails and plant buckets that formerly cost $11 per 100 now sell for $27. Soil used to be dumped on the place for 50 cents per load; now it is $5. Nine to 10 dollars per day for plowing is charged.

Business will be better than ever this year. My stock of Magnolia Leaves, Cycas, Waxed Crepe Flowers, all kinds and colors, Wheat Sheaves, Cape Flowers, all colors, Stem-

He feels sure that plants will increase in price for the next year or two, and the man who does not protect himself in this way to meet the changed conditions will be forced out of business.

The use of the parcel post is steadily increasing with the trade, particularly in the transportation of cut flowers and all light packages. The Leo Niessen Co. is now using it to a large extent and is regaining trade that had been lost through the poor facilities afforded by the express companies. A letter of appreciation was sent by them to Postmaster Thornton, who was much pleased with this mark of their approval, as he said in answering that most people only appeared to have time to write when something went wrong.

The death of Henry F. Michell, April 7, while fighting with the colors on the battle line in France, was a severe blow to his many friends in this city. He is the first member of the florists' club roll of honor of seven members who have so far joined the colors to meet this fate.

Henry Keffer, at one time quite a large buyer of plants for department stores, and later in the business as a retail florist, was buried April 13. At the time of his death he was connected with a large restaurant at the Hog Island shipbuilding plant.

Jean Weiss has returned from the orange groves and asparagus beds of Florida. He is much pleased with his vacation, which, he says, did him a world of good.

WITH THE WHOLESALEERS.

"The Liberty Bond drive and the bad weather was a little too much for the business. We managed to clean up finally, but prices were low on the short stock," says the Jos. Heacock Co.

Manager Miller, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, found too much stock for the business, but got by somehow. Their splendid stocks of roses are of fine quality.

Edward Reid moved a large block of stock the past week at low prices, but got even in the advance on Saturday. High grade sweet peas and roses are headliners.

Very little demand through the week was the Berger Brothers' report, but a good Saturday. Sweet peas, lilies and carnations were features here.

At the Leo Niessen Co.'s business for the week was dull, but there was a good cleanup on Saturday, with a scarcity of carnations.

SURPLUS CONTINUES.

The continuation of a surplus of stock and extremely bad weather, even for April, caused business to be very slow in the wholesale district during the past week. When the weather is fine, the street boys can be depended upon to take a portion of the surplus, but the weather of the past week was almost too much for them. If there was a ray of sunshine it was so fleeting that few noticed it, and rain, sleet or snow, accompanied by high winds, were almost unceasing. Even our accomplished weather forecaster gave up and acknowledged that it was a freakish storm that baffled his forecasting powers. In only one stock, American Beauties, was there a slight reaction for the better, and that was caused by a light supply rather than an increased demand. On April 8, specials were going at the rate of $15 to $25 per 100, but by April 13 they had crawled up to $25 and $35. Fresh stock of such roses as Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant, Shawyer, etc., ranged from $1 to $8, but much special stock—for there are different qualities of special—went lower than $8. As we have at different times stated, we cannot quote stock that is sold by the box, merely to avoid throwing it in the dead cart. Carnations ranged from $1 to $3 per 100, and excepting the fancies, they had to be good to bring $3. A great surplus of lilies continues to arrive and are particularly hard to move at three to five cents per flower. We do not see much of what can be called good lily of the valley, but the best brings $3 to $5 per 100. There is always a demand for good Spencer sweet peas, but $1 per 100 is about the top for the best, while quantities of short stock is practically unsalable. Of the minor stocks, good yellow daisies seem to go fairly well, but snapdragons, stocks, pansies and other varieties hang fire. The cold weather has to some extent preserved the tulips and narcissi, but their finish cannot be long delayed. Both cattleyas and gardenias are slow, but prices are about the same as our quotations of April 13.

April 15.—A week of cold and dark weather has somewhat reduced the supply of roses and carnations, but excepting American Beauties there is little change in prices. American Beauties are not plentiful and the quality of part of the so-called "specials" is poor. In pink roses, the dark weather has had a bad effect on color. Lilies are a glut, with iceboxes overflowing to the cellars. There are a few good gardenias on the market, and a lot of trash that is going to the peddlers. Tulips are failing, though a few fair Darwins are seen. In sweet peas, daisies and various other stocks there is a surplus. Smilax continues scarce and sells well.

LIBERTY LOAN CAMPAIGN.

In addition to the subscriptions to the third Liberty Loan, by florists, published in our issue of April 13, we have reason to believe that the campaign is progressing favorably. Before this reaches our readers, the Greek-American florists will have entered it with enthusiasm. A special meeting of this organization has been called for the evening of April 17. George D. Nicholas and other prominent members of the association will take an active part in launching the campaign. Many may know the Greeks only as clever fellows in business, particularly the florist business; but scanning the pages of history we find that when, over three thousand years ago, Greece was surrounded by empires governed by despots, it was a republic. It has been said that the laws of the states were not the same, yet a common bond of brotherhood, and a common hatred of tyranny, led them to unite in repelling every foreign invader, and gave them at one time the dominion of the world. May we not believe that a country that glories in the victory of Miltiades at Marathon; that reveres the name of Marco Bozzaris—

"Bozzaris! with the storied and brave Greece ventured in her glory's time, Rest thee—there is no prouder grave, Even in her own proud clime!"— has reared others. May we not believe that in this hour of national and world peril there are among us many men of Greek birth who will be as faithful to their adopted country as those heroes were to Greece?

BAYERSDORFER BUYS HERRMANN PLANT.

Calling, April 13, on A. Herrmann, manufacturer and dealer in florists' supplies at 404-412 East 34th street, we were greatly surprised to find Harry Bayersdorfer, the king-pin, so to speak, of the Florists' Supply House of America, in his shirt sleeves and with rolled cuffs. As Mr. Bayersdorfer is well known as a good dresser, particularly when away from home, we thought there must be something unusual on hand. He was then too busy to talk, but we managed to secure an appointment to meet him later at the Hotel Astor, where he and Mrs. Bayersdorfer are stopping. Our interview disclosed that he has bought and taken possession of the factory and business of A. Herrmann, at the above location. He will make enlargements and great improvements, and this deal may be the starting point of eventually transferring his entire business to New York. We will welcome him, for is there a florist here or elsewhere, who does not know the enterprising and genial Harry Bayersdorfer? He is always on hand when there is anything doing for the good of the florist trade. He is a 100 per cent American, a good business man and democratic in his daily walk and conversation.

NOTES.

President Totty, of the Society of American Florists, requests all secretaries of clubs and florists' organizations throughout the country to make statements of the aggregate of such subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan by florists and allied tradesmen in their respective localities to Secretary John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York, that they may be published in the trade papers. Where there are no organizations, state vice-presidents or individual members of the society are requested to do so.

As will be elsewhere noted, A. Herrmann, for many years in the florist supply business in this city, has retired. At present he is not in the best of health, but we hope that throwing off the harness and a good rest will restore him. His many friends will rejoice if such be the case.

We have recently had occasion to notice the activities of Rodman & Sons, who are located at Bushwick avenue and Conway street, Brooklyn. They have a beautiful store and conservatory, all comparatively new, and being near to Evergreen cemetery, they have a fine business. There are several brothers and at least one sister, all of whom are active in the business.

At the office of the Lord & Burnham Co. it was stated, on April 15, that the aggregate of subscriptions by florists and allied tradesmen in New York was then about $70,000. About two thirds of the retailers had not then been visited.

Leikens, Madison avenue and 55th street, arranged a fine decoration in St. Thomas church, April 13, for the Culver-Williams wedding. The bridal bouquet was a particularly fine creation of white orchids.

Frank E. Campbell has opened an attractive flower store in connection with his undertaking business at 1966 Broadway. M. King, an experienced designer, is in charge of the flower department.

Peter F. McKenny, Fifth avenue and 42nd street, says that business continues good, so good that he felt justified in investing a thousand dollars in Liberty Bonds.

The Lincoln Florists is a new retail firm at 101 West 66th street, near Columbus avenue. Hanges & Benford are the proprietors.

Paul Meconi, Sixth avenue and 26th street, is receiving good stock of Ulrich Brunner roses. A. F. F.

Columbus, O.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND BALANCE.

On cut flowers, there is about an even break on supply and demand, with tendency toward surplus stock. Roses, carnations and sweet peas are the chief staples. Plants are scarce, not having recovered from the Easter clean-up. Hydrangeas are the mainstay, forming with tulips and hyacinths, the bulk of sales. As a reaction from the vegetable-raising craze of last spring, a renewed interest is being shown in planting. A big season is anticipated, with an abundance of oncoming stock with which to meet it. Shrubbery work has already started, and is brisk.

NOTES.

At their Broad street store, the Fifth Avenue Floral Company is showing some exceptionally fine calendulas, grown in the firm's greenhouses. They were pronounced by a visiting florist to be equal in coloring to the choicest specimens he had ever seen. This attractive store, located in a comparatively new but fashionable retail center, is proving to be a very successful venture.

The first get-together occasion of the florists' association since before Easter was held April 15, at the store of Frank C. Kroise. This is the start of a new plan, by which meetings

The 1st of May Thrift Stamp Day In The U. S. A.

The Active Co-operation of Every Reader of
The American Florist

Is Urgently Requested To Make It a Success

May 1st, 1918, will be observed throughout the United States as Thrift Stamp Day! On that day retail stores everywhere in every line of business will ask customers to take part of their change in Thrift Stamps! It will be patriotic for every man, woman and child to accept at least one Thrift Stamp as change on every purchase made that day—and to make as many purchases as possible on May 1st.

Here is a big, practical way of getting millions of Thrift Stamps into the hands of the people of the United States, and of insuring the success of the Government's War Savings Stamps campaign. Thrift Stamp Day will help everyone. It will prove a tremendous boost to business. On May 1st, 1918, the nation should do the biggest total retail business of any single day in our history! The beneficial habit of Thrift will be sown broadcast among the citizens of the U. S. A.! Most important of all, Uncle Sam will be furnished with the sinews of War and Victory!

American business must go "over the top" at once in a quick drive to make Thrift Stamp Day an overwhelming success. You wholesalers, you jobbers, you salesmen, must talk Thrift Stamp Day among your trade, arouse the enthusiasm of the retailers, the storekeepers, the clerks behind the counters. Uncle Sam needs your help. A practical plan has been prepared showing how each one of you can "do your bit" to make Thrift Stamp Day a red letter day in American business annals. Write for this plan today without fail. Remember, in helping Uncle Sam you are helping business and helping yourselves. Address Mr. W. Ward Smith, National War Savings Committee, 51 Chambers St., New York City.

NATIONAL WAR SAVINGS COMMITTEE

will be held alternately at the business places of different members. Heretofore the association has met at the Neil house.

Charles Washburn of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, spent two days here last week, accompanied by Mrs. Washburn. They were visiting their son, who is in the adjutant training school of Ohio State University.

Negotiations are under way by Mrs. Teresa Graff, formerly doing business at 15 North High street, under the name of Graff Bros., to open a flower stand in the lobby of the Neil house.

Last week's meeting of the Columbus Horticultural society was addressed by Mr. Good, of Good & Reese Co., Springfield, O., the subject being "Roses." J.

PAYNE, O.—Frank F. Denison, whose establishment at Akron, O., was destroyed by fire, January 1, is now located in this city.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The feature of the meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, April 17, was an address by J. Curtis Hopkins, Chepachet, R. I., on "Insect Pests and Plant Diseases."

Buffalo, N. Y.

BAD WEATHER INTERFERES WITH TRADE.

Cold weather with snow had a bad effect on business in this city during the past week and the supply was not at all what could have been desired. Roses are plentiful and varied as to quality and the supply of American Beauties is short. Carnations have been very good, however. Funeral work is much in demand.

NOTES.

The Liberty Loan committees are all busy and thus far the results have been very gratifying. Local florists who cannot go to war are going to do their bit by the purchase of Liberty Bonds and in every way possible help the cause.

Charles Schoenhut is busy at LaFayette park selling bonds for the Third Liberty Loan for the Home Defense League, of which he is a member. He makes a splendid appearance in uniform.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club was well attended and the interesting report of President Elbers on his trip to California was much appreciated by those present.

W. J. Palmer, S. A. Anderson, Wallace H. Eiss and Mr. Weise are devoting much of their time to the Liberty Loan campaign. They are the right men in the right place.

W. H. Grever, of Allen street, had the arrangement of the flowers for the funeral of one of this city's most prominent ministers who died last week.

Charles Felton, Main and Utica streets, has purchased the store of S. J. Rebstock on Grant street and will conduct it as a branch.

The opening of the Liberty Bank under its new name called for a large amount of fine stock, April 15.

Jerry Brookins of Orchard Park is on the jury for two weeks.

GOOD TRADE DESPITE INCLEMENT WEATHER.

Trade during the past week has been brisk, notwithstanding the cold rainy weather which continued until Saturday. Tulips and daffodils are scarce, as are narcissi and freesias. There are callas and Easter lilies in abundance. Carnations are not as plentiful but the quality is good. Violets have improved with the cool weather and sweet peas are excellent and the supply strong. Hardy ferns, leucothoe, laurel and asparagus are scarce. The rose supply is good in all varieties.

NOTES.

Henry P. Neun is growing lily of the valley in pots, for which he finds a ready market.

George T. Boucher is kept busy with funeral work.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

SEED establishments, flower seeds excepted, are on the priority list in coal distribution.

THE S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam of the Holland-America line has arrived off the Hook of Holland.

GARDEN SEED jobbers complain that the demand for replacement stocks has fallen off badly the past few days.

MOST mail order seedsmen report orders are less in number than last year, but the total volume is 50 per cent greater.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE reports its foreign traveler in southern France, recuperating from German dungeon experiences.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., is making a visit to his 1,200 acre farm in the Saskatchewan.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade April 17 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.

No seed purchases on government contracts were made from January bids because of the small quantities offered and high prices quoted.

THE seed trade of Chicago has subscribed over $40,000 for bonds of the Third Liberty Loan. Leonard H. Vaughan has the campaign in hand.

ALL American seedsmen having funds to the credit of alien enemies should report full details to A. Mitchell Palmer, custodian, Washington, D. C.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Walter Abrams, proprietor of the Abrams Seed Co., is disposing of his stock and fixtures preparatory to entering the army.

REFERRING to the account of the fire which destroyed the building of the Missouri Seed Co., Kansas City, as reported in our last week's issue, we are unable to determine whether any seeds stocks were burned, as the structure was used for furniture storage.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The W. Atlee Burpee Co. reports business to April 1 was slightly behind in the number of orders, but in value was probably 50 per cent ahead of the same date last year. On the whole, from the viewpoint of income, trade is very satisfactory, but difficulty in securing deliveries causes much inconvenience.

INDEPENDENCE, IA.—Mel. L. Webster Co. reports business very heavy, but by running night and day during January and February it was possible to get the orders out by March 1. Orders for bulk are being accepted only at open prices, but dealers seem to realize conditions. Packet business is showing up very heavy for 1919, even at the advanced prices it is necessary to charge.

A. T. FERRELL, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., has subscribed for Third Liberty Loan bonds to the amount of $100,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The Bay Counties Seed Co. reports the heaviest business in its history, with many items sold out. The demand in the nursery and plant department is also better than last season.

DES MOINES, IA.—The Iowa Seed Co. reports the volume of spring trade the greatest in the history of the firm. The peak was reached earlier than usual this season due apparently to the fact that early buying was urged. Delay in freight service and slow arrival of stocks have caused more difficulty than usual.

Henry F. Michell.

Died at the Front in France. See Obituary.

Seed Importations Threatened.

The Federal Horticultural Board at Washington gives notice of a public hearing on proposed restrictions or prohibitions with respect to the importations of plants and seeds from foreign countries, May 28, in Room 11, Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C., at 10:00 a. m. In view of the tendency of the non-commercial officials in control, or whose advice is taken in such matters at Washington, it becomes necessary for those whose business may be seriously affected as a result of this action to spend some money personally in a trip to Washington and to employ counsel to represent them. It should be remembered at the same time, another board, (Federal War) is busy restricting, by most difficult conditions, the importations of all plants and bulbs. Between the two boards, the importing nurserymen and seedsmen are likely to find their foreign trade well shut out.

French Bulbs.

In a communication from Toulon dated March 15, the quantity of narcissus bulbs planted is said to be normal, but owing to a serious drought, which it is estimated has retarded growth two months, it is impossible to predict what the crop will be. The first rain fell December 20, with further precipitation in January and during the first two weeks in February, but lack of sufficient moisture continues a factor. The question of labor, which may be so scarce and expensive that growers may find it to advantage to employ it in harvesting other crops, will also have to be taken into consideration. Roman hyacinths, it is said, will be scarce and high in price.

Cable advices of April 13 indicate that the Growers' Syndicate will not make any prices before May. Higher prices are anticipated on hyacinths. Predictions regarding narcissus prices are not yet made. It is thought jobbers will hold off before closing at high rates this year owing to many well-known difficulties in exporting. Rain is needed to protect the crops.

Seed Potatoes Cheap in Pennsylvania.

According to C. F. Preston, secretary of the Pennsylvania Potato Growers' Association, more than 11,700 bushels of seed potatoes of virtually all varieties are available at low prices for planting in that state this spring, the average price being $1.50 per bushel. He points out that storage conditions for the most part have been ideal and urges farmers to keep up the acreage, declaring that last year's history of high priced seed and a low-priced crop will be reversed in 1918.

Japanese Lily Imports.

Lily bulbs exported from Japan, year 1915, 9,988,011 bulbs; year 1916, 15,502,825 bulbs; year 1917, 16,643,994 bulbs. This does not look like a 1917 shortage as was claimed by dealers in Japan last summer.

Seed Catalogue Test of Patriotism.

Last year every man from bank president to bootblack became a farmer, community gardens spread themselves in the suburbs, and costumes for farmerettes engaged the attention of the great distributors of feminine attire. The call for the intensive cultivation of the soil met with an almost universally enthusiastic reception.

As the planting season of 1918 approaches, there is even more urgent need of an increase in the production of foodstuffs than that which faced the United States a year ago. With it comes a test of patriotism and persistence for the rural and suburban American, for even the city dweller with his tiny back yard. Many a man who last November figured ruefully that his war potatoes had cost him about fifty dollars a barrel, many a woman whose recollections of the summer of 1917 are a medley of backaches and mosquito bites, wartlike tomatoes and sweet-corn ears of the size beanpods should be, has greeted the arrival of the seed catalogue with a groan of despair.

To these wise and saddened farmers we would say: "Your hour of supreme effort approaches. Now is the time to prove that sticktoitiveness which is supposed to be in the make-up of every true American. Now is the time to gird on your agricultural armor and approach that plot of ground, whether it be a matter of square feet or of acres, not with the expansive enthusiasm of the amateur, but with the dogged, reasoning industry of a workman who knows his job and is going to stand by it."

With this spirit, one and all, we shall make the crops of 1918 the greatest the world has ever seen.

We do not mean to urge that John Smith is to plant potatoes where experience has proved potatoes will not grow. Let him try beans, and pray that they will strike the proper combination. Tom Jones, in another state of the union, most likely has the sort of soil which only the potato loves. What we believe is that with the wisdom of experience, plus common sense, plus an earnest determination to labor steadily, the autumn of 1918 will see few discouraged gardeners and bring few reports of unprofitable labor.—Munsey's Magazine.

THE Florida melon crop promises to be large and earlier than usual.

VEGETABLE acreage in Florida reported by the United States department of agriculture, April 8, was as follows: Beans, 5,475; cucumbers, 3,515; peppers, 1,931.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Mrs. Gertrude Ingenhutt, aged 104 years, who for many seasons has planted and personally tended a garden, is planning a war garden this year. To the fresh food from her garden and the pleasure and exercise derived from working it, she attributes her health and longevity.

Asparagus Demand Fair.

South Carolina Colossal Green sold $5.00 to $7.00 per dozen bunches in leading northern markets. California firsts reached $11.00 per dozen in New York and fancy light green sold at $5.00 per crate in Chicago. The demand for choice asparagus was fair to good in most markets.—Market News, April 4.

Cabbage Demand Stronger.

The demand in some markets is reported improving. Western New York continues at $10 to $16 in bulk with sales by shippers at $20 to $25 at Rochester. Jobbing prices in eastern and central markets advanced sharply to $45 to $50 at Chicago. Southern producing sections showed an advance ranging from five to 10 cents. Jobbing sales in northern markets were uneven.—Market News, April 4.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 16.—Cucumbers, 2 dozen box, $2.00 to $2.50; celery, crate, $2.00 to $2.25; leaf lettuce, per box, 17½ to 20 cents; radishes, per barrel, $4.00 to $6.00; tomatoes, 6 baskets, $2.00 to $4.50.

New York, April 15.—Celery, per crate, $1.50 to $3.00; cucumbers, 50 cents to $1.00 per dozen; mushrooms, 40 cents to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $4.00.

Garden Plans.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., has issued several plans in connection with the campaign for increased garden planting that have met with the hearty approval of the food administration, the National Council of Defense and numerous organizations that are planting war gardens. In calling attention to the most profitable vegetable garden crops both for large and small areas, information is given as to proper methods of sowing the seed, fertilizers, drainage, selection of the garden site, practical garden plans, etc.

Cabbage and Cauliflower Protection.

Not all gardeners are aware of the necessity of protecting cabbage and cauliflower plants against injury from frost. This is especially so in case the plants have not been well hardened, or when a long, warm spell is followed by a severe freeze. What is needed at this time is protection for the stem, as the leaves may be neglected. We have for years practiced a method that has given entire satisfaction.

Beginning at the end of the field from which the prevailing winds blow, we set the plants leaning away from the wind, which in our case, would be leaning toward the east; all rows are set leaning in the same way. The plants are at once filled with a hoeful or handful of earth applied to the west side, which helps in one way to hold the plants steady and prevent damage by high winds, and, on the other, keeps the stems from freezing. We have done this to such an extent that only the tips of the leaves were visible and left the plants in this shape for three weeks with no injury. Very often the plants erect themselves later on—if not, a little help must be given when steady warm weather sets in. This method can also be of use in fighting the maggots. In one locality, the flies lay their eggs against the stem the latter part of April or the first days in May. The young maggots at once attack the stem and often the crop is ruined. We find that upon investigation we can determine when the eggs are laid, and by compelling the flies to deposit their eggs upon one mound of ground—we can scatter these eggs in all directions and cultivate them under deeply to such an extent that they either never hatch or never find our cabbage. This method is superior to any chemical or fly paper treatment.

Another mistake made in some locations, is excessively deep planting.

When set too low, the ground at the roots is too cold, retarding root action. We find plants "walk off" more readily if set only moderately deep and hilled for protection as above. Later on, when the plants start to grow, we scatter a scant handful of nitrate of soda around each plant, taking care to keep the nitrate at least three inches away from the stem. This will soon tell on them. To keep nitrate in good workable shape, we pound the lumps and screen through ¼-inch mesh screen and immediately mix with four or five times its bulk of bone meal or acid phosphate. Thus nitrate of soda cannot cake nor "creep" away and is ready for instant service. Besides, the phosphate is a help to our plants.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., President;
J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress
St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel.
Forty-third annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 26-28, 1918.

TAMPA, FLA.—The Thomas Nurseries will consider change in name to Florida Estates, April 18.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The Elm City Nursery calls attention to the fact that tree planting is not only a good habit but a duty we owe to forthcoming generations.

Nursery Shipments Exempt of Embargo.

In the Bulletin of the American Association of Nurserymen of April 1, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., counsel of the association, reports that the committee on express transportation composed of the vice-presidents of the Adams, American and Wells-Fargo companies, with A. M. Richardson, Washington, D. C., secretary, has issued instructions to express companies as follows:

"Nursery stock, in packages not exceeding 300 pounds, and all seeds should be classed and handled as perishable matter, and also excluded from embargoes along with government shipments, food products, etc."

Nursery Importations Threatened.

The Federal Horticultural Board at Washington gives notice of a public hearing on proposed restrictions or prohibitions with respect to the importations of plants and seeds from foreign countries, May 28, in Room 11, Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C., at 10:00 a. m. In view of the tendency of the non-commercial officials in control, or whose advice is taken in such matters at Washington, it becomes necessary for those whose business may be seriously affected as a result of this action to spend some money personally in a trip to Washington and to employ counsel to represent them. It should be remembered at the same time, another board, (Federal War) is busy restricting, by most difficult conditions, the importations of all plants and bulbs. Between the two boards the importing nurserymen and seedsmen are likely to find their foreign trade well shut out.

Park Department Changes in New York.

The New York Times of April 12 says in part: "Carl F. Pilat, for five years landscape architect for the city park department, resigned yesterday at the request of Commissioner William F. Grell. According to Mr. Pilat, the reason the commissioner gave for asking his resignation was Mayor Hylan's plea for economy."

"Mr. Pilat's removal follows closely upon the action of Commissioner Grell in dismissing Charles F. Flitner, curator of the Dyckman House Museum at 204th street and Broadway, and Mrs. Martha Rush, another old employe of the museum. These two, the commissioner replaced with Capt. Frederick Hensler and his wife, who like the park commissioner, are naturalized Germans.

"Although friends of the commissioner said last night that the removal of Mr. Pilat had nothing to do with pro-German-American prejudice, it was pointed out that by the resignation a naturalized Austrian named Gattringer, who was Mr. Pilat's assistant, becomes acting landscape architect. Mr. Gattringer is a civil service employe, and Mr. Pilat was not."

"Protests against the removal of the landscape architect are being sent to Mayor Hylan which severely condemn the action of the commissioner. It has been pointed out that the city must have a landscape architect, and that the summary removal of a competent man on such grounds as the park commissioner gives is unwise and unfair."

In this connection it may be stated that a short time ago, a foolish scheme was hatched to dig up a part of Central park and make trenches, the ostensible object being to show the people something of "war" and make them more patriotic. Central park is about as near to real war as some of our citizens want to go. The trench scheme was eventually abandoned.

Barberry Dangers.

Secretary of Agriculture Houston calls attention to the fact that Berberis vulgaris, B. purpurea being included, is responsible for the loss of millions of bushels of wheat annually, being the cause of black stem rust, a plant parasite that requires the common barberry as an alternate host to complete its life cycle. In a campaign to control the rust disease, it is urged that elimination of all common barberry be made at once wherever it has been planted. The immediate destruction is necessary, as rust develops on the bushes about May 1 and may be carried at once to the wheat. The fact that the barberry is some distance from the wheat fields does not indicate that the rust cannot be transferred to the grain, the spores being carried long distances by wind, and can infect a number of wild grasses, producing new crops of spores, which in turn can be spread like clouds of dust over entire counties in a few days.

The Illinois State Council of Defense has urged all patriotic citizens of that state to at once dig up and burn all plants of the tall or European barberry, there being yet time to replace the destroyed shrubs with other more beautiful species, especially the Japanese variety, which does not harbor the rust and is much better for ornamental purposes than the vulgaris. The value of the barberry is so insignificant compared with the great food value of cereal crops, especially at present, that no one should hesitate to make this sacrifice at once.

The distinguishing points in the two varieties are as follows: Japanese—Edge of leaf smooth; twigs of last year, reddish-brown; berries, single or rarely in groups of two or three. Vulgaris (common)—Edge of leaf, sawtoothed; twigs of last year, dun or grey; berries in a cluster on one main stem.

Manetti Stocks Home-Grown.

A comparatively new enterprise for this country was started not long ago by John D. Knickman, who is an experienced florist and nurseryman, and has located at East Northport, Long Island, N. Y. It is the growing of manetti stock for budding and grafting purposes.

This venture is timely, as a recent order has prohibited the importation, for an indefinite time, of all trees, shrubs and plants. He has a considerable area of suitable land and has a large stock coming on that will be ready this fall for indoor grafting. The stock for budding, as is generally known, takes two years' growth and will not be ready for the trade until next year, but for grafting, he expects to have, this fall, a supply that will meet all demands of the trade. He is also growing English ivy, and will be prepared to ship rooted or unrooted cuttings and plants. Another feature of his work is a great stock of hardy perennials.

John D. Knickman, who is a brother to C. B. Knickman, of the well-known horticultural farm of McHutchison & Co., New York, started in greenhouse work when he was 10 years old and spent 22 years at it. For 14 years, he was with the well-known firm of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J. As by inclination and experience he is well equipped for this enterprise, we expect him to be successful.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., April 10. There was a good attendance, with President Robert Jones in the chair. One petition for active membership was received. The president appointed the following to act as judges for the monthly exhibits: John F. Johnston, James McCarthy and Arthur Smith. Their awards were as follows: Competition, vase of antirrhinum, mixed, Robert Jones, 1st; vase of outdoor flowers, Frank Petroccia, 1st; bunch of 50 violets, Frank Petroccia, 1st; exhibition, bunch of violets, cultural certificate awarded to Frank Petroccia. Robert Jones, upon request, gave a short talk on his method of growing antirrhinums, which proved very interesting and instructive.

An essay, written by L. P. Jensen, St. Louis, Mo., entitled "The Relation of the Gardener to Civic Work," was ably read by Sam. J. Trepess. A letter of thanks was ordered sent the author. Robert Jones offered a prize of $5 in competition for tulips at our next meeting. Competitions for our next meeting, to be held May 8, are: 24 pansies, one vase of bulbous flowers grown out of doors, and one pan of narcissi. It was unanimously agreed that the treasurer be empowered to purchase a $500 Liberty Bond for this society.

MAKING THE GREENHOUSES PAY.

Crop Rotation and Intensive Culture.

The economic use of greenhouse space by means of practical and efficient crop rotation, together with intensive cultural methods, is worthy the attention of all growers. The greatly increased cost of production on account of the high price and scarcity of both coal and labor, as well as all supplies and material used in the business, added to which is the high cost of everything that pertains to household expenses, makes the carrying on of the business a serious problem. To speed up production, and to also make two blades of grass grow where one grew before, is worth the effort, provided quality can be maintained.

John W. Prince, foreman of the W. K. Harris establishment, Philadelphia, Pa., is a most practical grower, who believes that the main thing to be attained in growing plants for market, is quality. Far too much stock is grown that lacks the finish to put it over. His plan is to produce only the amount that can be given the necessary space to bring each plant to perfection, when all will find a ready sale at top prices. In a recent interview, he described crop rotations and cultural methods, by means of which the houses are kept full the year round producing four full crops of salable plants and cut flowers.

Beginning the year, July 1, with the bedding stock out of the way, leaving the houses empty, the tables are filled with soil and planted with strong plants of chrysanthemums from three-inch pots. The best cuttings are obtained from stock plants carried over the winter in an outdoor frame, protected from extreme weather by one hot-water pipe. These, dormant during the winter, make a very sturdy growth in spring, providing splendid strong cuttings.

As fast as the chrysanthemums are cut out, beginning in early October, the tables with a little well-rotted manure added to the soil, are to be planted with Ten Weeks stocks, which have been sown in August outside, in frames and which by this time are in five-inch pots. When potting, throw away the rank growing plants as they are all pretty sure to be single. Snapdragon is also an excellent plant for cut flowers, which has been grown in the frames into four-inch pots. These latter should be planted about four inches apart each way, and grown so as to get one good spike from each plant. These, and the stocks, will be ready to cut starting January 15 and will last until the end of February.

Primulas, malacoides and obconica, in four-inch pots, are also a splendid crop to follow the chrysanthemums. In this case it is better to remove the soil. Given sufficient room, they make shapely plants, well clothed with foliage and carry a mass of flowers. Jerusalem cherries and stevias, potted from the field, also are good stock to fill the vacant space. Pot poinsettias are a profitable crop that can be spread out and given the required space after the chrysanthemums. When the Christmas stock is gone, preparations are made for Easter, and every available foot of space is then filled with hydrangeas, roses, lilies, etc.

Seed of the spring bedding plant annuals is sown in flats the last of January and placed on pipe shelves above the inside of the walks. As they mature, they are pricked off into similar flats which are also placed on the shelves. Mr. Prince is opposed to shelves on account of the shade thrown on the stock below, and would only use them as a makeshift in emergencies when there is not sufficient table space.

The first vacant room after Easter is to be at once filled with the various bedding plants, which should be as forward as possible. Cuttings of coleus, ageratum and geraniums are taken January to April. Leave most of the foliage on cuttings, giving them plenty of room in the bed, where they will root quicker and make a good plant at once. Bouvardia root cuttings are made in February and March. This plant is also good to follow the chrysanthemums, being lifted from the field and planted or heeled in in frames to protect from the early frosts, until room is made inside.

Mr. Prince's method of handling Easter lilies is to plant the bulbs the last of November in six-inch pots, using moist soil. Place in frames outside, and cover with one foot of soil. No water is given at this time, there being sufficient moisture in the soil to encourage root growth, and the frame is covered with boards to keep off the rain. These are brought into the house after the Christmas stock has been moved and are then found to be well rooted. They can now be watered with safety as the roots are there to take up the moisture and push the growth along.

Easter forcing roses are lifted in early October, potted, then plunged in manure in the field and the tops covered with straw. The warm manure induces a root growth, which gives them quite an advantage over stock lifted later and kept dormant.

Cyclamens can be grown outside in a frame, but to be successful with them there, the grower must be in love with his work, ever watchful. Each plant must have just so much water. The sash are to be raised to admit of free circulation of air. They make very sturdy plants when well done. All should have sufficient space to insure short leaf growth, as long stemmed leaves give a plant an untidy appearance. They are a good summer crop in place of chrysanthemums in the house, where they also require careful handling.

Ferns of the Boston type grow quickly into money in the summer greenhouse; planted the middle of June from 2½-inch pots, they are ready for sixes by August, and soon finish into salable stock. There will also be found plenty of runners for next year's stock.

Many men in trying to account for failures blame it on the plants or bulbs, when Mr. Prince says, it is the grower's fault every time—a little too wet or too dry or too hot, a week too late in starting, or forcing without sufficient root growth, letting insects get their work in before going after them, etc. The proper temperature and sulphur cures or prevents mildew, but many neglect these simple remedies.

The most successful grower is the one who had his young stock the farthest advanced when there is room to move it forward. There should always be more than is required, so that the strongest can be selected. Grow no more than will receive the best attention, so that each will be a perfect salable plant. It is quite possible to grow four good crops to a house every 12 months; in fact, it has to be done, if one is to come out ahead under present conditions.

Making Use of Waste Space.

Many florists have spaces between houses that can be put to economic use by the aid of hotbed sash or with muslin cloth, for protection in early fall until the crop is cut. An added safeguard is one row of steam pipes around the bed near the ground to use in sudden drops of temperature. With such space available, stock can be moved outside easily in the season, leaving valuable greenhouse room for rapid succession of crops. An irrigation pipe over the center of the bed provides an easy method of watering such outside beds. The W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., and Gude Brothers Co., Washington, D. C., have found this space very economical and compared with its efficiency the cost of fitting up was merely nominal.

Mothers' Day.

This year's observance of Mothers' day, the business of which has become of so much importance to those who encourage it, promises on account of the war to have more of a national significance than at any previous time. A visit to Miss Jarvis found her very enthusiastic and positive that the coming celebration would be the greatest in the history of the day.

Mothers' day has been recognized by the national government to the extent that on that day flags are displayed on the government public buildings all over the world. The chaplain of the senate will deliver a Mothers' day prayer, and its observance will be general at all the cantonments, and even on the battle front. Soldiers who are forbidden to wear ornaments or badges other than those belonging to the service or received for Valiant Service, are permitted to wear flowers in honor of their mother on Mothers' day. The government has also furnished The Mothers' Day International Association, of which Miss Jarvis is president, with the illustration which is used as the picture feature of their official poster or window card. This was drawn and colored by the celebrated artist, Alice Barber Stephens. It portrays a war mother, who having given her sons to the army and navy, is also engaged herself at the desk taking orders for Liberty Bonds. These posters contain inscriptions for use at church or camp. One reads: "Special Services, Hearty Welcome for You." The other, especially appropriate for florists is: "Send a Box of Flowers to the Mother of Your Heart." The association also publishes an official programme, which contains an order of service, a synopsis of which is as follows:

Selected music.

To be sung—Onward Christian Soldiers.

Mothers' day prayer as delivered in United States senate.

Lord's Prayer chanted. Responsive Scripture; Verses referring to parents and mother.

Mothers hymns.

All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name.

Nearer My God to Thee.

Jesus Lover of My Soul.

Offertory.

Recitation—The Bravest of the Brave.

Singing—Home Sweet Home.

Mothers' day tribute—Five minute address.

National hymn—(all standing)—

"Our Parents' God, to Thee."

"What patriot homes may do for our Country."—Ten minute address.

The Star Spangled Banner.

Close with prayers for our homes and all homes and mothers of defenders of world-freedom.

A page in the programme gives hints for proper observance of the day.

Patriots, are described as follows: Women have ever been among the most loyal and self-sacrificing of patriots. They have not only given their own earnest lives to their country through deprivation and faithfulness, but also have given those more precious to them than their own—the lives of their beloved sons, husbands, fathers, brothers.

Home outing, home going, home writing, in memory, and honor badge, the international memory flower of mother, home and country, the white carnation, is the Mothers' day emblem. Its whiteness, form, endurance and fragrance, typify the truth, beauty, fidelity and ever rising incense of mother love.

Slogan: In honor of "the best mother who ever lived, the mother of your heart."

Miss Jarvis is averse to any other form of publicity than that which is number of times to convince her that put forth by the Mothers' Day International Association. I have tried all the efforts made by the florist trade all over the country are of the greatest benefit in popularizing the day. Her desire is that the trade make a general use of the posters and official programme, which are furnished practically at cost. Programmes $3 per hundred.

ROBERT KIFT.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

"Say it with money," has put, "Say it with flowers," out of the running, for the past week or two, and it is quite right that it should. Every energy that is not required for the actual running of the business should be devoted to the sale of Liberty Bonds, Patriotic displays in the windows with Liberty Bond posters as central features are opportune and can be made as artistic as any other decorative scheme.

When the time limit set for this third campaign has run its course, and the amount subscribed, let us hope, has gone "over the top" of that desired, by a billion or two, home duties will receive attention. There is such a quantity of all kinds of flowers in the market at this time, that special sales at low prices are in order. The dollar box, the tumbler basket for the same price, or 25 or 50 cents more, are specials that can be sold at these figures, and still show a good margin of profit. They must, however, be handled in quantity. Trim the window with cut flower boxes, a number of them filled ready to be carried off, arranged among the empties, some of which are tied up, with addressed or plain tags attached, which would indicate that they also are filled. A good-sized price window card or sign, calling attention to the specials, is necessary. Such a display can be made very attractive.

When the feature is tumbler baskets, the window can be hung full, from top to bottom, with about half of them filled. As all the flowers are in water, they will remain in good salable condition, and at least last the day out. These small baskets filled with the low growing forget-me-not plants, which are now in flower, will be found quite attractive and salable. To get the greatest benefit from these sales, they should be advertised in the daily papers, and also with circulars or postcards, to the list of customers. Aside from the direct profit, if they are made a feature of the store's business at all such times as the conditions in the market warrant, they give great publicity to the firm, which brings other business. The customer who is attracted to the store by the box or basket, is a good prospect who may see something else that suits his fancy in the well arranged stock. The more or less continuous advertising of the special sales is sure to bring results, the constant tapping, as it were, finally attracting the desired attention.

It is a good plan to feature certain cut flowers in bunches of a dozen or 25 sprays, by wrapping in a cornucopia of waxed paper a dozen short-stemmed pink or Ward roses, bunches of sweet peas, stocks, wallflowers, long-stemmed pansies and the like. These placed in bowls or wide-mouthed vases on counters or in the flower case, make a good showing. They suggest something that is complete in itself, ready to be carried away. The waxed paper should be arranged to increase and not contract the size of the bunch.

Do not forget that Mother's day is approaching and should receive its share of publicity. There will be good business if you go after it, the sales and profit being in proportion to the zeal and enthusiasm you throw into the work.

Are you co-operating in the publicity campaign? This has so far shown wonderful results. Secretary Young says the doors are wide open. All are invited to contribute and become identified with this movement, which will be of the greatest benefit to the trade.

How About That Subscription?

Have you felt the pulse of our publicity campaign yet, to the extent of better business than you had hoped for before our campaign started? We hear glowing reports all along the line from east to west and north to south about the best Easter business, etc., and may not the national publicity campaign for flowers have been partly the cause?

Pretty good fellows get on the wrong side once in a while and we feel it is merely carelessness on their part in not getting on the band-wagon with their subscriptions to help this campaign of ours go "over the top," so that every florist, grower and retailer alike, will eventually benefit from the propaganda.

Do not overlook your duty in this campaign, when by sending your check to the Secretary, John Young, New York, you will have met your obligation to this fund, and made this co-operation plan of ours, a big success.

We know there are plenty of broad-minded florists who do not feel that it is right to see the other fellow give up, and side-step any issue that is for the general upbuilding of the craft as a whole, but who were in the past unable to spare the money, but now that Easter is over can feel like doing their share towards our campaign fund.

Boys! this work of ours, while only in its infancy, if continued, will be the best insurance you ever paid for. Look back and think of the difference in the minds of the florists, as regards to their feelings about the business now, and six months ago. Do you not think the optimism of some of the leaders last year, has helped a bit? If you do think so, just send a contribution commensurate with the advantages and benefits which you are receiving.

There will be a book published shortly of all who have contributed. Can you afford to be out of it? Help the cause, and thereby help yourself. Make the S. A. F. proud of the best movement that ever was put over for the general good of all concerned and show them you are in full accord with the work, by doing your share.

HENRY PENN, Chairman,
S. A. F. Publicity Committee.

Acacia Pubescens.

This most beautiful of all the acacias, with its lovely yellow, pendant, tufted clusters and fine lace-like foliage, is, when in blossom, one of the most ornamental greenhouse plants. Its fragrance is delightful. It is also valuable as a cut flower, being especially useful in table decorations, where its graceful sprays lend themselves to almost any kind of floral arrangement. Well flowered plants in pots are graceful in the extreme--they are ideal for all high-class decorations. To most propagators, however, they are an enigma.

The methods of raising young plants are by grafting, stem cuttings, root cuttings, and layering. When planted in the ground, and sometimes in the pot or tub, they will send up suckers which show vigor, but it seems almost impossible to lift and have them live. The easiest and the method which gives best percentage of success is layering. This is best done after the first summer growth is made. Use the firm wood of the new growth and layer into a three-inch pot of sandy sphagnum, which must be kept wet. Temporary platforms, or sticks driven into the ground, will support the pots.

When grown for cut flowers, they do best planted in the ground. The accompanying illustration is of several plants that have been growing in a small, old-fashioned house, 20x55 feet, for the past 20 years. Eight plants fill this house, from which a very good crop of flowers is taken each year from February 12-15 for about one month. They require very little looking after, except watering and temperature, which at night during the winter is from 58° to 60°. It is essential that when through flowering they should be pruned well back, so that all new growth shall be strong and vigorous.

Every large city could support such a house as this, which would be found quite profitable to any one who would take it up. The illustration is of the acacia house at the nurseries of W. & H. F. Evans, Rolandville, Philadelphia, Pa.

Flowers in War-Time.

Food will win the war, but food is not the goal. It is only ammunition. This war is for the souls of people and of peoples. And while we raise potatoes and cabbages to feed the flesh, the spirit must not be forced to wait till the second table. The soul should sit at meat along with the body.

Shall we banish flowers from our gardens? Can we afford to cut music out of our war programme? Cabbages are of the rank and file of the fighting forces, but poppies are the regimental band. Flowers are for solace in the serious business of hoeing cabbages and killing the worms thereon. Potatoes we need for food, but pansies we must have for thoughts.

It would be to Germanize our land, if we cut gay color out of our war gardens, and left the gardener only the drab business of serving tables. The wondrous structure of the cabbage may be worth long meditation; but we do not meditate upon it. The rose compels meditation. Flowers on the mantel are incense offered to the soul of the house—the Home. If Germany had thoroughly subdued America a home would not be needed. A house and a cabbage patch would be sufficient.

War is sad business, but it needs no professional landscape crepe-hangers. Dots and dashes, belts and splashes of color are needed in our landscape more than ever. We owe a whole season of garden cheer to the eye of the passer-by in our neighborhood. Dooryard color is Red Cross bounty. It is first aid to the warsick mind and the broken spirit. By taking thought the householder can have a succession of color growing about his house from spring frost to autumn frost, and this without subtracting at all from the time he should give to the food garden. The heart will find spare moments for flower culture. Keep the home gardens blooming.—Minneapolis Journal.

THE CARNATION.

Planting in the Field.

As soon as the planting ground becomes dry enough to allow for it to be properly worked, the work of getting it in shape for planting out the young plants should be pushed along without further delay. After April 20 the weather conditions will permit of the plants being planted outside. Carnations are hardy enough to stand any light frosts that we may get from now on, and they are far better off planted in the field than standing in small pots under glass. The danger that should be guarded against more than anything else is that of flooded, wet ground through heavy rains. This can be done by drainage and the careful preparation of the land, making it as level as possible so that there do not remain any hollow places for the water to form pools after rains.

The general lay out of the planting ground has to be governed to a great extent according to the available space at each grower's command. Those who grow a large number of plants generally follow the field method, planting the plants 10 to 14 inches apart in the rows and the rows 16 to 20 inches apart to allow for the use of the hand cultivator. The grower with a smaller area of ground at his disposal usually follows the plan of setting the plants closer together in beds of about four feet wide with a walk between each bed and depends on the use of the hoe for cultivating and keeping the beds free of weeds, but it does not matter so much which plan is followed.

The most important thing for us to consider at the start is a careful preparation of the ground. The land that was manured and ploughed last fall, can now be easily gotten in shape by going over it with a harrow to loosen it up, breaking up the lumps and making it as level as possible. Our planting ground lays very low, and unless we are very careful in the preparation, it will remain too wet to be good for the plants. To overcome this, the land is plowed up in beds of about 25 feet wide, with a furrow left between each bed to serve as a shallow ditch for the water to drain away. After the plowing is done, a man goes over the ditches, throwing out the loose dirt, leaving a solid bottom the width of his shovel. The surplus water then drains off the beds and is carried away by the ditches. We do not use the same land two years in succession, but have to use it again the second or third year, and between the times it is used for carnations; it is prepared and sown down to grass and the sod taken from it for use in the benches in the greenhouses.

The smaller planting spaces are best prepared by digging with the spade, and it is better to do the digging just before everything is in readiness for planting out. The work then goes much quicker than if the ground is allowed to remain and get battered down again by rains.

MANURING THE LAND.

This is a question that many times puzzles the new beginner in carnation culture, as well as being oftentimes the cause of a great deal of his disappointments. In dealing with this matter, we should first take into consideration the short season that the carnation plants remain in the field; also, to bear in mind that during that short time, the shoots are being continually pinched back and the strength thrown back into the body of the plant.

Partly rotted manure can be worked into the ground in liberal quantity in the fall of the year and greatly benefit the growth of the plants the following season, but if manure of the same state is put on the land just before planting time in the spring, it is very liable to cause a soft growth, making the plants susceptible to stem rot and other diseases, so if it is necessary to manure the land just before planting, be sure it is well-rotted and do not be too liberal in the quantity used.

PLANTING.

After the preparation of the land has been attended to, the next thing in order is to make arrangements for the planting. This is a job when once started that should be pushed along to its completion as rapidly as possible. The plants should have been thoroughly hardened off, either by having been out in the cold frames for a week or 10 days or by having given them a hardening by keeping the steam heat off the houses with ventilation enough to maintain a low temperature. When starting the planting, put enough help in the field to keep that part of the work steadily moving, then apply the same method in the greenhouse to keep the planters supplied with plants as they need them.

If the plants are in pots, have them knocked out and set in flats at the greenhouse. They then can be carted to the field as needed. Be sure and insist on careful planting, both as to setting the plants and keeping the rows straight.

Greenhouse Help Problem Solved.

At the present time florists all over this land—in fact in Europe as well—are finding the question of getting good greenhouse help, a problem to worry them. The present war is calling our best young florists and growers from the greenhouses as well as men from all other businesses. How are we to find good, steady, reliable growers to take their places?

This is easily answered and the time is here when we should break away from the old plan of things and use good practical sense, and not cling to the old ways just because it has been the custom—because Joseph has always had 10 old men that served an apprenticeship in Holland, is no reason why we must have 10 of the same kind (or five, if our place is smaller than Joseph's). We are living too much according to past custom and our feet still continue in the old rut. We stumble along in the mud of the same old rut, when if we were to climb out onto the side, we would perhaps find nice green grass to walk in—perhaps find time to occasionally spend a moment in the shade to help get the old mud off our feet—in other words, find time to better things by thinking and planning them out. We all know, much of the work around a greenhouse is hot and heavy work, and we also know the greater part of it is not hard work; in fact is very light and easy—the "know how" is the principal thing. Some florists seem to have the "know how" better than others and the same is true in all other walks of life, and the one that has the best of the "know how" proposition, is the winner, or the most successful. This rule holds good in all things that we mortals try to do. Whether it is man or woman, the same rule holds true.

We are told that it was Mother Eve that gave Father Adam the apple, and the fact, that in the present day, we get "lemons," does not get away from the fact that Eve knew right where to get the apple (the modern Eves seem to know where to find the lemon patch, also) and we have no certain assurance that Adam ever knew a thing about how that apple grew or how it was cultivated until Eve handed it to him. So if we go back to the beginning, we find that it must have been Eve that was the first gardener (maybe, she grew some flowers, too). Now, if Eve could give the apple to Adam (he accepted it as good, too), what is the matter with the modern Eves helping to furnish flowers? Scratch your head and think it over. I never had a sister, but if there had been one, I am certain I should not wish to think her incapable of learning as much about putting a little plant into a pot as I do, mastering the many little details of routine work, reasoning out a fertilizer problem, making a cutting, using a hose with a force, wrapping up a dozen little plants, spacing and planting in, disbudding, or even in waiting on my friends who might come for a plant. No, I should be proud to think her just as capable of becoming as proficient in the floral work as I. Why shouldn't I? Take the general run of humanity, and we find that our sisters (and our neighbors' sisters also) have heads that measure the same in diameter or circumference that ours do, and lately we find they can learn and vote as intelligently as we do. Now, why not give them one more opportunity, and at the same time pay them good wages to produce the pot plants and care for the growing of the cut flowers? Brother, the question is not so hard to solve if you make up your mind to cut loose from the old custom of doing everything just because Jim or John does that way, or perhaps because father did so and so.

Many kinds of industries find the girls and women better than they found the men. They are more dependable, quicker and more thorough, and at last the time has come when there seems to be no other way to do. I am going to relate two things that I have observed in my "mixing around" in 32 states during the last 20 years in floral work. First, I will say that I believe I can count on the fingers of one hand all the instances I know of where a woman has made and continued a successful store in the retail trade—and I have found that as a rule 75 per cent or more of the flower buying public are ladies, and they seem to prefer a boy or a man to wait on them. So, my brother, it's a fine young man behind the counter that keeps the cash register bell on the jingle the most. Brother Abraham holds his hands up along side his head, and says: "Ve can pay de rent, if ve get de peesness." Try the boys.

Seven years ago, I made a visit to my home state (Ohio), and, of course, visited a few of the florist friends. At one establishment, I found them busy at propagation, and in a pleasant, cool place, found 17 men (mostly old men—they were cheap help), busy clipping cuttings. A few of them were getting them piled up at a fair rate, but the most of them (as I sized it up) were not paying as much in return for what they were being paid as a 10-year-old boy should do. I simply took notice and said nothing. When on the way back to Puget Sound, I stopped at a place in a western state and found them busy at propagation—the same kinds of stock, too. Seven women were busy, and the thing that astonished me was, they were actually clipping and preparing more of the cuttings than the 17 men were doing back there in the east. Tobacco smoke did not get into my eyes, and I never upset a cuspidore as I went through the place.

The sooner we realize that "Old Time Custom" is being killed by the kaiser—or Democracy, why, the better off we will be.

As a general rule we hire a laborer for most of the heavy hard jobs round a greenhouse, while the expert puts in his time in directions or in the more scientific work that requires that "know how" side of the business, and right here is where the "know how" could be useful by a good woman being on the job, just the same as by a man. This world has a place for us all, and the florist business might be benefited by the help from girls or women just as well as any store or factory. If they were offered the chance, I feel pretty sure that many of the women would prefer the florist's work to the job of clerking in a store. Pay them good wages, though, and you will find them worth it.

Hail Damage at Belleville, Illinois.

A severe hail storm accompanied by heavy rain and high wind, April 16, caused considerable damage to growing establishments in this city and vicinity, among those hardest hit being Adolph G. Fehr, who suffered a loss of about 40,000 feet of glass, 10 houses wrecked and two thirds of his stock ruined. The total damage here is estimated at $5,000 with $2,000 insurance. Gust W. Grossart's range was also badly damaged, 10,000 feet of glass being smashed and all plants are reported ruined. E. W. Guy estimates his loss at about $6,000 without insurance. The rain broke down the plants. The St. Clair Floral Co. reports a loss of 25,000 feet of glass without insurance, the total damage aggregating $4,000. Among other sufferers were G. E. Fuchs, George Lehman and the Goetz Greenhouses. M. Schoenberger and Walter E. Ogle escaped, their ranges being out of the storm section.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The promotion bureau is calling the attention of florists to the fact that there will appear in the Saturday Evening Post and The Literary Digest, issues of May 4, advertisements featuring Mothers' day, which is Sunday, May 12. A good many florists have already provided themselves with the electrotypes furnished by the bureau's service, in order that they may use their local newspapers to link up with the publicity obtained through these national magazines. It is safe to say that these magazines cover a large percentage of the population in every section, especially among the classes which include prospective flower buyers, so it goes without saying that the magazine advertisement is easily connected with the local advertisement which reproduces it in its main particulars. It has already been demonstrated that this particular form of cooperation is most profitable.

Florists who use the moving picture theaters for direct appeals to the public can get the bureau service of four slides which also, as far as possible, feature the magazine advertisements. Take the Mothers' day advertisement for instance: The delighted mother holding the bunch of carnations in her hands, with the shadow picture underneath of the devoted son who has remembered Mothers' day is a picture calculated to stamp itself in the minds of the public at this season, and it is up to the florists to push the impression along and cash it in at their own establishments.

The secretary has, in the last few days, been devoting himself to the spreading of the campaign doctrine in the communities adjacent to headquarters, with satisfactory results. He is arranging an itinerary for personal visits which will embrace a wide area of territory throughout the country, and has had volunteered to him the help of various trade organizations to promote meetings of florists at points covered by his trip. Florists' clubs which have not already taken this form of cooperation into consideration should get in touch with the secretary at once, so that his itinerary routing may be as far reaching as possible.

The financial standing of the campaign, as regards the support so far given it, is well shown in the list of subscribers to the fund just published by the promotion bureau. Copies of this list will be furnished to anyone making request of the secretary for same, and it is advised that any who have difficulty in determining the amount they would like to contribute to the fund apply for a copy, and see for themselves what their brothers in the trade are doing. All contributions are entirely voluntary; the idea is that each should give what he feels he can afford, and he is assured beforehand that there will be no criticism—the movement has got beyond anything of this sort.

Through clerical errors two or three inaccuracies crept into the published list of subscribers, which the promotion bureau here desires to correct. The state of Ohio is credited only with subscriptions amounting to $1,287. Added to those enumerated should be the following: Cleveland Cut Flower Co., $100; Cleveland Florists' Club, $200; Mrs. Mercer, Cleveland, $25 C. Merkel & Son, Mentor, $50, and Fred Witthuhn, Cleveland, $25, making the total $1,687. Another affects the published total of subscriptions from the state of Michigan. The L. Bomb Floral Co. of Detroit subscribed $100, while their subscription is printed as $25. The total subscriptions from Michigan therefore should read as $1,150.50, instead of $1,076.50.

It is encouraging to record the receipt from Cleveland of advice from Herman P. Knoble that active work in the publicity campaign is only just beginning there, and that the state's total will speedily be doubled.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Unemployed Requisitioned.

Arthur Cowee, the well known grower of gradioli, at Berlin, N. Y., is a member of the legislature from Rensselaer county. At the last session of the legislature, recently closed, he introduced a bill to provide for requisitioning the labor of able-bodied men of this state, between the ages of 18 and 60 years, who are not engaged in a lawful and useful business, occupation, trade or profession. The bill passed both houses and is now in the hands of Governor Whitman, who, it is generally believed, will sign it and issue the proclamation. This bill is more drastic in its provisions than the laws that have been enacted in New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia along the same lines. The age limit is raised to 60 years, and the wages are fixed and measured by the pay of a member of the state guard.

Extracts from the bill follow:

Section 1. The uninterrupted continuance and development of the agricultural, industrial and other industries of the state, and the uninterrupted, increased and efficient production of food and other articles needed by the citizens of this state, by the armies of the United States and by our allies engaged in the present war, is hereby declared to be a public purpose, essential for the protection and welfare of the state and of the United States."

Section 4 contains the following:

"The sheriff of every county shall not later than May 1, 1918, cause to be published at least once in a newspaper published in the county and posted in such number of places as he may deem advisable, a notice describing the persons who are subject to this act and require them to register with him on or before June 1, 1918, as required by this act. Any person subject to this act, who shall fail to so register shall be deemed a vagrant and punishable as such."

Provisions are made in the bill for the employment of such registered persons by any department, board, commission or officer of the state, or any municipal corporation, or any private person or corporation conducting an industry or occupation included in the proclamation of the governor.

The following classes are exempt from the provisions of the bill: Students or others fitting themselves for a trade or industrial pursuit while they are so engaged; persons temporarily unemployed by reason of differences with their employers, and persons engaged in a seasonal business, trade or occupation, although at certain periods of the year they are not so employed. The incidental collection of rents, etc., from property a man owns, does not exempt him.

Section 10 and 11 follow:

10. Payment of compensation. If any person or corporation fails to pay any person compensation to which he is entitled, pursuant to this act, such compensation shall be paid by the state out of any money appropriated for such purpose, and the state may recover from such employer the amount of any compensation so paid by the state.

11. This act shall take effect immediately."

SUPPLY EXTREMELY SHORT.

With a week of cloudy and cool weather, the supply of cut flowers was decreased to such an extent by the end of last week that it was not possible to fill all orders satisfactorily. The demand increased day by day to such an extent that by Friday good carnations, for instance, moved readily at $4 per 100. All other lines also enjoyed a briskness which has not prevailed since the Easter rush. Funeral orders were very numerous and well divided throughout the city.

NOTES.

Harold Baumgarten, secretary of the firm, "Baumgarten (Inc.)," and one of the most popular among the younger set in the craft, who is in Class 1, received his call last week and expects to join the colors with the next quota, who will leave in the near future.

At the Holton & Hunkel Co.'s sales-rooms, they remarked, "What a difference in the quantity of carnations coming in now, in comparison to the big cut around the Easter holiday." They have been getting numerous inquiries about stock for Mother's day.

C. C. Pollworth has been a very busy man the past week in behalf of the government, soliciting subscriptions among the trade for the Third Liberty Loan. Wm. Zimmerman, who is chairman of the committee, reports fairly good results to date.

Gust Rusch has been doing jury duty in the circuit court since April 15 and says that he is up for 90 days from that date. At the same time his partner, Frank Devanthal, was asked to serve on the federal jury six days a month for six months.

Geo. Seeley, brother of Bryan Seeley, of Gust Rusch & Co., who was the first man drafted from Milwaukee, was reported killed in France, April 12.

Will Schumacher, formerly with the Holton & Hunkel Co., when last heard from was active in the aviation corps in France.

Every member should attend the regular florists' club meeting, Thursday, May 2.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. J. F. Sullivan.

A distinct shock and lasting sorrow was experienced by the florist fraternity of Detroit, Mich., when, on April 18, it became known that Mrs. J. F. Sullivan had passed to the beyond. And yet this was not, by far, the limit, because the waves of sorrow, in their travels, engulfed hundreds of customers and friends, all of whom realized the great loss they had sustained.

Married June 7, 1881, she came with her husband to Detroit in 1886, and started a retail flower shop on Woodward avenue in 1888, and ever since, and more and more as years flew by, Mrs. Sullivan developed those great and beautiful womanly virtues of wife and mother, which, in so many uncountable instances, were transmitted to her customers, who, in return, looked upon her as a friend and an adviser. Rare as these instances of beautiful character development are, they are quickly recognized and an appreciative public grasps the hand of her who seems a blessed blossom on a desert world today. Blessed with four children, Norman, Mrs. Wilfred J. Mahon, Irene and Ernest, it is safe to assume that many girls and boys, old and young, felt her departure into a lighter and better world as keenly as these children, heartbroken as they are.

Her last day of distributing the sunshine of good cheer and motherly care was on that unusually busy Easter Saturday. An affliction of pleurisy developed kidney trouble and dropsy, and, while her soul was anxious to cheer and advise those about her, the body ceased to act, and peacefully Mrs. J. F. Sullivan slept away.

If we are stunned by her death, how much harder must it be for him who, through many years of close association, has had so much more benefit from her cheerful disposition, sound counsel and care. And it was to him, the husband, whom the many customers and business friends have sent choice tokens uncountable and warm words of condolence. Touching indeed was also the sober assemblage of all creeds when the last rites were said for the soul departed at the chaste but beautifully decorated St. Aloysius church.

And while the family mourns, may they not forget the blessing of having had her for these many years as a mother and be thankful to Him who guides all of us. A FRIEND.

Matthew Crawford.

Matthew Crawford, recognized as the "Gladiolus King" of Ohio, and prominent for many years as a strawberry specialist, died April 2 at his home in Belle Center, that state, after a three days' illness following an attack of pneumonia. He was 79 years of age.

The deceased was born in County Antrim, Ireland, and following the death of his father, he came to this country when 10 years of age accompanied by his mother and a younger brother, locating in Ohio. In 1856, Matthew Crawford entered the market gardening field and since that time until his death he made horticulture his life work. In 1876, he began making a specialty of strawberry plants, a few years later became well-known as a successful grower of gladiolus bulbs, and much credit is due him for developing interest in this flower and bringing it to its present state of perfection. He had grown as many as two million bulbs in one year, which he supplied to the markets, and also made large shipments of flowers during the season. During the past few years he has been gradually disposing of his bulb interests, and at the time of his death was preparing to ship the last of his bulbs.

As a lecturer and writer on horticultural subjects covering a wide range, the name of Matthew Crawford is well known. He was well qualified by an experience of 60 years, during which time he constantly conducted experiments in flowers, fruits and vegetables and was recognized also as an authority on soils in many states. Among his best known works is "The Book of Gladiolus" written by him in 1911, in collaboration with Dr. Van Fleet. He is survived by one son, William Crawford of Chicago, another son, Norman, having preceded his father in death two weeks before.

Emma Elizabeth Poehlmann.

Emma Elizabeth Poehlmann, nee Parker, beloved wife of the late John W. Poehlmann, mother of Frieda L. Poehlmann and John G. Poehlmann, died at her home 4728 Beacon street, Chicago, Tuesday, April 23, at the age of 54. She was well-known to the trade, having attended many of the S. A. F. conventions and flower shows throughout the country with Mr. Poehlmann. She had not been in the best of health for some time and recently returned from a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., where she had been receiving treatment. The funeral will be held from the late residence Friday, April 26, at 11:30 a. m., with interment at Graceland cemetery. The Poehlmann family has the sympathy of all members of the trade in this their hour of sorrow.

Frank K. Lamereaux.

Frank K. Lamereaux, a florist located at 14 Spring street, Port Jervis, N. Y., committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid in his greenhouse, April 8. He was about 60 years old, and well known in Port Jervis and vicinity and his untimely end and the circumstances that led up to it shocked the community. We learn they were as follows: A young man from Callicoon, seeking to evade the draft, was being hidden and fed in Lamereaux's house. It is said that he repeatedly denied that the man was there, but something had aroused the suspicion of the officers and they searched the house and found him. At this stage, Lamereaux drank the poison, while the officers' backs were turned for a moment. A. F. F.

Miss Eliza McKinley.

Miss Eliza McKinley, one of the best known and highly esteemed women in Pittsburgh, Pa., where she had been connected for a long period of years with Randolph & McClements, died at her home April 11, after an illness of several months. She gave up active work in July last year, but had been devoting a few hours a day to her duties until her demise. Her passing is mourned by a large circle of friends, in addition to her father, one brother and two sisters.

Boston.

FAIR DEMAND AT REASONABLE PRICES.

Market conditions remain unchanged, with flowers not over plentiful. Prices are reasonable and clean up well each day. Roses are selling as low as $2 a hundred, and the best, $12. Carnations are a drug on the market, the best costing $3 a hundred. Candidum lilies are arriving in large quantities and are offered at $3 a hundred. Spanish iris is arriving in good quantities and sells well at $1 and $1.50 a dozen. Sweet peas are not plentiful and sell at $1 and $1.50 a hundred. English primroses and English daisies clean up easily at $2 a dozen bunches.

NOTES.

Peter Fisher is sending to his salesman, Geo. Noyes, an excellent grade of Ophelia roses. Mr. Noyes is also receiving some good carnations from Sam Goddard, among the best being Matchless and Laddie, which sell for $4 to $6 a hundred.

The E. & D. Welch Co. has given up the wholesale business which they have conducted for a number of years. Everything was sold at auction and good prices were obtained.

J. M. Cohen, salesman at the co-operative market, has purchased a new Paige car to be used in motoring with buyers back and forth from greenhouses of various growers.

Thomas Clark has moved from his basement location on Boylston street to a store on the same thoroughfare where business is bound to improve.

Robert Montgomery is having a very good year with roses. Among his best are Killarney, Killarney Queen, White Killarney and Ophelia.

From Thomas Roland's greenhouses at Nahant, there are arriving in the market Tausendchon rose bushes and French hydrangeas.

Edward McMulkin, at one time one of the largest retailers in the city, has closed his store and is now with H. M. Robinson & Co.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report good business and when the writer called, the force was very busy packing out-of-town orders.

Kidder Bros. have started to ship iris. They are the best coming to market and clean up readily at $1.50 a dozen.

The Boston Rose Conservatories are coming in with a heavy crop of Russell, the new Boston rose, Hadley and Ophelia.

Wm. Nicholson is shipping to market quite an assortment of flowers, and the first Primulinus hybrid gladioli.

Estey Bros. are sending in a fine strain of anemones, ranunculus, ixias and sweet peas. S. K. G.

ILION, N. Y.—Edward A. Baker, for many years a resident of this city and who conducted a florists' establishment here until quite recently, died April 5.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Marshall Headle, landscape gardener at the Forest Park rose garden, has received a commission as first lieutenant in the aviation camp at Issoudun, France.

E. G. HILL finds that his profits on 300,000 Columbia rose plants will take care of his income and excess profits tax in fine shape.

THE will of the late Tillie Bloch, Cincinnati, O., sets aside $10,000 for fresh flowers to be placed on her grave every Sunday for 10 years.

THE coal famine of the past winter, with all its disasters, was due to a shortage of less than 10 per cent. There is now a possibility of a 40 per cent fuel oil shortage unless relief is had from Mexico and reduction and transportation safeguarded.

THE War Industries Board has reached an agreement with the lead industry whereby the latter will furnish the government with its monthly requirements, 6,000,000 pounds minimum to 12,000,000 pounds maximum, at an average price of seven cents per pound.

Society of American Florists.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE.

President C. H. Totty has appointed William H. Duckham, Madison, N. J., a member of the national flower show committee, to fill the unexpired term of William P. Craig, Philadelphia, Pa., resigned.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

New York Flower Show.

Cheques for the premiums awarded at the recent show in the Grand Central Palace have all been forwarded to the winners. The medals awarded are now being struck, and will be distributed as soon as received.

President Schenck, of the New York Florists' Club, has appointed the following as a committee to consult and co-operate with a similar committee to be appointed by the Horticultural Society of New York, as to arrangements and conduct of the 1919 flower show: A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; Chas. Schenck, 436 Sixth avenue, New York; Edw. Sceery, Paterson, N. J.; Wm. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Frank H. Traendly, 436 Sixth avenue, New York; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Geo. E. M. Stumpp, 761 Fifth avenue, New York; Max Schling, 785 Fifth avenue, New York; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York.

PRIZES FOR WHITE VIOLETS.

W. Albert Manda, South Orange, N. J., has notified the secretary that Mrs. Alfred I. Dupont, Wilmington, Del., offers the following prizes for white violets exhibited at the 1919 show:

For the best bunch of double white violets, containing 150 or more blooms —Prize, $50.

For the best bunch of single white violets, containing 150 or more blooms —Prize, $50.

The violets' own foliage only is to be used for green.

The competition is open to all, and the exhibits will be judged by the following distribution of points: Size and perfection of flower, 60; fragrance, 40.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Security Behind Liberty Bonds.

When a man asks you to lend him money, you ask, "What security can you give?" "Well," he replies, "I need $1,000, and I have a farm that is worth $3,000. I will give you a mortgage." You lend him the money and feel pretty safe, although you know that a thousand things may happen that will prevent the prompt payment of the interest, or make impossible the repayment of the loan. And you know that something may cause the farm to depreciate, though you do not expect any such result.

Now the United States government comes to you and says: "A man in Europe has opened war on us and intends, if he possibly can, to get the upper hand of us and make us pay a prodigious amount of money as a price of peace. If the Kaiser licks us he may compel us to pay him $50,000,000 for immunity from further aggression. What we need is $30 a head from all American citizens to fight the Kaiser and make it impossible for him to mulct us. But you need not give the money. Merely lend the government your loose funds. You will receive a Liberty Loan bond, backed by the absolute promise of the United States to repay the money with 4½ per cent interest. And the money you lend will be exempt from most taxes while the government is using it."

Security? Why, the security is absolute. One year's produce in this country is greater six times over than the entire amount of money the government owes on all its bonds. The property value behind the Liberty Loan bonds is not less than $250,000,000,000. Add to that, the money value of the lives of the producing population of America—figuring on the lowest basis—and you make a total security too big for the human mind to grasp. Moral: Invest in all the Liberty bonds you can.

Enemy Trading List Revised.

Washington, D. C., April 20.—A revised enemy trading list, containing more than 5,000 names and for the first time including enemy firms in the neutral countries of Europe, was issued today by the war trade board. It was established in conjunction with Great Britain and France to unify the efforts of the allies to keep their products from reaching the enemy. Italy has accepted the list in principle. The number of firms listed as enemies in South America was slightly reduced from previous lists, after investigation disclosed that the protestations of many that they were neutral were justified. Besides the neutral countries of Europe, Greece and Morocco are included in the territory covered by the list.

To minimize inconvenience to American merchants it was announced that "the war trade board is collecting the names of non-enemy firms which might be substituted for those within the prohibitions of the act." The board warned exporters that the omission of a firm's name from the list did not justify commerce with it.

Clay Products Manufacture Restricted.

The United States fuel administration issued, April 17, regulations approved by the war industries board restricting the manufacture of clay products and rearranging and dividing the manufacturing programme of the industry in such a way as to place it on the basis of war industry. Curtailment is in each case based on the average output of the past three years. Ten orders were signed by Fuel Administrator H. A. Garfield, the products dealt with being arranged in classes, and manufacture curtailed on a percentage basis as follows: Stoneware, which is construed to cover vitrified and glazed receptacles and containers made from common buff burning clays by any process whatsoever, excepting stoneware used in the chemical industry, 15 per cent; the other classes, which include, face brick, common brick, paving brick, terra cotta, roofing tile, floor and wall tile, sanitary ware, hollow tile, drain tile and sewer pipe, 50 per cent.

Trade War Threatened.

The United States must prepare to meet terrific competition in the great struggle for the world's commercial supremacy, according to reports submitted to the national foreign trade council in session at Cincinnati, O., April 20. It is pointed out that just as Germany organized her gigantic fighting machine, so she is organizing her industry for the trade battle after the war. America must learn cooperation, must educate her youth in business and must not hamper her shipping by restrictive legislation.

AMERICAN FLORIST COMPANY

San Francisco.

STOCK OF GOOD QUALITY PLENTIFUL.

After experiencing one of the best Easters in the history of the city trade, things have settled down to the usual dullness that always follows a good holiday business. There is plenty of stock of nearly every description, and the quality offered is all that could be desired. Russell roses were never better, and good stock is bringing fine prices. American Beauties are more plentiful than at any other time during the season. Good stock always meets with ready sale. Ophelia is plentiful and very fine. Quite a few Baby Doll are coming in now and are very popular for corsage work. Cecile Brunner is also coming in freely. Quite a lot of finely grown outdoor stock is being offered also. Carnations are in ample supply, with a steady demand and prices normal. Silver Pink snapdragons and Keystone are coming in and meeting with much favor. In bulbous stock, there is quite an overproduction of tulips; a great number of these find their way to the street and are offered at all prices. Plenty of Dutch hyacinths are seen on all sides. Violets are very plentiful and at this writing are of first-class quality; the shipping demand still continues to be quite heavy for them. The chief variety grown for the shipping trade is the California Giant; this variety is a wonderful keeper and is the most popular shipping sort. Very few orchids were to be seen during the week. Gardenias are none too plentiful, and lily of the valley is still out of the market. Large quantities of the finest Spencer sweet peas still continue to arrive and are in constant demand. They have brought very remunerative prices during all the season, but the outdoor stock is expected in shortly and this will no doubt have a tendency to lower prices very considerably. Great quantities of flowering fruits in many shades are being offered and are very good sellers. Among the novelties offered in the flowering shrub line are Tamarix Africana and Eucalyptus ficifolia, both of which are very beautiful just now and are in much demand. The call for ferns keeps up steadily and good stock is none too plentiful. Most of the stores are making very pretty displays of nephrolepis in variety and also cinerarias in pots.

NOTES.

Superintendent Percy Ellings, of the Lynch Nursery Co., at Menlo Park, reports a very heavy demand for chrysanthemums since the firm's catalogue was issued. He has also propagated over 100,000 to be grown for cut flowers for the shipping trade this fall. Plant business is quite heavy at this place, much of it being used for landscape work.

The annual sweet pea show held by the city of Eureka promises to be a very important one this year. It will be held under the auspices of the chamber of commerce. Chas. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, is taking a leading part in making the show a success, and his firm will be a large exhibitor of all the newest varieties.

The E. W. McLellan range at Burlingame is producing some extra fine rose stock just now. They are cutting heavily of Baby Doll, which is very popular. Their American Beauties and Russells are of the finest quality, and Manager J. A. Axel says there is no difficulty whatever in disposing of the large cut of this establishment.

The new store of the Thomas Floral Co. at the corner of Jones and O'Farrell streets is greatly admired for the fine display that is kept up at all times.

They say they are greatly pleased with business and that they intend to handle high-grade flowers and plants only. Their window of nephrolepis is very attractive.

Owing to present conditions, the Menlo Park Horticultural Society has decided not to hold a sweet pea exhibition this year. Instead, an impromptu show will take place some time in June on a regular meeting night. The society is steadily gaining in membership and is in a very flourishing condition.

Peter Rock, foreman of the nursery in Golden Gate park, is busily engaged in raising thousands of ornamentals for next season's planting. This nursery is well arranged, and Mr. Rock has been many years in his present position and is well known in nursery circles throughout the state.

The show held by the California State Florists' Society, April 12, was a very pretty one and was well patronized. A great variety of spring flowers were shown and the display of bulbous stock was especially fine. The show was complimentary, no admission fee being charged.

A. O. Stein says that trade has been very satisfactory in his neighborhood since Easter. He always maintains a very elaborate display at his store and his windows are a source of delight to all passersby. His large force of help is always busily engaged on decorations.

Chas. Cohen, of the Ferry Floral Co., tells us they had the best Easter ever experienced by his firm. They also shipped a great number of flowers and plants to distant parts. The large store in the Ferry building is always kept up in a very pleasing manner.

Francis Howard, the noted landscape engineer of New York, is spending some time in this city, studying landscape problems at some of our leading estates. It is quite probable that he will remain here for an indefinite time.

Edwin Hoff, manager of the MacRorie-McLaren stores, says business is very good with his firm. He adds that their great trouble at the present time is to secure experienced help.

J. W. Williams, who has been with the Art Floral Co. for some time past, has resigned his position, to take a long rest. At present he is undecided as to his future plans.

Walter K. Lewis, vice-president of the Art Floral Co., is in this city for a short stay. He says the floral trade in Los Angeles was very good at Easter.

John Bianchini is managing Joseph's store on Grant avenue during the absence of J. Cuneo, who is confined to his home by illness.

PLENTY OF BUSINESS AND GOOD SUPPLY.

There has been plenty of business and amply stock to take care of all orders. Funeral work has been extra heavy; in fact, has been for the past three weeks. There is very little demand for flowers to be used for any occasion, except funerals. There have been a few weddings which called for some fancy roses and snapdragons and other spring flowers. Carnations are plentiful and hold up well in price, the best selling at $4 per 100 with the inferior grades at $2 and $3. There is a fine cut of roses coming to this market and they sell at list prices. There seem to be more Sunburst than any other. Prima Donna, September Morn, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Killarney and Ward are all in the best of condition and find ready sale upon arrival. Some very fine pink, bronze and white snapdragons are seen and some specimen spikes of white sold at $3 per dozen last week. Sweet peas are about the only flower for which there is no demand, too many coming to the market the warm weather shows its effect, and are very poor when they arrive. There is an enormous quantity of yellow daisies at present, which are not moving very fast. There is always an extra large supply of them at this time of the year. Bulbous stock is about done for and we are all thankful. The farmers are now bringing in their outdoor daffodils and narcissi and they are sold very cheap. Some very good iris is coming, also belladonna of a very good quality. Lilies are very scarce. Some peonies are seen, but of no importance. Orchids and lily of the valley have very little demand. Greens are not arriving in quantities sufficient to supply the call.

NOTES.

There were 13 members present at the weekly luncheon and meeting of the retail florists' association April 16. The committee appointed to arrange for a banquet to be held May 7, reported they had almost completed plans and submitted three menus which looked pleasing to those present. D. W. Ludwig is chairman of this committee and anything he arranges for is about O. K. There will be good music, speakers, eats and smokes. All florists are invited, and a good time is assured all who attend besides the valuable information they will be able to obtain. A speaker of prominence has been invited to be present that evening. Advertising suggestions for Mothers' day were submitted and a committee was appointed to pass on them. This is a real live organization, and any retail florist in the Pittsburgh district who does not become a member, is missing something that is beneficial to his business. Meetings are held every Tuesday at noon, at the Seventh Avenue hotel. Ask the wholesale men all about it.

Private Thos. Kelleher has been confined to the base hospital at Camp Lee. Dave Hill was at Camp Lee this week, visiting his brother, who is in the signal corps.

Some very fine white snapdragons are grown by the McCallum Co. at the greenhouses at Evans City.

Almost every flower store in the city has been short of help all week on account of sickness.

M.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—Harry Krawzler will open a flower shop at the location recently vacated by F. C. Covill.

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.—John Chisholm, formerly of Wheeling, has taken a position with the Hayman Greenhouse Co., of this city.

ROCK, ISLAND, ILL.—The Tri-City Florists' club has decided to consolidate its advertising with the national publicity campaign of the Society of American Florists. All future publicity will be directed by the club's committee and not individually.

SPOKANE, WASH.—With prices about as usual except for lilies, Hoyt Bros. report a small gain in 1918 Easter sales compared with those of last year. The supply in all lines was plentiful. A special feature of interest was the fact that the "Four Hundred" class, usually a standby as flower purchasers, never entered the store this year.

BUSINESS IS MUCH BETTER.

Trade has been quite good the past week, when stock in all lines cleaned up nicely at fair prices. Carnations are selling better than they have for sometime, but the receipts are considerably smaller. American Beauty roses are in good demand and there is no great surplus when the stores close at night. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are arriving in good supply and the quality of most of the stock of this variety seen in this market this week is exceptionally fine. Roses in general are in large enough supply to meet the present demand and include very fancy Ophelia, Sunburst, Champ Weiland, Richmond, Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland, Hearst, Montrose, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Double White Killarney, Fireflame and Tipperary. The miniature varieties Cecile Brunner, Elgar, Baby Doll and Nesbit are to be had along with the other roses grown for this market and not already mentioned. Orchids and gardenias do not appear to be any too plentiful and lily of the valley has been cleaning up regularly. Some particularly fine snapdragons are seen in the market in good supply and a few Rainbow freesias are still included in the many offerings. Darwin tulips are again a factor in the market and include both local indoor and southern outdoor grown flowers. Lilies are not as plentiful and the same holds true for callas. White and yellow daisies, lupines, stocks, gladioli, lilacs, jonquils, narcissi, calendulas, pansies, mignonne, candytuft, anemones, forget-me-nots, sweet peas and other seasonable flowers are on the list of offerings. Smilax and Mexican ivy continue to

The civil service board of the West Chicago park commissioners will hold an examination for the position of florist, Class G, Rank 2, Division Z, at Garfield Park pavilion, May 7, at 8:30 a. m. The examination is open to men over 21 years of age regardless of residence. Original entrance salary is $85 to $95 per month. Applications must be filed in the office of the civil service board in Union park, before 5:00 p. m., May 6. The duties of florists are general work in the conservatory, propagating house and outdoor gardens throughout the system. The subjects of the examination are as follows: Special subject, weight of 6; experience, 3; physical, 1; an oral and practical test in exhibition greenhouse work and written questions on the care and propagation of plants and general greenhouse operations.

Charles Kruchten, brother of John and Henry Kruchten, proprietors of the wholesale firm known as the John Kruchten Co., has been notified by his draft board to appear for military service April 26. Chas. Evert, with A. T. Pyfer & Co., who is in the same district, will leave on that date also, and will probably go to the same camp.

Zech & Mann are again featuring a large supply of fancy Darwin tulips from the Peter Pearson greenhouses in addition to their usual complete line of other stock. Allie Zech reports that inquiries are numerous for stock for Mothers' day, especially for carnations and roses.

M. C. Gunterberg, who has been conducting a wholesale store at 158 North Wabash avenue, has closed her place of business, on which her lease expired May 1. She has no intention of giving up the wholesale business and is at present arranging for new quarters.

John Poehlmann, who attended the third officers' training school of the 84th division at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky., graduated April 19. All the successful candidates, including himself and W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort. Wayne, Ind., were given a grade as sergeant, with a title of officer candidate. Mr. Poehlmann has been assigned to Co. D of the 336th regimental infantry and will report for duty May 2.

Mrs. E. B. Washburn, of Pasadena, Calif., passed through here this week on her way to Columbus, O., where Mr. Washburn will graduate from the adjutant's class at the Ohio state university. He will receive a commission as second-lieutenant and will be assigned to duty at once. Mr. Washburn is a son of C. L. Washburn, well-known member of the firm of Bassett & Washburn.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is well pleased with business, which is exceptionally good, considering conditions. The shipping trade at this establishment is holding up remarkably well and the city demand is so good that stock is cleaning up every day.

Hoerber Bros. have been cutting an average of 15,000 to 18,000 roses a day the past week, which is doing remarkably well, considering the size of their range. The stock was excellent and compared favorably in quality with the best offered in this market.

Peter Reinberg will be in good crop with roses for Mothers' day and is already booking a large number of orders for this occasion. Some particularly fine Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are included in the daily rose shipments at this house.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a good supply of roses and carnations and will be in pretty fair shape to take care of all demands for Mothers' day, but are advising their customers to order early as possible to avoid disappointment.

Sam Seligman was here on a visit this week. It is rumored that he has severed his connection with the firm he was representing last and that he is about to accept a position with one of the new eastern ribbon houses.

Kennicott Bros. Co. will have its usual large supply of peonies to offer this season, for all reports are to the effect that the crops are very promising and will be ready in plenty of time for Memorial day.

Arnold Ringler has moved from 158 North Wabash avenue to 56 East Randolph street on the second floor of the building directly opposite his old stand.

The Grossberg-Tyler-Finnerman Co. is enjoying good business and is well pleased with the number of sales made since the opening several weeks ago.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Bismarck hotel, Thursday evening, May 9, at 8 p. m.

A. Lange has a pretty window display this week, in which the statue of liberty occupies the center of the stage.

Percy Jones, Inc., has a large stock of brown, green and purple Superiora magnolia leaves on hand. The demand is good for them, which is probably due to the fact that many of the retail florists are making up their Memorial day wreaths during their spare time so as to avoid the last minute rush.

Erne & Co. are handling a complete line of green goods in which they are featuring fancy ferns and smilax in quantity.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling out-door Darwin tulips from Indiana in quantity this week.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association held another Liberty Bond meeting at the E. C. Amling Co.'s store, Tuesday noon, April 23, when several prominent speakers were present and August Poehlmann presided. This city has not made as good a showing as expected and while the florists have done well they must do better and those who have not already subscribed should do so at once. Those who have already bought and can possibly afford to buy more bonds of the Third Liberty Loan should do so for it looks as if they will be needed to help the "I Will" city go over the top. Come across, everybody, and help back the boys over there. Bonds are a mighty fine investment and this city cannot possibly afford to let our neighboring state, Wisconsin, which has already oversubscribed its quota, beat us to it. The "I Will" city will be in the front at the finish, but every man, woman and child in the trade has got to do their part mighty quick. So get busy and buy a bond or more bonds now. In addition to the number of subscriptions announced last week the following are reported: April 17, 41 amounting to $3250; April 18, 50 subscriptions, $3400; April 19, 33 reaching $1750; April 20, 22 totaling $2100; April 22, 9 subscriptions, $2600 which added to the $37000 reported last week makes a total of $50,100 worth of bonds sold by the association to date. The retail trade which comes under the same division as the wholesale florists and growers report about $24,850 worth of bonds to date, making a grand total so far of $74,950. This amount added to those sold by the seedsmen and nurserymen, also in division 19, reaches $104,000 and does not include those subscriptions from some members of the trade which are credited to other divisions, particularly that of Peter Reinberg amounting to $10,000 and those of the Greek florists which come under the heading of the foreign division.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is offering a new box for Mothers' day that is attracting the attention of many of the buyers at their store who liked it so well that they closed a liberal order at once. The beautiful design is printed in the two-toned effect in pink and violet on the cover of mist gray folding boxes in all the practical sizes. One of the most out-standing features of the box is that it can be bought at $10 per 100 in the 24x5x3½ size which is so reasonable in cost that the retail florist cannot help but buy. T. E. Waters is responsible for the new design which has been greatly needed especially by the smaller florists.

George Wienhoeber's war window this week has attracted much attention and was a clever piece of work. Peter Miller is back from Cincinnati, O., where he personally delivered a large number of orders for one funeral there for his firm.

The Wholesale Florists' Credit Association is now located in its new quarters in Room 1004, Federal Life Insurance Building, 168 North Michigan avenue. The association's new telephone number is Central 6163.

A military home wedding of February 23 was that of Miss Ruth Hildur Danielson, daughter of Mrs. Mathilda Danielson of 2515 Ashland avenue, Evanston, to Lieut. Hilmer V. Swenson of Rogers Park.

The Raedlein Basket Co. reports a good demand for its two special basket offers for Mothers' day. This firm is preparing another new catalog which will be ready for distribution in the near future.

Peter Reinberg, president of the county board, has subscribed for $10,000 worth of Third Liberty bonds. Employees of the county numbering 1,155 persons took bonds amounting to $160,800.

J. A. Budlong is featuring a good supply of roses which will be in fine crop with them for Mothers' day. Business is good at this establishment with a brisk out-of-town call for stock.

COLD AND SNOW HURT BUSINESS.

With very bad weather conditions and an inch of snow, April 20, market conditions have been very unsatisfactory. Roses, however, are a little more plentiful and some excellent Ophelia, Russell and Sunburst are seen. Carnations are scarce and not up to standard. Sweet peas, lilies and some bulbous stock complete the list. Pot plants are scarce and the demand is very good. Bedding plants are now the main items at the greenhouses.

NOTES.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports a heavy week of funeral work; in fact the largest of the year. They have a plentiful supply of stock, especially roses, orchids, gardenias and calendulas.

W. J. Barnes is keeping his force busy, getting bedding stock in shape. His trade is calling for plants. Funeral work has been unusually heavy. He is cutting a good crop of late jonquils.

Business has held up well with H. Kusik & Co. They have good supplies of roses and sweet peas. This firm is always crowded to keep up with wire work orders.

T. J. Noll & Co. had an excellent out-of-town demand. Roses were in good supply, but sweet peas and carnations fell off considerably.

A. Newell reports business excellent with no complaint to make. He had a large funeral order during the week.

A. F. Barbe reports a good cemetery trade. Spring stock is looking well.

E. J. B.

Cincinnati.

MARKET CLEANS FAIRLY WELL

Business is fair. The opening and close of each week are excellent and stock cleans up well. During the middle of the week, however, the supply accumulates in the hands of the wholesalers and does not move out very well. Prices are rather low. Roses are not as plentiful as they were. Carnations continue in a heavy supply. The Easter lily cut has shortened very considerably. Callas may be had. Only a limited number of the sweet pea receipts are long ones. The balance runs to short and medium grades. The choice sell very quickly. A limited amount of excellent snapdragons are coming into the market. Daffodils and Poeticus from outdoors may be had. Other offerings are baby's breath, pansies and swainsonas. A few lily of the valley are available, but they sell rather slowly.

NOTES.

According to advices received here, C. J. Oehmer of West Palm Beach, Fla., has sold his orange grove. Mr. Oehmer, however, retains his extensive holdings of land in Asparagus plumosus, to the growing of which he will devote his entire time.

Fred Lemon, Richmond, Ind., has been shipping some excellent baby's breath into this market.

C. E. Critchell is finding a big sale for his ferns.

SUPPLY OUT OF BALANCE.

The market the past week was crowded with certain kinds of stock and showed a scarcity in others. Carnations have shown a tendency to be off crop for about a week and it is hoped that a good cut will be on for Mothers' day. Roses have been fairly plentiful. Sweet peas have suffered considerably on account of the dark and cloudy weather, coming in soft with no lasting qualities. Lilies and rubrums are equal to the demand. Some very fine Spanish iris are seen and have a good call. Snapdragons and jonquils continue to come in good supply. Yellow daisies are coming in heavy and move only at bargain prices. Darwin tulips are about through for the season. Outdoor stock has not yet cut much figure in the market on account of the dreary weather. In greens, the market is well supplied. Some very nice huckleberry foliage has been coming into this market.

NOTES.

The retail florists association, at its last meeting, had up for discussion a number of matters, and while not largely attended, proved to be an interesting session. The principal discussion centered about the necessary advances in prices of the commodity we sell to the public. It seems strange that, while costs of doing business have advanced sharply and the cost of production is greater, still the average retail florist cannot see why he should advance his price to the public. The St. Louis lady florists will hold a meeting, Wednesday, May 1, 2 p. m., at the Forest Park pavilion near the zoo. Mrs. H. G. Berning, the secretary, is anxious that all ladies attend this meeting as they have some important matters to bring up for consideration. Everyone is welcome if she has attended a previous meeting or not.

The florists' tacky party, held at Westminster hall last week, brought out a big attendance. It was styled a "nut party," and it was conceded that Geo. Angermueller was the most original "nut" present. We also noticed a few squirrels following Lon Rowe. We have not yet decided what Art Beyer was following.

The past week this city and surrounding territory was visited by a severe hail and windstorm. The loss to local and county florists was light, but the growers in Belleville suffered a severe loss by hail. The ranges of Gust Grossart and E. W. Guy were practically totally destroyed, in some instances the sash bars being broken.

The household show being staged at the exhibition hall in the old Southern hotel building provided work for a number of florists, decorating the various booths.

Ed. Guntly, with Windlers' Flowers, is on jury service this week. Better at this season of the year than close to the holidays.

BUSINESS WELL UP TO AVERAGE.

Conditions during the past week were satisfactory to the retailers, with the Liberty Loan drive on, florists and employees taking an active part. Business has been good generally, well up to the average, and funeral work plentiful. Stock of all kinds is of good quality, and the supply is taking care of the demand. Pot plants seem scarce and the demand is good. Growers are busy with bedding stock and, from indications, a banner season is anticipated. The seed stores, as well as the nurseries, report good business.

NOTES.

Wm. E. Tricker, for the past two years superintendent of the Holm & Olson greenhouses, has tendered his resignation, effective May 1, and will start business on his own accord, having bought the E. F. Lemke place at Hogue and Saratoga streets. It will be remembered that Mr. Lemke is the pioneer florist of St. Paul, and during the past few years has remodeled the entire place, which is situated in the residential district between the two cities. Mr. Tricker previously was superintendent at Vaughan's greenhouses, Western Springs, Ill., and has held other responsible positions, both in this country and in England, and is one of the "old boys" who started their careers under the tutelage of John N. May, of Summit, N. J. Being the eldest son of the late Wm. Tricker, the aquatic plant specialist, W. E. Tricker is well known on both sides of the Atlantic, and was for several years with Jas. Veitch & Son, Chelsea, Eng., and Wm. Whitley, Ltd. During his stay in this city he has made many friends, both in and out of the trade, who wish him every success in his new venture.

Holm & Olson devoted one of their large windows to the Liberty Loan display. This concern reports business good in all departments.

The West Side Floral Co. has a fine lot of bedding stock in their benches and is preparing for a big rush soon.

O. R. Eckhart Co. reports business exceptionally good, especially in the out-of-town demand.

Visitors: Morris Stein, now at Harvard in the marine service, formerly of Holm & Olson, on a furlough; A. Longren, Chicago; Julius Dilhoff, New York. C. P. F.

LARGE SHIPMENTS OUT-OF-TOWN.

The demand the past week has been better than expected, a large quantity of stock being shipped to meet the out-of-town orders. Prices are holding well in some lines; there is an upward tendency, particularly with carnations, which appear to already feel the impetus of Mothers' day. It too early as yet to begin to store them up, but growers are not picking close, or the crops are off. At any rate, there is no surplus accumulating at the market end of the line. In all other items, quantity shipments are the rule. Roses are cutting well, with the quality all that can be desired. Easter lilies, stock that failed to make Easter, have accumulated and some will go to waste. Callas are also plentiful. Sweet peas are in good demand; the quality is fine, but getting shorter in stem. Southern gladioli have been offered the past week, the stock arriving in fine condition. Southern asparagus is largely depended on for greens, which as it now arrives, is quite satisfactory. Cattleyas are handled in large quantities, there seeming to be considerable demand for these high class flowers at good prices. Snapdragons, stocks, irises and calendulas are all seen in quantities and meet with fair call.

LIBERTY BONDS.

The seedsmen, florists, nurserymen and allied interests were asked to raise $250,000 as their quota of the Third Liberty Loan. David Burpee is chairman of the committee of which Arthur Niessen is also a member. This body is now hard at work and expects to roll up a large total. At a meeting of the Leo Niessen Co.'s employees, April 18, in the interests of the Liberty Loan, much enthusiasm was shown. Nearly everyone connected with the establishment took one or more bonds, which with the amount subscribed by the firm, and its members personally, rolled up a grand total of over $15,000. A movement was started through the florists' club which though rather tardy, looks promising, quite a number of good sized amounts having been received. The various branches of the trade should put all the money they can into this savings bank, over-subscribing their quota, if possible, and in this way demonstrating their importance as an industry.

PROFESSOR BEAL'S LECTURE.

The illustrated lecture given by Professor A. C. Beal of Cornell University, before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, April 16, in Griffith hall, was a great treat to lovers of the rose. The slides were beautiful, showing examples of the best and latest development in public and private rose gardens. This was the last lecture of the winter sea-they could not fill. They are almost to a man, ready with a large and varied stock, which if sold, will add not a little to the season's revenue.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have bought out the florist supply business and factory of A. Herrmann of New York.
Mr. Herrmann made a specialty of metal wreaths, the manufacture of which will be continued at the New York factory and add considerably to their stock in this line, which formerly was largely imported.

Leo Niessen expressed himself as satisfied with the past week's business;
considering the great quantity handled, prices obtained, he felt, should be satisfactory to the growers. Roses, sweet peas, carnations and southern gladioli were features here.

The Joseph G. Neidinger Co. is making a hit with their Mothers' day spray for the grave. Cemetery florists have found this to be just the idea they have been looking for. A showy piece that can be sold at a popular price.

Carnations are a feature with Edward Reid. He expects to be particularly strong in this department for Mothers' day. Sweet peas and choice roses are also quantity items. The out-of-town demand is good.

The Jos. Heacock Co. is able to move their roses, of which the majority are medium length stems, without much difficulty. A good out-of-town shipping trade is developing that greatly hinders their market.

Martin Reukauf is much gratified at the expansion of his new business. A very good local as well as out-of-town trade is developing, which is keeping all hands hustling.

At the Berger Brothers market, there had been a fairly good demand, particularly for carnations. Easter and calla lilies, snapdragons and sweet peas were quantity stocks.

Eugene Bernheimer is much pleased with the Florex Garden's roses. They never had a more varied or better grown stock than at present.

NOTES.

Clarence W. Liggitt has severed his connection with the S. S. Penneck Co. For several years he has held the office of treasurer and manager of the seed and plant department, the business of which has grown to be of quite large proportions.

W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., chairman of the Liberty Loan Bond section comprising seedsmen, florists and allied interests, reports, April 20, subscriptions of over $150,000, with a number of sub-committees yet to be heard from.

W. F. Therkildson spoke on "The Effect of the War on the Seed and Flower Industries" before the Lancaster Florists' Club at its April meeting.

J. Otto Thilow delivered his lecture on "The Fruits and Flowers of the Hawaiian Islands" before the "Ramblers' Club" of Moorestown, N. J., April 17.

TRADE UP TO EXPECTATIONS.

Business was rather quiet during the past week, but as good as could be expected. There was an ample supply of all stocks and some, particularly lilies, were in surplus. Though inferior stock sold cheap, good offerings, when there was no surplus, brought fair prices for the season. Between Easter and Memorial day there is usually a quiet season in cut flowers. In the past few years, Mothers' day has been an incident of that period, but since the custom has been established as a trade proposition, the florists should make the most of it. We believe it would be the better way to push all carnations at a reasonable price, instead of running the whites up to fancy figures, particularly when whites are not plentiful. Flowers in practically all colors are now used in funeral work, then why be so discriminating as to Mothers' day? Southern lilac is now arriving in considerable quantity, so the lilac season has fairly opened. We have also noticed a few peonies. In the past year, there have been many wails about poor transportation, but stock seems to arrive just the same. The lilac while it lasts, and, including the home product, it will last a good while, will upset the market for miscellaneous stock.

April 22.—The market continues quiet. The weather of yesterday was wet and disagreeable and unfavorable for the retailers, consequently buying is light this morning. Good roses continue to bring fair prices, but much miscellaneous stock is going cheap.

NOTES.

The buying of Liberty Bonds by the florists and allied trades of this city, has, at this writing, reached at total of $150,000 or more. On April 20, $110,000 had been reported at the office of the Lord & Burnham Company. In addition to this, the Greek-American florists, largely retailers, had subscribed about $40,000. As the canvass is still in progress, it is reasonable to suppose that $200,000 will be reached.

ing over the arrival of a daughter at his home. He was so happy that he forgot to bring down the cigars, but we expect them the next time he comes.

Anton Brouk, 1469 First avenue, near East 77th street, has a good retail store which is managed by Mrs. Brouk. Their store is in the heart of the American-Bohemian colony, and the residents of that section are good flower buyers.

Louis Schmutz, Jr., of Flatbush, Brooklyn, who was seriously ill during a part of last winter, has so far recovered as to be about the greenhouses. Louis Schmutz, Sr., who is now 74 years old, continues active.

H. E. Froment, 148 East 28th street, is receiving a particularly fine stock of Ophelia and Prima Donna roses from the ranges of L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J. He is also handling a good quality of southern lilac.

Duncan C. Arnold, of Babylon, L. I., who was at one time in the wholesale business at 112 West 28th street, was married in Jersey City, April 12, to Miss Katherine S. Weeks, also of Babylon.

In addition to their large stock of Ulrich Brunner roses, Nicholas G. Pappas & Co., 112 West 28th street, are receiving an exceptionally fine quality of double pink stocks.

Calling recently on Louis Newkert, 874 Jamaica avenue, Brooklyn, we found him busy and he reported a good Easter business. He makes a specialty of cemetery work.

Joseph A. Millang, of the New York Cut flower Company, is receiving good Scott Key roses from the F. R. Pierson Company.

George J. Bayerle, 1723 Second avenue, who has been in that location for over two years, reports good business. J. G. Leikens has been elected first lieutenant of Co. A of the Old Guard of the Seventh Regiment, N. G.

Goldstein & Futterman, 102 West 28th street, in addition to much other stock, have a fine supply of iris.

George Georgas, another employee of the Kervan Company, left for Camp Upton the past week.

The Kervan Company, 119 West 28th street, is receiving a good supply of southern lilac.

The Henshaw Floral Co., 127 West 28th street, is receiving southern peonies.

GOOD STOCK AT MODERATE PRICES.

Trade during the past week has been good and stock of all kinds is still plentiful. There have been some good cut Easter lilies the past week and the rose market still stays low. Carnations are good, and the prices charged are moderate. Sweet peas are selling at sight, and marguerites are in demand. Cut pansies and other small flowers are sold as soon as they are shown. The Boston markets are shipping large cuts of short roses to this city, and they are selling well. Maiden Hair fern and Asparagus plumosus are short on this market, the most of it being also shipped from

BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

The weather for the past week has been very rainy and disagreeable, but trade has held up well, largely in funeral work. The supply of flowers has been good and more than sufficient for demands. There are plenty of Harris lilies, carnations and roses. The Maryland seems to be coming in especially fine, large buds and excellent coloring. Lily of the valley is blooming beautifully outside, as fine and large as the forced variety, and even more so. Snapdragons and sweet peas vary the supply and are much sought after for various purposes.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. has a large variety of plants and is pushing sales. This week, and ever since the Third Liberty Loan drive was inaugurated, they have made a beautiful demonstration in their Liberty Loan window, which is a great attraction and has been very much complimented, both for the enterprise which prompted it and the beauty of detail. A large statue of liberty, bronzed terra cotta, some six feet high, stands in the background, while United States flags and innumerable Liberty Loan devices artistically placed make a most attractive and telling window. In the other window are lovely vases of fine flowers and plants. This firm has been very liberal in subscribing for the bonds. Thomas H. Joy is spending the day in Chattanooga to look over the establishment there.

Geny Bros. have had a rush of funeral work and are putting on sale a choice variety of bedding plants. They are having a fine cut daily, with plenty of Harris lilies. A great novelty in the yellow calla lily with the spotted leaf has had a good run. Leon Geny and his family attended the Liberty Loan demonstration at the Auditorium conducted by Charley Chaplin, and his little daughters, as well as himself and other members of his family, were called out as liberal subscribers, and entered heartily into the Liberty Loan drive.

The veteran Arnold Schmidt turns the most of his attention to the growing of vegetables and has remarkably fine cauliflower, cucumbers and tomatoes under glass. He is industrious and capable and thoroughly understands his business.

Charles Tritchler deals almost exclusively in the bedding plant business, and has a tremendous stock. In the past year he has more than doubled his capacity and is putting on the market an unusually fine variety of plants.

The McIntyre Floral Co. is making a drive on the sale of bedding plants. They send constantly to the market-house, have wagons on the streets and sell largely from the store and the greenhouses.

Another claimant for business in the plant field is Charles O. Green, 1000 Thirty-second avenue, North, who is bringing in a very good assortment of plants of every description.

The 1st of May Thrift Stamp Day In The U. S. A.

The Active Co-operation of Every Reader of
The American Florist

Is Urgently Requested To Make It a Success

May 1st, 1918, will be observed throughout the United States as Thrift Stamp Day! On that day retail stores everywhere in every line of business will ask customers to take part of their change in Thrift Stamps! It will be patriotic for every man, woman and child to accept at least one Thrift Stamp as change on every purchase made that day—and to make as many purchases as possible on May 1st.

Here is a big, practical way of getting millions of Thrift Stamps into the hands of the people of the United States, and of insuring the success of the Government's War-Savings Stamps campaign. Thrift Stamp Day will help everyone. It will prove a tremendous boost to business. On May 1st, 1918, the nation should do the biggest total retail business of any single day in our history! The beneficial habit of Thrift will be sown broadcast among the citizens of the U. S. A! Most important of all, Uncle Sam will be furnished with the means of War and Victory!

American business must go "over the top" at once in a quick drive to make Thrift Stamp Day an overwhelming success. You wholesalers, you jobbers, you salesmen, must talk Thrift Stamp Day among your trade, arouse the enthusiasm of the retailers, the storekeepers, the clerks behind the counters. Uncle Sam needs your help. A practical plan has been prepared showing how each one of you can "do your bit" to make Thrift Stamp Day a red letter day in American business annals. Write for this plan today without fail. Remember, in helping Uncle Sam you are helping business and helping yourself. Address Mr. W. Ward Smith, National War Savings Committee, 51 Chambers St., New York City.
